Lancaster Farming

VOL. 33 No. 27 | Four Sections | Lancaster Farming, Saturday, May 14, 1988 | 50¢ Per Copy | $10.00 Per Year

When you find condominiums stacked behind a beautiful farmstead, and the dairy cows out front grazing on the unfinished four-lane road bed called the goat path in Lancaster County, you stop to think, "Can the peaceful rural life on the fertile Irish farms here really survive?" Survive the tidal wave of greenbacks that get higher and higher until farm after farm succumbs and drowns in another wave of housing developments, shopping centers, industrial parks, and super highway right-of-ways.

Oh, it was quiet and peaceful enough on Thursday morning when Lancaster Farming Editor Everett Newswanger stopped along Willow Road, pointed the camera south and filled the 70-230mm telephoto lens with this scene. The sun was shining and the invigorating cool morning with clear blue sky gave no hint of the destruction of any pastoral scene.

But almost everyone knows farmers who have already refused monetary offers that make your head swim. Refused because their great-grandfathers worked a lifetime to pay off the original farm debt, and some died before they saw their dreams fulfilled. That's why because with one stroke of a pen that early toil for the family could be wiped away without a trace under the blade of a bulldozer.

Of course, in more objective moments, you can't blame farm families who cash in on the bonanza development pressures have placed on the land. But as you put your camera back in the case, you can't help feel a nostalgic hurt -- a deep wish to again be part of a time when growth in the garden spot of the world had something to do with tall corn, green alfalfa, and prize livestock, rather than quickly-built houses appearing on divided lots.

Sulfamethazine Residues In Milk: An Emerging Problem

BY KARL BERGER
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON, DC — The nation's pork producers aren't the only ones with a sulfamethazine residue problem. Dairy industry officials also have become concerned about farmers' use of this common drug in the wake of a recent Food and Drug Administration study that found traces of sulfamethazine — which is suspected of being a carcinogen — in the nation's milk supply.

The National Milk Producers Federation, a trade group representing most of the nation's milk cooperatives, has responded to the study, which was reported in a number of newspapers, with a recommendation that dairymen not use any medicine containing sulfamethazine until more is known about the problem. The federation also suggested that member cooperatives that sell supplies to farmers suspend sales of the drug. And it has begun work with a number of industry and government groups to develop guidelines and tests for safe use.

Several local organizations, such as Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, are passing on the federation's recommendations to their members. Cooperative Extension Service veterinarians in Maryland and Pennsylvania say a temporary suspension makes a lot of sense.

Lancaster County's Unofficial Tally For Referendum Is Close

BY LISA RISSER

LANCASTER — By, a slim margin, Lancaster County voters casting a "no" ballot outnumbered "yes" voters on passing the beef referendum in an unofficial poll taken by "Lancaster Farming". Out of the more than 350 farmers who cast their vote on Tuesday, "LF" talked to 112 of which 60 said they voted no and 52 reported voting yes.

Of those voters polled, most were beef producers with slightly more voting no.

The official results of the referendum vote will be released May 24 after tallying votes from around the nation.

The voting got off to a busy start in Lancaster with 95 voters in the first hour, many of these were Amish and old order Mennonite farmers. A slow, but steady stream of farmers trickled in throughout the day with a van of FFA students arriving during the lunch hour.

More than 275 ballots were mailed in, however only 213 could be counted as the others either had no signature, came in late, or both. Signatures were needed on the ballot envelope so that the farmer's

County Ag Land Preservation Director Resigns

LANCASTER — Alan R. Musselman, the nationally-known director of the Lancaster County Agriculture Preserve Board, resigned early this week after two of the three county commissioners here questioned a stipend he received from the Friends of Ag Land Preservation. The money was given to Musselman for extra work done above and beyond his work for the County Preserve Board. The resignation came after Commissioners Robert Breneman

Family Enthusiastic About Dairy Farming

BY BOB WILLIAMS
RCMA Writer

MOUNT JOY (Lancaster) — Lancaster County farmer Joseph Hess Sr. made a good living with hogs, steers, tobacco and tomatoes for 30 years before he put together his first dairy herd in 1973.

Joseph Hess Jr. bought his first cow at the age of 20.

Today Joe Sr. and Joe Jr., and one full-time hired man, milk 140 cows and ship 2.3 million pounds of milk annually to Johanna Farms of Flemington, N.J. That's 770,000 pounds shipped per man and 16,400 pounds per cow. Not bad for a couple of newcomers.

Producing milk is a demanding business for these Pennsylvanians. But it is the marketing of their milk that has caused the heartburn, and the reason why they are so enthusiastic about the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency.

FUTURES MARKET TRENDS GRAIN AND LIVESTOCK

This market information provided by ACRES ACRES is a copyrighted market information service developed by the American Farm Bureau and available to Pennsylvania farmers on a daily basis through Pennsylvania Farmers' Association Farm Management Services. Acres Corn Update: Corn futures today closed lower from 2-1/2 to 3 cents with selling late in the session tied to professional fund liquidation. Lower basis levels and increased movement pressured the spot option as CCC second party purchases began to accelerate. Selling early in the session was limited on fears of soil moisture deficiencies.

Acres Soybean Update: Soybean futures closed sharply higher but off session highs as buying throughout the session was in response to yesterday's bullish carryout figures. Buying in soymeal throughout the session was linked to processor shutdowns and ideas more business would be channeled to the U.S. May soybeans closed up 6-1/4 cents at $7.12 after trading to a high of $7.16-1/2 earlier in the day. New contract highs were made again today with November posting a high of $7.45-1/2 and a close of $7.41, up 7-1/2 cents.

Acres Wheat Update: Wheat futures closed from 1/2 to 1-1/2 cents lower after trading higher throughout the session. Last minute losses were attributed to commissionhouse selling amid concerns over the bearish production figures issued yesterday. Prices were boosted on the open by a short covering rally generated aby ideas that new export business was in the works. Support came from spillover strength in the beans and lower than expected ending stocks. July closed down 1-1/2 cents at $3.11-3/4 after posting a high of $3.15-1/2 midday.

Acres Cattle Update: Live cattle futures closed mostly higher as June posted a new contract high at $.7347. After a higher opening, futures turned lower on profit-taking and then later rebounded on buying interest tied to moderate boxed beef movement at higher prices. Opening gains were limited by steep losses in the neighboring stock index pit. Liquidation was prompted by ideas that the cash market was getting toppy.

ACRES NEXT DAY OUTLOOK: cash -steady futures-steady to mixed.

Acres Hog Update: Live hog futures closed sharply higher in the front months with gains of 132 and 138 points. Buying was tied to strong technical signals and strength in the cash markets, amid light receipts. June closed out the session at $52.77 after posting a high of $52.85 earlier in the session. Bellies mirrored activity in the live hogs and posted gains of 35 to 175 points.

ACRES NEXT DAY OUTLOOK: cash - steady futures - steady.

Northeast Chicken Parts

Wed., May 11, 1988

Trading activity was light on most items. The bulk of trading on cutlets was at unchanged prices and sellers often found buyer interest limited to previous commitments; supplies were more in balance with the lighter call. Demand for whole breasts was sufficient to keep most supplies in tight balance, however, some product had surfaced and sellers were more willing to negotiate. Legs and leg quarters were adequate to fully adequate at current levels. Wings were irregular but fully adequate overall; demand was slowest on this item.

AREAS TO LOOK AT TO IMPROVE PROFITABILITY

1. Use 2- feed system for milk cows. Fresh cows get high density feed for peak lactation, and tail enders are fed least cost ration.
2. Grow better quality forages- this will reduce amount of feed needed to balance forage program.
3. Don't keep extra heifers- it costs approximately $300 per year to feed each heifer. Milking cows x 60% gives you total number of heifers birth to fresh. Example 50 milk cows x 60% = 30 heifers total.
4. Work on a better growing program for the generally neglected yearling heifer. Bigger "spring of rib" heifers will eat more forage and give a bigger milk check during their first lactation. Heifers need to average 15,000-16,000 lbs. of milk for their first lactation.
5. Know your actual costs- a good farm records system that separates crops from dairy will show you actual crop costs/profits and milk sales costs/profits.
6. Reduce overhead- rented ground and poorly utilized equipment can be costly. It generally pays to grow your forages, but look at using custom services for silo filling.

Ask the Old Farmer: How can I eliminate or at least control moss growing on my lawn? I have dug it up and disposed of it, but it grows back again PB, Sag Harbor, N Y

Your lawn needs more sun and more lime Cutting some branches out of any overhanging trees will let in more sun Applying lime will sweeten the soil

Home Hints: Sprinkle coffee grounds around carrots to ward off insects

OPINION

Let's Have A Juicy Steak

Have you heard the latest? Fat in beef may lower cholesterol levels in the blood. That's right. Stearic acid, one of the saturated fats in beef, may actually lower cholesterol levels. That's what two doctors found in studies at the University of Texas' Southwestern Medical Center. This study clearly demonstrates that all saturated fats do not have the same ill effects. Beef has several types of cholesterol. But stearic acid offsets and counteracts the others. That's why you have the lowering effect.

Of course it's been known for some time, but not widely published, that stearic acid has been absolved of any contribution to coronary risk. It was known as early as 1957 that the cholesterol rising effects of eating beef were less than might be expected based on the total amount of saturated fat in beef. Now we have this new research published this week in the New England Journal of Medicine to confirm that knowledge.

Even with this study, doctors don't want the dietary recommendations to be changed. Since the study was done under controlled conditions, they say the same findings may not be true in a typical high-cholesterol American diet. But we believe if you are healthy, you may want to reduce total calories in your diet, but you certainly don't need to eliminate beef to do that. In fact, beef may be better for you than many other foods. So let's go out and have a nice juicy steak for supper tonight (dinner, if you're from the city).

FARM FORUM OUR READERS WRITE

Editor:

This letter refers to the article authored by a Carl E. Jarrett, retired Game Protector, in Lancaster Farming, Saturday, April 23, 1988, Sec. 4.

I was very dismayed at the philosophy espoused by the "game protector." Game protector?? I'm almost tempted to laugh -- if it wasn't so sad. Apparently, he would blast every red-tailed hawk, or other bird of prey, out of the blue sky so that the Bob White Quail would be restored to 100-year-ago numbers. Predation has always been an integral factor in national evolution. It is only since man came on the scene -- with chain saws, guns, bulldozers, and plows, that the balance in nature has been precariously upset. Enough said.

I hope you can balance this destructive, 19th century philosophy regarding resource management with a more enlightened article by someone who has a more broadened view. I am frightened when I read something like Mr. Jarrett's article. I am glad he is retired, and presumably less of an authoritative voice regarding our wildlife. Thanks.

NOW IS THE TIME

For Haylage and Hay Making

Good quality forages can help farmers generate more cash income with little to no additional expenses. And, what farmer couldn't use that right now! Cows produce more milk and livestock gain more rapidly on higher quality forages. The need for purchased concentrates is also generally reduced. So, if you are growing forages, concentrate on improving forage quality and improving nutrient yield per acre.

Most important to quality is stage of maturity at time of harvest. For established stands of alfalfa, harvest the first cutting at the late bud stage, later cuttings can be harvested in the late bud to early bloom stage... about 35 to 42 days after the previous cutting. To enhance the vigor and longevity of the stand, at least one of the cuttings should be allowed to bloom. Similarly, the first cutting of a new seeding of alfalfa should be made in the early bloom stage.

Grasses should be cut in the boot stage of maturity, just as the heads are beginning to emerge.

To Be Aware Of Corn Insects

With the increased trend toward no-till corn planting or minimum tillage, we can expect more problems with corn insects. Past experience shows this. We urge corn growers to inspect their fields frequently to observe any feeding on small plants. You can have cutworms; stalk borers and armyworms at any time feeding on the corn plant. The Agronomy Guide lists several materials for the control of cutworms and armyworks, including Sevin, Lorsban, Furadan, Dylox or Dyfonate. The stalk borer is very difficult to control because they work inside the corn stalk.

Flea beetles are another insect that may feed on small corn leaves; they create small holes in the leaves but seldom do extensive damage. Sevin can be used to eliminate these small insects, if it is serious enough. Keep an eye on the corn field for the first several weeks and avoid serious insect injury. Always follow label directions when using any pesticide.

To Continue Forage Feeding

Dairymen and beef cattle producers should continue to feed some dry matter while the animals are on pasture. The feeding of hay or silage, when the cattle are turned out to pasture will result in more uniform production. Also, keeping some dry matter in the ration will help prevent serious scouring and bloating.

Some producers provide this forage by way of a portable hay or feed bunk in the pasture area. The animals should consume some of the dry forage along with lush spring pasture. The hay should be fed early in the day, before the herd goes to the new pasture. Later in the season the stored hay or silage will continue to be useful when growth slows down due to dry weather and high temperatures.

To Read The Label

I am sure you have heard this suggestion before, however, it is still very important to all farmers and gardeners.

Every pesticide carries a label with directions; this should be read and followed during the application of the material. Don't make the mistake of applying the material in error. The labels are required by law and should be respected by the user.

Serious losses may occur if the directions are not followed. Materials should always be kept in their original container and stored in a separate place under padlock.

A MUTUAL-STIRRING SOCIETY
May 15, 1988

Background Scripture: Hebrews 10:19 through 11:40.

Devotional Reading: Psalms 40:1-10.

During the past year, the church on whose staff I serve, First United Methodist Church of Dallas, Texas, has gone through a great and devastating tragedy that has rocked both the church and the community. If I had come across such a plot in a novel, I would have called it "bad fiction." But, unfortunately, it has not been fiction.

The news media have devoted enormous amounts of space and time to a series of events involving a member of our ministerial staff and his family. What the news media has consistently failed to report, however, is that the congregation has not only survived this tragedy, but is stronger in faith and love than ever before. In many ways, to paraphrase Winston Churchill's famous World War II remark, these days of tragedy have been our church's "finest hour"!

STIR UP ONE ANOTHER

It was out of this context, then, that I read those familiar words of the writer of the Epistle to the Hebrews: "let us consider how to stir up one another to love and good works" (10:24). In many ways, that's a description of the church when it is at its best: a mutual-stirring society. That's what it has meant to be a part of our church during the past year. After the initial shock and sorrow, our people have devoted time and effort in a stirring one another "to love and good works." And just about everyone has been part of that stirring process: clergy and laity alike have stirred each other to new congregational and personal levels of faith. As never before the members of this church have felt a need for worship, prayer and congregational sharing. This has given new meaning to Hebrews' admonition: ". . . not neglecting to meet together, as is the habit of some, but encouraging one another . . ." (10:25).

We have also come to an enhanced understanding of faith. As a congregation we had been living pretty much by "sight," rather than by "faith." Ours was a strong (one of the strongest in Methodism) and growing church and we took satisfaction in what we could see of our prosperity. During the past twelve months, however, we have come to a fresh experience of the definition of faith which we find in Hebrews: "Now faith is the assurance of things hoped for, the conviction of things not seen" (11:1). Thus, we have learned once again what it means to live by "faith," instead of "sight."

THINGS NOT SEEN

What that faith means, as Hebrews 11 illustrates, is not an assurance that we will be spared pain, suffering or misfortune, but that regardless of what comes, God will be with us to ease the pain, make bearable the suffering, and help us survive the misfortune. It means doing in faith what we can and must do, leaving the end result to God. It means living confidently, even though the circumstances around us do not inspire confidence.

This was the kind of faith by which so many of the patriarchs lived: Enoch, Abraham, Sarah, Isaac, Jacob, Joseph, Moses and many more. This was not an easy "just believe" kind of faith. Much more than believing in something, this was a matter of trusting Someone and living by the power of that trust.

That's really what the church is meant to be, a mutual-stirring society that encourages the kind of faith resulting in love and good works. My prayer is that you may be similarly "stirred-up."

Other Banks Will Lend You Money, Weather Permitting.

When it suits their profit motives, commercial banks are happy to make farm loans.

But let the least little cloud appear and their interest in you quickly disappears.

Farm Credit, on the other hand, has stood by farmers through all kinds of weather. For 70 years.

We've stood by you in the apple orchard and the hen house. In the potato field and tobacco barn. Something other bank officers find hard to do from behind a desk.

And because Farm Credit is owned and controlled by the farmers who use its services, you'll never talk to anyone who doesn't know a disc harrow from a wheel barrow.

So the next time you need a loan, you could take a chance on a fair weather friend. And maybe you'll come out okay.

But in the long run, you're better off with someone who's with you, rain or shine.

SURFIX®

A Non-ionic Spreader-Sticker Adjuvant For Pesticide Sprays

...we recommend Surfix!

Sometimes you just have to spray, even under the worst conditions. That's one reason you need Surfix® spreader/sticker. Surfix keeps your pesticide on the leaf, through wind and sun and rain. It forms a bond between droplet and leaf surface that resists washoff.

. Surfix can improve your spray application under most conditions. It reduces the evaporation of spray droplets, sticks droplets onto the leaf surface and spreads those droplets for more uniform coverage.

Surfix contains more active ingredients than most other spreader/stickers...one-third more than most competitors. This means it takes less Surfix to do the job.

Surfix is the type of adjuvant recommended by basic manufacturers on many pesticide labels. So, when your pesticide label recommends "spreader/sticker" we recommend Surfix.

Lancaster County Offers Low-Cost Rabies Vaccination Clinics

LANCASTER — A low-cost rabies vaccination clinic for dogs and cats will be held on Saturday,M ay 21 from 1:00 to 2:00 p.m. at 11 locations across Lancaster County. All Lancaster County veterinarians are cooperating to provide the entier county with clinics to maintain a barrier of rabies-vaccinated pets between the wildlife rabies epidemic and ourselves.

This year Lancaster County has the highest number of confirmed rabies cases according to the State Health Department. This passive, non-scientific method of tabulating cases in no way describes the extreme extent of the rabies epidemic in Lancaster County. Rabies experts have found as rabies epidemics spread through the wildlife that over 60 percent of the raccoon population will have rabies. Since the rabies virus promotes aggressiveness in the affected animal, the virus is easily spread to other animals such as the wandering dog and cat population. Any animal showing abnormal behavior or paralysis must be considered to have rabies until proven otherwise.

Rabies vaccinations for dogs and cats will be given for $5 per animal. Certificates of prior vacinnations are helpful in properly preparing new certificates. Almost all dogs and cats vaccinated at prior rabies vaccination clinics require booster vaccinations to maintain immunity. Annual vaccination against rabies maintains the highest level of protection against rabies. No other services can be provided at this rabies vaccination clinic. Dogs and cats must be in carriers or on leaches. Locations for the rabies clinic are: Atglen Veterinary Hospital, Dr. Raymnd Ewing, Christiana, Pa 17509; Awad Animal Hospital, Dr. Fayez Awad, 388 Hershey Road, Elizabethtown, Pa. 17022; Columbia Animal Hospital, Dr. David Burrichter, Rt. 462 E, Columbia, Pa. 17512; Conestoga Animal Hospital, Dr. Melvin Wenger, R.D. 3 Hinkletown, Ephrata, Pa. 17522; Dr. John Ingold, 1256 Robert Fulton Highway, Quarryville, Pa. 17566; Lancaster Boys Club, Dr. Thomas Gemmill, 333 Dauphin St., Lancaster, Pa. 17603; Lititz Recreation Center, Dr. Richard Baron; 21 North Spruce Street, Lititz, Pa. 17543; Neffsville Veterinary Clinic Ltd., Dr. Russell Nyland, 2555 Lititz Pike, Lancaster, Pa 17601; Smoketown Veterinary Hospital, Dr. Harold Landis, Smoketown, Pa. 17576; Tower Road Veterinary Clinic, Dr. Warren R. Coder Joins DHIA Staff

STATE COLLEGE (Centre) — Pennsylvania DHIA welcomes aboard Ronald T. Coder as accounting associate. Ron graduated from Penn State in 1951 with a B.S. in wood utilization, and holds an M.B.A. degree from George Washington University ('72). Ron began his career as an Air Force pilot, and remained in the Air Force for 23 years. He logged over 5000 flying hours during his career, including combat missions in South East Asia.

Ron works closely with James Garrity, Director of Finance and Personnel for PA DHIA in the areas of finance and employee benefits, a field where he has had considerable experience. After retirement from the Air Force, Ron worked for a year in the accounts receivable and credit department at Herbert R. Imbt, Inc. of State College, and then became Directcor of Renovation, Purchasing and Inspections for the Federal Home & Mortgage Co. of State College. Ron also worked for 4 years as the Executive Director of The Second Mile, an organization founded by Penn State defensive coordinator Jerry Sundusky to help neglected youth. For the past 4 years Ron has acted as Treasurer for the State College Presbyterian Church.

Ron and his family have been very active in Penn State athletics. Ron was a member of the 1950 & 1951 National Championship Soccer team at Penn State, and was a member of the 1956 Olympic Soccer Team. All four of his sons played football at Penn State, and his oldest son played professional football in the NFL and USFL for 10 years, spending most of his career with the Seattle Seahawks.

Ron is married to the former Hope Jeffries, daughter of William & Sarah Jeffries. William Jeffries is a familiar name to many Pennsylvania dairymen as he was involved in Penn State's Agricultural Extension Service for over 40 years.

Lancaster County's

eligibility could be challenged by the public. Challenges were to be made to the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service by Thursday, May 12.

Chet Hughes, Lancaster County livestock agent, predicted that 10 to 15 percent of the county's eligible 4,500 producers would come in to vote.

Many of those voting no agreed with a beef farmer from Manheim who said "I'm a producer and some of my cattle go back for breeding stock, and it's unfair that money is taken off of them. I'd like to this change before we vote yes or no on the referendum."

Others felt that the money spent on advertising isn't what affected beef prices. They believed it simply was a matter of supply and demand. The beef supply is lower than current demand. "They haven't been having too much success with the advertising," commented a Leola beef producer who wished to remain anonymous. "Sure we're getting a better price for beef, but we're paying more for feeder cattle too. The difference in the gain isn't helping us."

Some of those in favor of the referendum felt that advertising has worked though, "prices are higher on calves and cull cows, and if it only costs $1 to keep it that high, I'm for it," said a Manheim farmer. Wilmer Conrad of Lititz agreed saying, "I'm in favor of advertising because eventually a cow goes for hamburger anyway. The only thing I have against the checkoff is selling breeding stock; that bugs me."

Many producers, both dairy and beef, felt that promotion was effective, but they also felt that the money shouldn't come from the producer: "the simplest way to get funds is from farmers," declared a Elizabethtown dairy farmer. "It would be more fair to go to the merchandiser or store owner, who would in turn pass it on to the consumer and that's where the checkoff should be.

"I also think having 4-H'ers vote isn't fair because they don't have stock in it; most times parents bought the steers."

Another stumbling block for some voters was government control. As one farmer put it, "if there isn't any government control, then why is the checkoff mandatory?"

The tally in Lancaster County will be an indicator of how the vote will do in the rest of the country, according to Hary. H. Stambaugh, beef producer and member of the Pennsylvania Cattle Marketing Associates. "If it's even close in Lancaster County, then the referendum will pass in the rest of the nation," he predicted.

The Farmer's Choice: To Breakeven Or Profit

By Ernest G. Kuster
Agricultural Consultant of Rutgers Cooperative Extension

FLEMINGTON, NJ — For any business to do well in an ever increasing competitive marketplace managers must be keenly aware of what is happening around them. Information and knowledge are the keys to making sound management decisions. Farmers are, in economic terms, in perfect competition with one another. Simply put, a farmer's product is not unique. Anyone with a basic understanding of the agricultural product can produce it. The problem is that farm prices will always be at at or near cost of production. Locally, a farmer will produce as much as is profitable, necessary to feed livestock, or which they are capable of producing. Nationally, however, farmers, as a group, will produce enough supply to equal demand or when their marginal cost is equal to marginal revenue. This unique economic condition usually puts the farmer at a breakeven situation so that there is very little return on investment for the farmer or manager. Economic experts tell us that most businesses try to make a ten to twelve percent return on their investment, so how is a farmer to make a return on their investments when national economic policy and conditions do just the opposite?

The profit oriented farm manager must utilize a wide variety of informational centers to gain a competitive edge over their constituents to get a viable return for their investment. If, in exemplary competition, a farmer can utilize new technology, management practice, or some other measure of producing or marketing a product, whereby decreasing overall cost or increasing net income, then the farmer can make a profit where normally they will only breakeven.

There are numerous informational publications available to farmers. Two that I utilize extensively are the Doane's Agricultural Report and the Kiplinger Agricultural letter, both out of Washington, D.C. Both bring to light information coming out of Washington and try to give subscribers information about; commodity price forecasts, interest rate trends, major export/import markets and outlooks, monetary and fiscal policies along with their impact, production estimates, farm income projections, new and proposed farm legislation, overseas markets, technological developments and much more. This information can then be utilized to make better management decisions based on a broad spectrum of insight provided by these publications. Other publications which are more product specific and just as useful are: Pennsylvania Farmer, Hoard's Dairymen, Farm Journal, The Furrow, The Northeast Improver, Successful Farming, and Dairy Farm Management, just to name a few. If you wish to subscribe to a farm periodical talk to local farmers, farm supply businesses, anywhere farm products are bought and sold and ask them for the address of magazines or publications to which they subscribe. Also, many magazines will take names off mailing lists and send you a complimentary copy along with a subscription form.

For those of you interested in high technology, there are some excellent computer information centers which put out the same type of information as the magazines but have it available for the cost of computer time and the phone call. Also, once you use a computer and phone modem you can, for a fee, access the information network of some major colleges or run business programs on their mainframes. The information gathered from these sources are faster and may prove invaluable.

Education, I believe, is one of the most important aspects of being a good business manager. Farming has become big business and has become more and more sophisticated. A manager who can discern and utilize information from a variety of source materials can make their business more profitable by making good business decisions. After all, we are in the business of farming to make a profit and ultimately a decent return on our tremendous investments. Missing an opportunity or making a costly management mistake may be the difference between a profit or loss in a highly competitive farm marketplace.

Corn Converted To De-Icer Plastics Could Lessen Environmental Problems

ST. LOUIS, MO — About 70,000 bushels of corn a day could be used in making biodegradable plastics if those plastics took only 10 percent of the market, noted Dr. Wayne Maddever, manager of business development for St. Lawrence Starch Co., Mississauga, Ontario.

Speaking during a session on new uses for corn at the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) annual Corn Classic, Maddever also pointed out that if corn-based calcium magnesium acetate (CMA) were used in the U.S. road de-icing market, about 50 to 60 million bushels of corn could be used per year.

Maddever mentioned fuel ethanol as a third major growth area for processed corn, noting that it has been around the longest, and people are more familiar with its use.

Degradable plastics are gaining a lot of interest since the famous journey of the garbage barge with no home, explained Maddever. There are two kinds of degradable plastics — photodegradable and biodegradable.

Photodegradable plastics could be used in disposable items that stay above ground and become litter problems, such as rings around beer and soda cans and "clam" boxes for fast-food restaurants. Biodegradable plastics would be excellent for reducing landfill storage problems, litter items, and entrapment and ingestion problems among wildlife.

Maddever explained to the corn growers that biodegradable plastics can be made with solid starch, such as "Ecostar", his company's product; a dissolved starch such as developed at the USDA Research Laboratory, Peoria, IL, and now being developed by Agri Tech Industries Inc., Champaign, IL; or a plastic grown by bacteria which ICI is providing under the name "Biopol".

All three work the same. The starchy plastic is placed in an environment where the starch is eaten by micro-organisms, and the plastics is weakened and destroyed. The time is takes can vary, depending on the shape of the plastic item, whether it is a thin film or a solid bottle or tool handle, for instance; by the polymer type, by the starch and oxidant level; and by the environment. Environmental factors include whether it's wet or dry, the temperature, and the soil type. Decay is quicker in loam than in clay.

CMA's advantage include its low corrosiveness, low toxicity, non-contamination of soil or water, biodegradability, and soil improvement after effects. Two disadvantages are its destiny — but it can be mixed with sand to solve this problem — and its cost. Regular salt costs 1¢ to 2¢ per pound while CMA with acetic acid from corn costs 12¢ to 18¢ per pound. However, the New York State Energy Research and Development Authority study justifies using CMA at 13 times the cost of salt just to save the replacement of bridges. This doesn't iniclude the additional benefits of not rusting cards.

Maddever noted that a continuous fermentation process would reduce CMA's cost for users.

Class I Milk Price $13.36 For June 1988

ALEXANDRIA, VA, May 5, 1988 — Middle Atlantic Order Market Administrator Joseph D. Shine recently announced a Class I milk price of $13.36 per hundredweight for June 1988 in Order No. 4. This price is down 10 cents from May and is 67 cents below last June's Class I price.

Shine announced a Class II milk price of $10.26 per hundredweight for April 1988 and a butterfat differential of 15.1 cents for the month. The Class II price was down 14 cents from the previous month, while the butterfat differential was unchanged.

The June 1988 Class I price and the April 1988 Class II price are based on the april 1988 Minnesota-Wisconsin manufacturing milk price of $10.33 per hundredweight at a 3.5 percent butterfat content.

The USDA reported that the wholesale price of Grade A butter at Chicago for April for $1.3100 per pound and the nonfat dry milk price was $.7318 per pound, f.o.b. plants in the Chicago area.

30 YEARS AGO
THIS WEEK

30 Years Ago

-The pillar of the farming industry, the highly efficient middle-sized farmer, is likely to suffer most as integration spreads. The less efficient farmer stands to become better off.

This gloomy prediction was made Monday in Washington by Orlin J. Scoville, head of the Farming Efficiency Section of the Agricultural Research Service, at a meeting of the Newspaper Farm Editors Assn.

Scoville did feel that the efficient producer may be able to maintain part of his favorable position by his current favorable bargaining power potential.

-Cool wet weather retarded field activity for the second week in a row. Keystone State farmers are now anxiously awaiting fields to dry up so they can continue planting oats and prepare seed beds for other crops.

In Lancaster County, field work resumed on Monday, although conditions for working the soil were far from ideal. However, the time is running short for tomato growers and corn planting.

-Reports from poultrymen on May 1 indicate layers have fully recovered from the effects of stormy weather in February and March, according to the State Crop Reporting Service.

Production, averaging 62.8 per cent, set a new record for the date and exceeded the previous high a year earlier by almost one per cent.

The average for the month at 61.2 per cent reflects a relatively low rate on April 1.

-Milk production in Pennsylvania set a record in April despite a decline in the number of cows.

The 601 million pounds produced exceeded April last year by five per cent, and April 1956, by three per cent.

The estimated 936,000 cows in Pennsylvania herds during April represents a drop of 2,000 head from the month previous and 6,000 fewer than a year earlier. Reports indicate no let-up in the trend toward fewer but larger herds as mechanization continues.

The FDA study found sulfamethazine in 36 of the 49 milk samples it took from retail outlets in 10 cities nationwide, according to Chris Lecos, a Washington-based spokesman for the federal agency. Twenty-five of the positive samples contained less than 5 parts per billion. The largest level detected was 40 parts per billion.

Lecos said the results are preliminary. FDA conducted the study primarily to evaluate a new test for detecting drug residues in food. Moreover, the amount of sulfamethazine found "do not present any health hazards to people," he said.

Nevertheless, the agency, which oversees the safety of much of the nation's food supply, is concerned about the findings because sulfamethazine is not technically approved for use on dairy cows producing milk.

"It's there and it shouldn't be," Lecos said.

In the past, FDA has monitored potential residues of drugs containing sulfur because of their potential to cause allergic reactions in some people. That concern has been sharpened in the particular case of sulfamethazine by evidence that it may cause cancer as well.

Researchers at the FDA's National Center for Toxicological Research in Arkansas have found tumors in laboratory animals that were fed sulfamethazine, but their results are still preliminary and by no means conclusive, Lecos said. However, in January, various newspapers reported the work, presumably heightening public concern about the wholesomeness of food products in which such residues are found.

The problem may be most widespread in the pork industry, where sulfamethazine has been widely used as a feed additive. Despite continuous attention to the issue by the National Pork Producers Council, which is two years into an effort to educate producers about the safe use of the drug, federal meat inspectors continue to find about four percent of all the carcasses they test have levels in excess of the tolerance set by FDA.

In issuing its recommendation to suspend use of sulfamethazine, National Milk has followed the lead of the pork council, which responded to the reports of the cancer study with a call for a voluntary ban on all uses of the drug by pork producers. Council officials credit that action with defusing potentially negative press accounts.

It also may help forestall an overall ban of the drug. Lecos said FDA currently is reviewing safety data on sulfamethazine that could result in a number of outcomes, including a determination that its use presents an "imminent health hazard" requiring manufacturers to withdraw products from sale. However, no action is expected until sometime after FDA holds a public hearing on the issue May 25-26 in Bethesda, Md.

The problem in the dairy industry differs from its pork counterpart in one important respect. The drug is labelled for use on hogs and authorities have been able to trace problems either to the failure to observe proper withdrawal times or environmental contamination. But, for now, they can only speculate why sulfamethazine has turned up in milk.

Dr. Larry Hutchinson, an Extension veterinarian at Penn State University, said the mixing of feed for different livestock in common equipment either on or off the farm may account for part of the problem. But he also said that farmers and veterinarians who use the drug on milk cows may be to blame.

Although FDA has never labelled — or given its approval to — the use of sulfamethazine on lactating dairy cows, it is not illegal to do so. Under the so-called "extra label" policy, veterinarians are able to prescribe drugs for, say, sheep that are only labelled for use on cattle. However, this privilege is supposed to be used only in those situations in which an animal's life is threatened and no other effective drug exists, according to Dr. Max Crandall, an official at FDA's Center for Veterinary Medicine.

Moreover, this practice is not supposed to result in any residues. The fact that they exist means that something is wrong, Crandall said.

Veterinarians familiar with private practice say sulfamethazine is occasionally used in dairy herds to treat pneumonia or related respiratory problems and, sometimes, foot rot. It also is used to treat calf scours, but this practice should not result in milk residues, although it may lead to problems in bob veal calves, Hutchinson said.

In beef cattle, where the drug is labelled for treatment of pneumonia, withdrdawal times before a treated animal can be slaughtered range from 10 to 28 days, Hutchinson said. But official withdrawal times do not exist for sulfamethazine's extra-label use on cows in milk. Thus, problems may arise from dairymen who "are either not discarding milk at all or discarding for a fairly short period of time, say, five days," he said.

This problem may be exacerbated by the fact that medicines containing sulfamethazine can be bought over the counter by farmers and by the misperception that sulfa residues are not a problem or are not detectable in milk, according to some observers.

Until recently, the latter point was partially true; sulfa residues were difficult to detect in milk, at least at the parts-per-billion level, according to dairy industry officials. But new tests are vastly more sensitive. According to John Adams, a National Milk staffer, the old tests were analagous to identifying one man in a red suit in a room of 40 people; the new tests, to spotting that same man in a worldwide population of several billion.

One of the steps now being taken by the federation is to meet with private companies in an effort to speed up the development of a practical on-farm test with comparable sensitivity. Similar tests for antibiotics have made it possible for dairymen to be certain their milk does not contain residues of these drugs before adding it to the bulk tank.

Missouri D.V.M. Topic Is Antibiotic Resistance

LANCASTER — The local veterinary nutrition forum held here Wednesday evening, featured the discussion of the buildup of antibiotic resistance through feeding programs. Dr. Van Rickets, Lee's Summit, Mo., and Research Veterinarian for Pfizer, said that several years ago the National Cattleman's Association had developed a position that said they would not use antibiotics in animal feed for growth or feed efficiency in the finishing cattle. But according to Dr. Rickets, the recent clearance by FDA for low levels of Terramycin (Pfizer trademark) has caused people to rethink this position.

In a video prepared to answer some of the question related to antibiotic resistance, Diane Fagerberg, Ph.D., President, Colorado Animal Research Enterprises, Inc., said, "New research data shows that low level feeding of antibiotics to cattle does not result in bacterial resistance or a threat to human health."

Research conducted by Dr. Fagerberg involved calves fed 75 milligrams of Terramycin per head per day to test the effects of the drug on salmonella shedding and fecal coliform antibiotic resistance. The 75 milligram feeding level for the antibiotic is one commonly used in the cattle industry, she explained.

"The tested oxytetracycline product has now passed very strict safety standards, and there is nothing to worry about in terms of bacterial resistance to antibiotics or danger to human health," Dr. Fagerberg said.

"Our study opens the door for Terramycin to be used with other products that also have passed Federal Code of Regulations 558.15," Dr. Fagerberg added. "One example is the new cross-clearance for Terramycin and Bovatec granted by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA)."

"Approved antibiotics are a legitimate and necessary part of livestock production," Dr. Rickets concluded.

Farmers Cite Importance Of Management Records

ITHACA, NY — In a recent informal study conducted by the Northeast Dairy Hred Improvement Association marketing department, DHI records worked for Notheast dairy farmers in three important areas: feeding decisions, culling choices, and udder health management.

DHI records on milk and fat production on individual cows help farmers fine-tune their feeding programs. it is not profitable to feed all cows the same way. Some cows make more milk than others. Others make less milk, but at a higher fat content, which takes more energy to produce.

Knowing each animal's production history from DHI records allows farmers to adjust each cow's (or group of cows') feed intake on a monthly basis. This avoids waste from feeding too much to cows who don't need it and health/production loss problems associated with underfeeding those cows who do need the extra energy.

The Northeast DHI Forage Analysis Laboratory analyzes feed samples so farmers can know the nutrient contents of feeds they grow on their farms. Many dairy farmers use computer programs to balance feed rations for individual or groups of cows based on their production and stage of lactation. The feed nutrient information provided on Northeast DHI Forage Analysis reports is entered into the computer to provide accurate feeding recommendations.

Northeast DHI also provides information that pinpoints unprofitable animals, even in very large herds. Cows that do not produce or have reproduction/health problems are removed from the herd because they do not "pay their way." Finding these poor producers as early as possible and culling them is important to Northeast dairy farmers.

Quality milk is also important to Northeast dairy farmers. Quality milk is fresh, free of unnatural odors and tastes, low in bacteria and low in somatic cell count. Somatic cells are white blood cells and milk secreting cells found normally in milk. Cows that have either clinical or subclinical udder infections have elevated somatic cell counts.

High somatic cell counts can lead to decreased shelf life, off-flavored milk, and decreased yield of cultured dairy products, such as cheese. In addition, increased somatic cell counts correspond to a permanent, significant decrease in milk production.

The DHI Somatic Cell Count Program is a valuable monitor of individual, average, and group average somatic cell counts. With this somatic cell information, farmers can work with veterinarians, Extension representatives, and their local Quality Milk Promotion Services center to improve the quality of their milk and maintain levels of production.

DHI is a member-owned dairy cooperative serving 6,200 dairy farmers in Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, and New York. The central mission of the cooperative is to increase Northeast dairy farmers' net profits through information management systems.

BLOAT CONTROL ON PASTURE CONTAINING LEGUMES

Each year some farmers lose animals due to bloating on pastures that contain appreciable clover or alfalfa. Straight legume forage is more apt to bloat animals. However bloat also can occur on grass-legume mixtures, particularly in early spring or fall and when the forage has been frosted.

Feeding milk cows about 5 to 6 lb of stored forage dry matter daily can help prevent bloat. The stored forage should be split into two feedings. Preferably it should be provided as long hay with a low legume content. A grass or mixed mainly grass hay often is used. Corn silage or haylages could be fed to provide more scratch factor to enhance eructation of gas if no hay is available.

A chemical compound, called poloxalene also may be fed for bloat prevention. It is sold under the trade name of Bloat Guard. The daily dose is 2 to 3 grams of active ingredient per cwt of bodyweight daily. (Example: 26 grams for a 1300 lb cow). It is available from some feed trade suppliers and dealers as a product containing 53% poloxalene. Thus 49 grams of this material may be needed daily for a 1300 lb animal (26 .53 = 49). As an adjunct to treatment for bloat, poloxalene should be administered at a level of 4 to 5 grams of active compound per cwt of bodyweight.

Poloxalene also is available in special supplement blocks designed for pastured animals and in some specially formulated mineral mixtures. If these products are used, care must be taken to see that cattle are eating sufficient amounts to provide an effective intake of poloxalene.

Feeding 3 to 4 oz of vegetable oil per head daily also can help prevent bloat. This could be incorporated in the grain mix or sprinkled on supplemental stored forage. The need for oil might be met by feeding about 1 1/2 to 2 lb of ground soybeans or cottonseed daily. As an adjunct to treatment for a bloated animal, 3 cups of oil may be given via drenching.

Accumulated gas sometimes may be partially reduced by use of a stomach tube. In severe cases an incision may need to be made in the left side of the animal in the area under the lumbar region and between the last rib and the hook bone. However, frothy bloat often occurs and surface tension must be reduced by administration of oils, poloxalene or certain detergents etc. A veterinarian should be called as soon as appreciably bloated animals are noticed.

ARTHRITIS

Inflammation of a joint is the definition of arthritis. This is generally the response to a joint injury, although the cause is not always known. The production of fluid helps to lubricate the injured joint but is also responsible for pain and impaired function of the joint. Any joint may become inflamed but some joints are more susceptible than others. Arthritis can be divided into two different forms, infectious and non-infectious or degenerative. Dairy cattle are more prone to arthritis than beef cattle.

Infectious arthritis generally affects younger cattle. Bacterial or viral agents can be introduced into the joint by one of three ways: (1) a puncture wound penetrating the joint can quickly become inflamed, (2) an infection in an area next to the joint may cause swelling and interfere with the joint's movement, (3) or an infection from another part of the body may move to a joint. The best example of this spread from another part of the body is in newborn calves with an umbilical or navel infection. Treatment of this type of arthritis is done by controlling the infection by using poultices and drainage. Since many cases of infectious arthritis can be traced to navel ill, it is a wise practice to disinfect the navels of all newborn calves.

Non-infectious arthritis is a joint disease characterized by degeneration of the cartilage. The area surrounding the cartilage and bone becomes enlarged. Arthritis of this type may be in response to an injury such as a sprain, a dislocation, a fall, or an irritation to the joint when an animal is constantly lying on a hard surface. Weight bearing joints in older cattle are the ones most likely to be subjected to the greatest stress and become degeneratively arthritic. The natural response to an injury of this type is swelling, pain and altered function of the joint. Swelling from degenerative arthritis should not be assumed to be abscessed. Lancing this swelling could result in a lethal, systemic infection.

DON'T FORGET PLAN REVIEW

Don't forget about the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's review requirements when planning renovation or building projects at the dairy barn. Paragraph 59.03 of Pennsylvania's Milk Sanitation and Standards states in part: "Plans must likewise be approved before construction or extensive modification of manure storage system; installation of a bulk milk storage tank; installation of a milk transfer system on a dairy farm..." Its always a good idea to discuss any major building or remodeling project that relates to the milking herd with your milk inspector. Your inspector will know if plan submission is necessary and also may have some good suggestions for your project.

AUTOMATION BIG OR SMALL?

Last year at this time I had never seen a robot for milking cows. In March I witnessed first hand a prototype robot on a dairy research farm in France. I have also met with Dutch scientists and seen pictures and a video tape of a robot in operation milking cows on a research farm in the Netherlands. I am not particularly surprised that these events have taken place. What has been an awakening to me is the applications that are planned. Up until now I had imagined robots as devices to help big farms become bigger where milking parlors had 10 or 20 mechanical robots working away around the clock. The Dutch milking robot is planned for use by farmers with up to 80 cows. It is being developed by a consortium of public and private organizations.

The milking robot is part of a project to help keep the smaller Dutch farms competitive. The robot is combined with a computer feeding station. Whenever a cow visits the station, her record is checked as to when she was milked last. If its time to milk her again (many cows are milked 4 or more times a day) the robot goes to work. The advantage to the farmer is an increase in milk yield and less labor is required. If successful, the robot will allow a family farmer to handle 60-80 cows with less hired labor. This will make that farmer more competitive.

How many farms will have robots by the year 2000? I don't know. I do know that this experience has served to remind me that labor saving devices, mechanization and automation have the potential for helping keep our family farms in business. We need to remember this as we evaluate various new ideas. On any given day, the mechanical gutter cleaner and silo unloader helps more family dairy farmers than it does large corporate farms. This cooperative effort between government and industry should also remind us of the importance of working together to help keep Pennsylvania and US farms competitive. Its obvious to me that the Europeans plan to stay in the dairy business, world wide!

Family Enthusiastic About Dairy Farming

sary," says the younger Hess of RCMA. The father-son partnership were cooperative members before deciding to go the independent route with Johanna. Little in their relationship with their milk dealer has changed since joining RCMA.

Milk tests, hauling and quality work are handled by Johanna. The dealer also writes the regular milk checks. RCMA bargains for over-order prices and the money is passed on to each farmer as it is received by RCMA.

Neighbors want to know if the Hesses have any second thoughts on the "co-op" in RCMA. Not according to the younger Hess. "I think of RCMA as a farmer-owned operation doing business for farmers. It doesn't charge dues. And it can't assess me. That's all in the contract."

At current levels, the Hesses will receive more than $3,000 a year in RCMA premiums. Still, these premiums are running lower than expected due to the ongoing difficulties RCMA is having with Farmland Dairies and the need to increase RCMA membership in sections on New York and Pennsylvania.

"If the remaining independents join RCMA, we could see 40 to 50 cents per hundredweight," said RCMA President William Zuber. He said the organization is working hard to sign-up new members to join the more than 22,000 farmers who already belong to RCMA. During April, 43 dairy farmers joined RCMA.

Joe Hess Jr. likes the idea of farmers having a say in pricing their milk. He says RCMA premiums "help make up for lower federal order prices." He would also like to see more dealers offering quality premiums.

"By upgrading milk quality," the younger Hess points out, "dairymen can improve shelf life and increase sales." He also feels that protein pricing has a place in the farm income picture.

RCMA's leadership in paying over-order premiums — a total of more than $11 million in six months — has spawned many private dealer premiums. The Hesses get premiums from both RCMA and Johanna Farms.

"I've had calls from Farmland Dairies, but we weren't about to change handlers again," Joe Jr. says. "With RCMA you don't have to."

The Hesses don't do anything in halves. When they decided to go dairying in 1973, the farm team put up a 140-cow free stall barn and double eight parlor, all in one shot. Then they bought three herds to fill it.

Penn State plans were used in building the free stall barn and converting a tobacco shed. The farm team did most of the work.

It was a busy first year. Joe Jr. married Linda Wilson; father and son formed a partnership; and the Hesses hired Linda's dad as herdsman to keep them on track.

The partners own the cattle and machinery, and rent the land and buildings from Joe Sr. The herd is strictly grade with just a sprinkle of registered animals.

"You can't beat your own replacements," the young dairyman notes. The Hesses carry 120 heifers, grouping them according to age and size.

"Bringing cows together in 1973 created a lot of health problems," Joe Jr. recalls. "Homegrowns are acclimated and better adjusted."

"The only other animal on the farm is a dog," Joe Jr. says.

"And cats," adds Linda.

The Hesses feed cows a total mixed ration, with all corn and alfalfa home grown, protein bought in bulk. The latter includes wet brewer's grain, whole cottonseed and soybean meal.

Milkers are divided into two production groups, with top producers fed for 65 pounds production, and a second group for 40 pounds. In April, the Hesses were shipping 51 pounds per cow. Dry cows make up a third group.

Corn is the big crop, some 200 acres. It's blown into concrete stave silos as silage and high moisture ear corn. Some silage is baled, but most of the 65 acres is put up as haylage. Partners count on four cuttings every year, some years they get five. Fill-in crops include wheat and soybeans, both at 30 acres in 1987.

Joe Sr. agreed to go dairying, but he wasn't about to quit tomatoes. The Hesses contract 50 acres of a meaty, Italian-type tomato with Furman Foods of Northumberland, Pa., that ends up on pizzas and as spaghetti sauce.

PA Ayrshire Sale Provides Calves For Youth

BY BETTY KIEFFER

LEBANON — The PA Ayrshire Calf and Heifer Sale was held at the Lebanon Fairgrounds last month. The sale provided a nice selection of calves to 4-H and F.F.A. members and anyone else who wanted to purchase Ayrshire calves at reasonable prices.

PA Ayrshire President John Rodgers from Belleville welcomed everybody, especially new potential buyers and out-of-state visitors. John Rodgers also served as auctioneer. Pedigrees were read by Mr. Earl Keefer, a distinguished Ayrshire breeder from Millersburg. Charles Gable, another noted Ayrshire breeder from Elverson, was the third member of the sales selection committee and served as clerk of the sale.

Topping the sale at $625 was a junior yearling, Ridge View S. Sailor, from the herd of A. Ronald Martin, Mill Hall. She was purchased by Christopher Harding of Lebanon. Second through fourth high selling animals will be eligible for the summer yearling class at the upcoming dairy shows. The second high selling animal was consigned by Ardrossan Farms, Villanova, and was purchased by Mark Carter, Jr., from Towanda for $550. Third high selling heifer was purchased for $525 by Robert Vought, Meyersdale, Somserset County. This stylish heifer, Conebella Cim's Scarlet, was consigned by Donald Gable, Elverson. Rounding out the list of heifers selling for at least $500 was Timberlawn Reliable Annabel, a heifer consigned by Ann Young of West Grove and purchased by Mayme Button from Towanda. Topping the list of eight senior calves that were sold was Baytree Banner Cutie, consigned by Warren Thomas from Emlenton, and purchased for Jay Graybill, Belleville for $430. The high selling junior calf came from the herd of Sycamore-Meade owned by Earl Keefer and Donald Shetterly. This calf was purchased by Chris Blatt, an Ayrshire owner from Robesonia.

Topping the list of buyers was the Carter family, Mark, Jr. from Towanda and Mark, Sr. from Meshoppen. Collectively they purchased seven head. New buyer Mary E. Deaven from Newburg selected four Ayrshires. The Hardings of Lebanon selected three heifers, including the top seller of the sale. Laura Harding, the 1988 PA Ayrshire youth award winner was given an incentive award of $100 which was used towards the purchase of a calf at the sale. Laura selected the top selling intermediate calf to add to her herd.

John Rodgers, Robert Vought, and Carroll Decker also purchased three Ayrshires each.

The host sale committee consisting of Dale Maulfair, Wes Harding, and Shawn Hernley all from Lebanon County capably handled all aspects of fitting and presenting the calves for the sale.

A total of thirty-seven Ayrshire calves and heifers were sold for an average $326. All proceeds go into the PA Ayrshire youth fund to help pay for various Ayrshire awards and activities throughout the year.

Second high selling entry was from Ardrossan Farms, Villanova, and sold to Mark Carter Jr., Towanda, for $550. (L to R) Keefer, Rodgers, and Carter.

"There's a big difference between Goemar and the others!"

Hank Mroz, of T and V Farms near Delray Beach, Florida, has tried other crop stimulants. But, when he tried BM86 and MZ63 on his tomatoes, he became a "Goemar Grower."

Awarded the Jaycees prestigious "Outstanding Young Farmer of Florida for 1986," Hank says, "You must be innovative and constantly try to improve."

Listen to Hank as he explains why he is sold on Goemar: "With Goemar and its micronutrients the plants grow so much better. It helped us get good size and super yields, especially with the heat stress of the fall of '86. We got a decent first picking with other crop stimulants, but with Goemar the first picking is tremendous! And the second and third pickings still hold the size. That's where you make money. Before, on the last picking we'd get 60-70 bins on an 8 acre block, but with Goemar we got over 200 bins on our cherries. There's a big difference between Goemar and the others...and it's also simple — simple to use!"

Ayrshire Breeders To Host World Conference

BRANDON, VT — U.S. Ayrshire Breeders are preparing for a most exciting event to take place this fall. September 28th through October 14 they will be host of the Sixth World Ayrshire Conference. The conference, which is broken into three parcels is under the direction of General Chairman, Dr. Hilton Boynton.

The first parcel of the conference tour takes place in New York and Pennsylvania, starting September 28th with registration at the Penta Hotel in New York City. The first official event will be a reception welcoming our foreign guests hosted by the United States.

On Thursday morning the group will go to United Nations for breakfast and a tour of the building. From there they will take a cruise in New York Harbor to view our famed Statue of Liberty. Later in the day delegates will have time to "window shop" and dine at the restaurant of their choice.

Mrs. Edgar Scott will host the group on Friday at Ardrossan Farms, Villanova, PA. Ardrossan Farms is the top producing Ayrshire herd in the country with a herd average over 20,000 pounds on 100 plus head. Mrs. Scott has bred numerous 20,000 and 25,000 pound producers and six cows with the Ardrossan prefix have attained over 200,000 pounds of milk. In 1987 the Ardossan herd was honored at the annual meeting of the association with six 150,000 Pound Certificates, nineteen 800 Pound Fat Certificates, thirty-nine 20,000 Pound Certificates (35 with over 800 fat and 6 over 1000 fat), twelve 100,000 Pound Certificates, three Protein Awards, five 25,000 Pound Certificates, their 28th Constructive Breeder Award and the French Trophy for top production of herds of over 100 head.

In addition to the opportunity to view this outstanding herd and the lovely surroundings, the group will enjoy lunch courtesy of Mr. & Mrs. Scott.

The busses will load in the afternoon for a scenic drive to Lancaster, PA. Enroute to the hotel the group will travel through the Amish Country to see another facet of U.S. living.

Saturday, two outstanding Pennsylvania Ayrshire herds will be visited. The first on the schedule is Masonic Homes Farm, Elizabethtown. Masonic Homes is situated on 1730 acres and is diversified operation of general farm production, including 120 milking Ayrshires. Much of the farm's production is consumed by the 700 guests that make Masonic Homes their residence. Visitors will long remember the beautiful stone buildings of Masonic Homes as well as the fine Ayrshire herd. While at Masonic Homes, the staff will serve lunch to the conference delegates.

Charlie and Josie Gable & Family will host the conferees Saturday afternoon at their Conebella Farm, Elverson. This familiy farm is an outstanding representation of many American dairy farms. The 60-cow herd, housed in a tie stall barn, is known by Ayrshire breeders for outstanding test and longevity. The herd has won numerous production and type honors and in 1987 had 14 head over 800 pounds of fat. The ME herd average in 1987 was 17,211M 4.2% 730F.

On Sunday the group will enjoy a leisurely visit to Longwood Gardens. From there they will go to Philadelphia where they will depart by plane for Wisconsin.

In Wisconsin, numerous other delegates will join the conference for Parcel II. Highlighting the stay in Wisconsin will be World Dairy Expo, sight of the 1988 National Ayrshire Show. It is hoped that over 300 Ayrshires will be in Madison for this the first National Ayrshire Show since 1979.

Before the festivities at Expo get underway, the conference will be at the Concourse Hotel. The theme for the Conference is "Looking to the Future." The keynote address will be delivered by Gene Meyer, Managing Editor of Hoard's Dairyman the afternoon of October 3.

The two day conference will include directors meetings and presentations from Mr. Andrew Dunlop, Vice President of the World Federation of Ayrshire Breed Societies; Mr. Jouko Syvanjarui of the Finnish Animal Breeding Association; Mr. Harley Nicholson, Eastern Breeders, Inc., Ontario, Canada; Mr. Goran Malmberg, Swedish Association for Livestock Breeding and Production; Dr. George Seidel, Jr, Colorado State University and Mr. Graeme Knight, Sec./Manager of the New Zealand Ayrshire Association. In addition to the papers prepared by these men, a panel discussion will be held. Countries represented will be Australia, Kenya, United Kingdom, Canada, Finland and the United States.

October 2nd, the group will have the opportunity to visit The House on the Rock before going to World Dairy Expo where the Ayrshire show will commence at 2 p.m. After the heifer show, at approximately 6 P.M., the International Sale will be held in the coliseum featuring 20 select Ayrshires. Thursday the group will return to the Dane County Exposition Center for the conclusion of Ayrshire Show which will feature a parade of class winners before the crowning of the Champion of the show. In addition to the individual classes, the breeders herd and state herd classes will be staged.

After the show, time will be allowed for our guests to take advantage of the numerous other activities Expo offers including visiting the commercial exhibits.

The grand finale of events in Madison for the World Conference will be a banquet Thursday evening at the Concourse.

From Madison it's on to Iowa for a visit to a cavern, grain storage facility and to the dog races. Hopefully, Mother Nature will cooperate and the guests will be able to see the splendor of the fall colors on the Mississippi. It is hoped that we can give our foreign guests a well-rounded view of U.S. life, not only with Registered Ayrshires, but other aspects of farming and day to day life in our great country.

While in Iowa, the Zumbach family will host a hog roast as well as a tour of their Mid-Western Ayrshire farms. After the hog roast and entertainment, the group will leave for Cedar Rapids for lodging. From Cedar Rapids, delegates can continue to Parcel III to return to their homeland.

Those electing to continue their stay in the United States will be flown to Las Vegas for a day of "relaxation." The next day, the group will visit the Grand Canyon and Hoover Dam. The final destination for the group is Albuquerque, N.M., via Wupatki National Monument, Sunset crator, and the Petrified Forest.

In New Mexico, the group will be the guest of Shady Dale Farm, the operation of World Federation President Raymond Jarratt. The most leisurely part of the conference, time is allotted for visits to an Indian Cultural Center, museums, shopping and other activities.

The conference is a first for U.S. Ayrshire Breeders and has been supported through the sale of donated animals, donated semen and general contributions. Two hundred foreign guests from Kenya, New Zealand, Scotland, England, Finland, Sweden, Canada and Australia are expected to attend.

For more information on the World Ayrshire Conference, contact Ayrshire Breeders' Association, 2 Union St., Brandon, VT 05733.

Snyder Testifies On Farm Policy

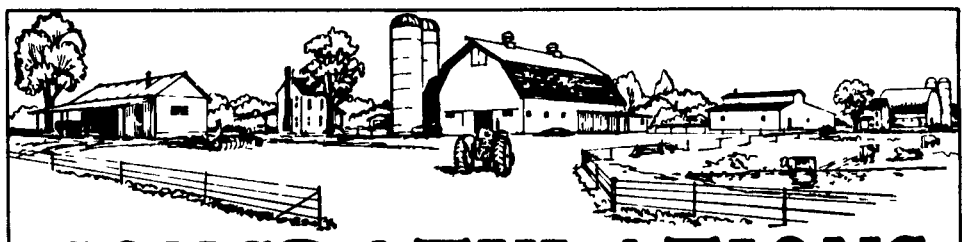
HARRISBURG (Dauphin) — A spokesman for the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association (PFA) recently testified on future farm policy before a meeting of the national Democratic Platform Committee at University Center.

Marvin Snyder, a Northumberland County egg and grain producer, testified on behalf of the statewide, voluntary farm organization which represents over 23,400 farm families. He outlined PFA's position on national farm policy, conservation, dairy programs, food safety and biotechnology.

Addressing national farm policy, Snyder said, "We favor a market-oriented agriculture with supply and demand rather than government action ultimately determining production and price." Snyder said PFA supports the "direction of the Food Security Act of 1985 and is opposed to modifications in the program that would change that direction away from the market-oriented goals of competitive loan rates, voluntary stock reduction programs and income supplement as farmers move toward a market-based agriculture."

As for government conservation programs, Snyder said PFA favors, "A federal program of cost-sharing through income tax credits for soil and water conservation practices and structures which contribute to enduring conservation and environmental enhancement by reducing the discharge of soil particles." PFA recognizes the importance of maintaining a productive soil resource, Snyder told the committee.

On other issues, Snyder told the platform committee that PFA favors a dairy price support program that will automatically bring supplies down to demand levels. The continued judicious use of farm chemicals and drugs was also supported by PFA. Snyder said, "Any undue curtailment of the safe and appropriate usage of these products will result in lower quantities of food and fiber at higher costs to consumers." Finally, Snyder said PFA supports the use of biotechnology as a research tool for agriculture.



CONGRATULATIONS

to the northeast dairy families working together to achieve success in the marketplace! Your recent efforts at securing the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agreement (RCMA) over order premium have attained a milestone with which to safeguard dairy income and hold intact our dairy-based food and farm system here in America's Northeast.

We, the undersigned secretaries and commissioners of agriculture, applaud your efforts toward achieving unity within the ranks of northeast dairy producers.
We further urge your continued diligence and wish you every success. Your actions toward retaining this important marketing opportunity secure a brighter future for all of us who work and participate in northeast agriculture.

and Brad Fischer called Musselman into a meeting to question the payment that had been made last August. Musselman said the meeting was so negative that he didn't think he could continue to be effective in his work for the county board.

While Breneman and Fischer said they only found out about the payment recently, it had actually gone through the county bookkeeping service for the firm's account. James Huber, Chairman of the County Commissioners, called the unexpected questioning by his fellows on attempt to undermind the county's farmland program by questioning the ethics of its chief administrator.

A check for the extra payment for services was drafted by the County Administrator, to Musselman, in care of James Jolly, then president of Friends. All three county commissioners had signed the check. At the time Robert Boyer was a commissioner in Breneman's place.

Friends was created to work hand in hand with the county board to obtain the same goals. Therefore no one thought about any possible conflict of interest by the payment. Daniel Herr, current Friends President, said that up until last Friday he didn't think anybody considered Friends anything but an auxiliary of the Ag Preserve Board. "There certainly was no intention to hide anything from the county," he said.

Musselman noted that Huber and Amos Funk, Chairman of the Ag Preserve Board, knew about the check, and Funk agreed. In fact he said he brought up the idea to the board to pay Musselman for services to Friends as a means to hold the administrator from taking better offers from other farmland preservation groups. By Tuesday, Friends announced it would hire Musselman as its full-time administrator when he leaves the county post.

Musselman came to Lancaster County in 1983 to head the growing farmland preservation effort. During his tenure, 62,000 acres were enrolled in ag preserves and thousands of acres were protected by anti-development deed restrictions, both purchased by the county and donated by landowners. "He'll be hard to replace," Funk said.

Later, the three commissioners appointed Karen Weiss, Musselman's assistant, to the post of acting executive director of the preserve board.

Ms. Weiss joined the staff in November 1986. She graduated from West Chester University in 1986 with a bachelor's degree in political science/international relations, and served an internship with the American Farmland Trust in Washington, D.C.

Millions Starve While Governments Pay Billions To Slow Farm Production

DES MOINES, IOWA — While hunger is seldom recognized as a leading cause of human death, the World Bank estimates that starvation claims the lives of more than 40,000 children eaeh day. Delegates gathering for the 1988 World Food Conference in Des Moines, Iowa, in just one month will seek solutions to this problem which has become more serious in recent years despite huge increases in worldwide food production.

"The problem is immense and has not abated in spite of growing worldwide food surpluses," says Stan Johnson, chairman for the 1988 World Food Conference scheduled for June 5-9. "The World Bank now estimates that approximately one-third of the world's population fails to receive enough calories each day for an active working life; about one-half of these, mostly children, experience stunted growth and serious health risks due to hunger; 15 million children die annually from starvation."

Delegates attending the 1988 World Food Conference face a far much more difficult challenge than those who attended World Food Conferences in Rome, Italy, and Ames, Iowa, during the mid-1970s, Johnson, an Iowa State University economist, explains. "In the mid-70s we were faced with hunger and a worldwide food shortage; we were concerned about increasing food production," he says. "Today, farmers — employing the latest technology and production innovations — have demonstrated their ability to produce far more food than is needed for all to enjoy ample nutrition. Yet, hunger and malnutrition have in fact worsened."

Johnson blames uncoordinated and ad hoc national economic policies throughout the world for the problem. These policies have generated huge surpluses and economic hardship within food surplus nations while doing little to solve the problems of hunger in those countries unable to meet their growing food needs, the economist says.

"While direct food air is vital as a short-run solution, more comprehensive answers are needed," Johnson says. "These solutions must deal with the overall world food production and distribution systems and must address the complicated interaction of monetary, fiscal, agricultural and trade policies of various nations.

"Hunger is a global problem needing a global answer. In a world progressively more interlinked, it is clear that agricultural and food distribution policies must be approached from an international perspective. It is toward this end that the 1988 World Food Conference is directed."

Johnson notes that top level delegations from many nations have now announced plans to participate in the conference. Included among those scheduled to deliver major policy addresses are: Vsevolod Murakhovski, First Deputy Chairman, Council of Ministers of the USSR and Chairman of GOSAGROPROM; Jaap Van Der Veen, Director General of Agriculture and International Development Cooperation, The Netherlands; Sjarifudin Baharsjah, Junior Minister of Agriculture, Republic of Indonesia; and Gerald I. Trant, Executive Director of the World Food Council, Rome. Others include William J. Byron, S.J., President of Catholic University of America; Lord Henry Plumb of Coleshill, President of the European Parliament; Solita Collas-Monsod, Secretary of Economic Planning, Republic of the Philippines; Robbie Mupawose, Former Secretary for Agriculture, Zimbabwe; Duane Acker, Assistant to the Administrator, USAID; Peter McPherson, Deputy Secretary of the U.S. Treasury; Representative E. "Kiki" de la Garza, Chairman, Committee on Agriculture, U.S. House of Representatives; and Clayton Yeutter, U.S. Special Trade Representative. Numerous others have prepared papers for the conference and will serve on panels for group discussions.

Those interested in attending should contact the World Food Conference office by telephone at 515/246-6028 or by Telex at 439-070-UD.

Sale Of State Owned Farms

HARRISBURG (Dauphin) — Money from the sale of any of Pennsylvania's 12 state-owned farms will be used to preserve prime farmland according to legislation sponsored by Senator Noah W. Wenger and unanimously approved by the Senate. The bill now goes to the Governor for his signature.

The farms were created to provide state hospital patients with labor-oriented activity for therapy. Several years ago, the farms were transferred to the Department of Agriculture, and today most of the land is leased for private farm use.

"Despite the Department's best efforts, some of these farms are in a deteriorated condition, and there is considerable interest in selling them," explained Wenger. "This bill will assure that any money obtained from the sale of state farm property will be used to better protect Pennsylvania's farmland."

According to Wenger, proceeds from the sale of state-owned farmland, equipment or facilities will be deposited into a special fund to support the Farmland Preservation Program. Last November, voters supported a $100 million bond issue to provide support for the preservation program. The money will be distributed to counties to purchase development rights to prime agricultural land from farmers volunteering for the program.

Although the bill stipulates that revenues from state farm sales will be used for farmland preservation, the State House of Representatives amended the bill to allow the funds from the sale of one state farm, Woodville State Farm in Allegheny County, to be used for improvements to the State Farm Show Complex.

"The Farm Show buildings are used by many in agricultural community particularly during Farm Show week," explained Wenger. "Many of the buildings are in need of renovation. This provision in the bill will provide funding for this project."

USDA's Report On Economic Development

WASHINGTON, DC — The U.S. Department of Agriculture issued its report on federal efforts to assist economic development in rural areas of the United States.

The report outlines rural economic development programs at USDA and at the U.S. Departments of Commerce, Defense, Education, Health and Human Services, Housing and Urban Development, Interior, Labor, Transportation, the Small Business Administration, Environmental Protection Agency and Veterans Administration.

USDA has been designated by the president's Economic Policy Council to lead federal initiatives targeted at revitalizing local rural economies. USDA's Office of Small Community and Rural Development, which prepared the report, is responsible for coordinating federal programs and activities aimed at rural revitalization through the development of financial, human and physical resources of rural communities.

Roland R. Vautour, undersecretary of agriculture for small community and rural development, said the cooperative federal efforts now underway are helping rural American communities regain economic stability, which had been disrupted by inflation during the late 1970s, the global economic recession and reduction in value of U.S. farmland in the early 1980s, and the increasing farm production capacity of other nations.

"In the past, rural economic development has been dependent on farm policy and income," said Vautour. "We now recognize that the future growth and stability of the rural economy is dependent on diversification at the local level, both in farm production and in the other business segments of community and state economies."

Vautour said rural revitalization efforts at USDA are organized under the department's Rural Regeneration Initiative, which is designed to make the most efficient use possible of existing resources in assisting economically depressed rural communities.

The Rural Regeneration Initiative is organized into six points: (1) providing education and training related to rural economic development; (2) forming Rural Enterprise Teams to assist specific redevelopment efforts at the state and local level; (3) establishing the Rural Information Center at USDA's National Agricultural Library to serve as a central clearinghouse and point of contact for information of value to rural development efforts; (4) targeting agricultural and economic research to assist rural development and diversificator; (5) re-directing Farmers Home Administration loans, grants and loan guarantees to smaller businesses in rural areas of high unemployment and troubled economies; and (6) providing effective overall management of USDA efforts under the Office of the Deputy Secretary of Agriculture.

Among the specific USDA activities cited by the report are: FmHA's business and industry, housing, and community-facility loan programs; FmHA loan-restructuring initiatives; leadership and business education and training programs of the Cooperative Extension Service; targeted research on rural unemployment, agricultural business opportunities, alternative crops and other subjects by the Economic Research Service and the Agricultural Research Service; the Resource Conservation and Development Program of the Soil Conservation Service; marketing research and direct technical assistance to local business development efforts by the Agricultural Cooperative Service; technical and administrative assistance in improving rural rail transportation and roadways by the Office of Transportation, including OT's Access Rural America Program; and human-resource programs and direct payments from forest receipts to rural counties by the Forest Service.

"These federal programs can help rebuild the resource base of rural communities at the local level, including the human, physical and economic components," said Vautour. "With this help, rural American citizens can re-establish economic productivity, if they draw upon their own strengths and look within their own communities to find the opportunities for growth in the future."

24th Cornbelt Classic Guernsey Sale Is Tops In 1988

COLUMBUS, OH — The 24th Cornbelt Classic, held Saturday, April 23, 1988 in West Union, Iowa, boasted a sale average in excess of $1,300. Sponsored by the Iowa Guernsey Breeders' Association, the sale topped all sales managed by Guernsey Marketing Service (GMS) in 1988 and reinforced the idea that high-quality, registered Guernseys are in demand and highly marketable. The sale was cried by Auctioneer Doug Wilson from Shawano, Wisconsin, and Michael Sprick, GMS Marketing Director, read pedigrees. Guernsey enthusiasts from five states purchased the 23 top-pedigreed animals consigned.

Delbert Smith and family of Decorah, Iowa, purchased the high-selling animal of the sale. Terrapin Ridge Rondas Rachael brought $1,875 to consignor Nicholas L. McCutcheon of Maquoketa, Iowa. The 83-point three-year-old cow had a high record of 14,110 pounds of milk and 608 pounds of butterfat in 327 days at two years, five months of age. Sired by Idle Neer Rondas Hornet, "Rachael" sports a January cow index of +720 pounds of milk and a herdmate differential of +3,538M +94F +110P.

High-selling open heifer distinction went to Haysetts Topstars Allegra from Richard Hays' Haysetts Farm in Odell, Nebraska. Tammi Hardie from Pierson, Iowa, paid $1,100 for the Maple Leaf Admiral Topstar daughter. The dam, Haysetts Fayette Andie, has a 305-day, mature-equivalent (ME) projection of 16,150M 846F.

Delmarva Poultry Exports Likely To Increase

A recent decision by the State of Maryland is expected to increase the amount of Delmarva chicken being exported through the Port of Baltimore. This is good news for the peninsula's poultry industry because it creates another market for the nearly 500 million birds raised here annually.

After nearly a year of work by DPI and interested poultry companies, the Maryland legislature and Department of Transportation have agreed to allow heavier than normal trucks to use designated routes to reach the Port of Baltimore if those trucks are carrying containers for overseas shipment. The 90,000 pound limit will be good for two years, with extensions possible if it can be shown that Delmarva's poultry industry has grown as a result of exports. The routes approved by the State of Maryland will allow trucks to travel from freezer facilities in Federalsburg and Cambridge to the Port of Baltimore.

DPI sought this overweight vehicle permit system to make Delmarva's poultry products more competitively priced in the export market. With the higher weight limits, a 52,000 pound load of poultry can be transported to Baltimore. The previous weight limit allowed only a 42,000 pound load. Exporters buy the chicken products in a container, regardless of weight. The truck freight cost and the ship freight cost are the same regardless of the weight of the container. By allowing more product in the container, the buyer gets more chickens per dollar. The price difference between the lower weight limit and the higher weight limit is about 2 cents per pound, a cost absorbed by the customers of the poultry companies. The customers have several options because of this 2 cents difference. 1) Not buy from Delmarva's companies because they cannot be competitive; 2) Reduce the price paid Delmarva's companies, an option that is not good for the local poultry companies; or 3) Keep buying from Delmarva's companies but not use the Maryland freezer facilities or the Port of Baltimore.

Why is it important to allow overweight poultry trucks to travel to Baltimore? The simplest answer is to make Delmarva's prices more competitive with other exporting areas. Other benefits are the creation of jobs on Delmarva as new products develop for the export market, increased business for the freezer facilities and the Port of Baltimore and lower overhead costs for the poultry companies. Because larger loads can be assembled for delivery to Baltimore, the poultry companies will be able to reduce their expenses because there will be fewer loading charges, scheduling charges, inspection charges and trips to Baltimore.

The elimination of the 2 cents per pound price difference means Delmarva's companies will be able to keep their export customers and expand their international trading.

USDA Changes Grain Loan Regs.

On January 29, USDA announced that 9-month producer loans for wheat, feed grains, and soybeans would not be extended. Grain in the Special Producer Loan Program maturing after March 1, 1988, will not be extended and may not enter the Farmer-Owned Reserve (FOR). Entry into the FOR is not permitted for 1987-crop wheat and feed grains. In addition, 1983-crop and prior-crop wheat, barley, and oats in the FOR will not be extended after March 1. One-year extension is available for 1984-crop wheat, barley, and oats in the FOR.

Packing Plants Operating Below Capacity

With cattle prices continuing to show strength and beef unable to get caught up, packers last week were again operating below peak capacity at many plants.

The Swift plant at Cactus, Texas, remained closed last week, but officials said reopening was being considered on a day-to-day basis.

The Texas Cattle Feeders Association (TCFA), its membership miffed by the closing at Cactus and the two-week shutdown of Excel's Friona, Texas, plant in early March, released a statement charging that packers were overstating the case on the short supply of cattle.

Jim Gill, TCFA's head market analyst, said the supply of March-April cattle in the Texas Panhandle was actually larger than a year ago.

But packers say it's not the supply of cattle in the south plains region that's bothering them, it's their inability to pass higher cattle along with higher beef prices.

In fact, Excel officials say that they've reduced hours at their northern plants, while plants in Texas and Dodge City continue operating on two shifts.

A Cattle-Fax analyst in Denver said last week that by the rule of thumb often used in the industry packers would be losing over $2 per hundredweight on cattle.

But he noted also that drop values on cattle have increased dramatically in recent months and that packers should be able to live with somewhat lower margins on the beef side of their business.

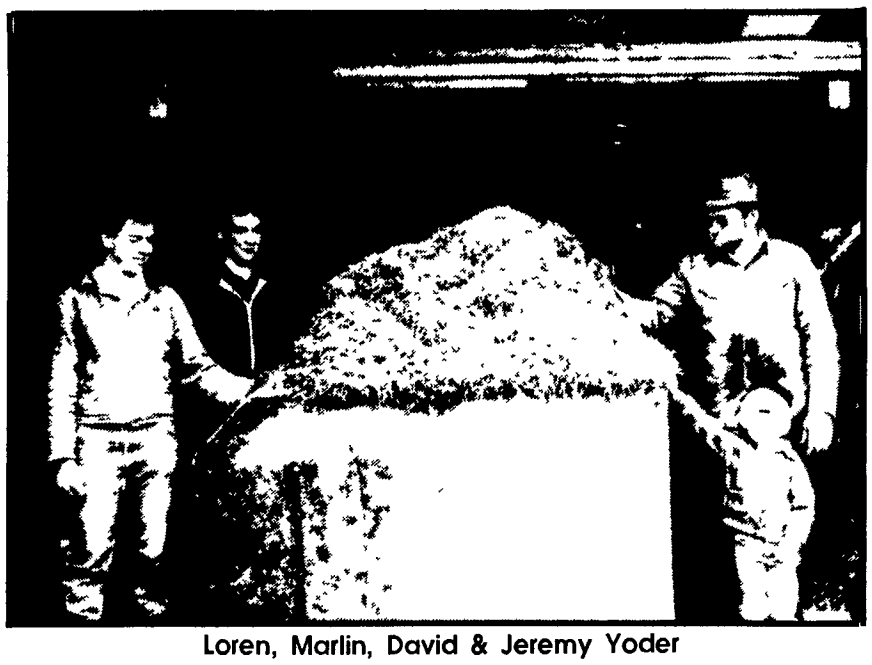
STRIKE IT RICH!

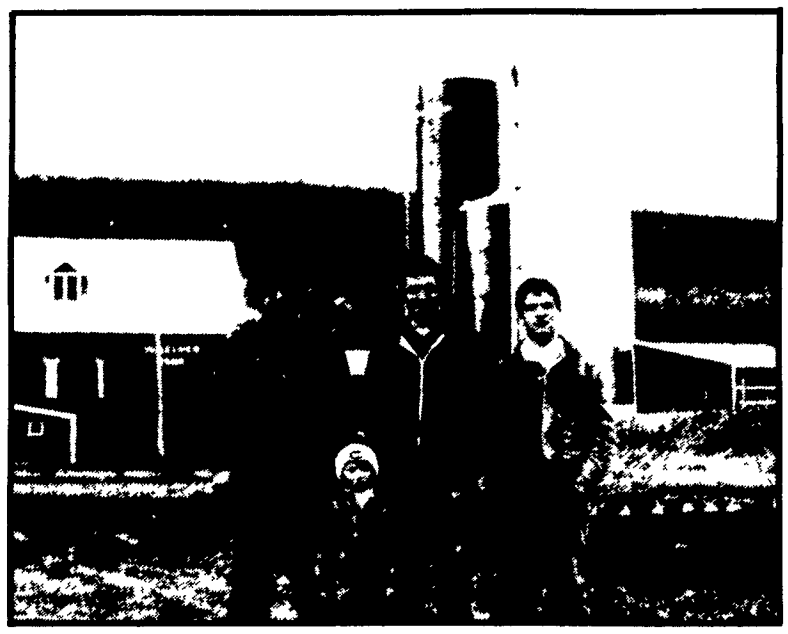
SELL IT WITH A LANCASTER FARMING CLASSIFIED



Loren, Marlin, David & Jeremy Yoder

"Feeding haylage out of our Harvestore system is more convenient and a lot less work than baling hay. With a Harvestore system you can always put fresh feed in the top and take fermented feed out of the bottom."

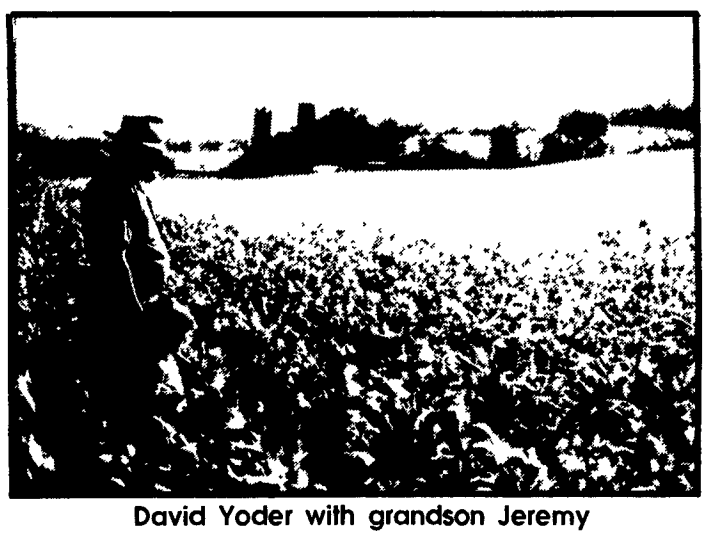
"Right now we are milking 77 cows and they are averaging 66 lbs. of milk per day. With our Harvestore haylage ration we had eight cows produce over 100 lbs. of milk and five others tested in the 90's on our last D.H.I.A. test."



"By feeding Harvestore® haylage this past year, we were able to cut our purchased feed bills and our butterfat reached a peak of 4%. That was the first 4% test we ever had!"

— DAVID W. YODER, VALLEY-VIEW FARM, McVEYTOWN, PA —

"Harvestore haylage makes a better feed than baled hay. We don't have near the waste with haylage. We used to take a lot of wasted hay out of the feed trough. Now with Harvestore haylage, we sweep out very little."



David Yoder with grandson Jeremy

"Last year, our first year with Harvestore haylage, we took off four cuttings from our fields. Always before on our baled hay program we could only get three cuttings. We fed orchardgrass haylage for eight months this past year and it averaged between 15% and 17% crude protein."

The results you may achieve with your Harvestore® System depend primarily upon your management skills and may vary from successful results achieved by others Any application to a particular farming operation requires the advice of qualified experts and is subject to limitations of good management, weather and other conditions present at the individual location

Mildred's Azaleas Dress Hillside With Color

By Joyce Bupp
York Co. Correspondent

DELTA (York) — The beautiful azalea your family gave you for Mother's Day is still covered with bright blooms. When they fade and fall, you plan to move the gift plant outside to a permanent location, hoping it might grow larger and blossom each May. But, where do you put that azalea so it will live up to expectations?

"Plant it away from your house foundation," advises Delta gardener and azalea enthusiast Mildred Schipper.

Most gift azaleas, she explains, are grown in the South, where temperatures are warmer and in soils of the proper level of acidity. Often, these spring-blooming gift shrubs are planted near a house foundation, where the concrete leaches lime, reducing the acidity of the soil.

"And then people say they just don't have any luck growing azaleas," Mildred adds with a smile.

Difficulty with growing azaleas has never been a complaint of this retired art teacher. The nearly 1,500 individual azaleas of almost 100 different varieties that thrive and bloom on her wooded, hillside lot attest to her green thumb talents. Through May and into early June, the Schipper home sits in the midst of a sea of blossoms in shades of white, pinks, rose and lavenders.

Though now surrounded by azaleas, Mildred Schipper reflects that these locally popular shrubs aren't grown in her native Iowa. However, she and her college professor husband had the opportunity to live in a number of areas of the country. It was in Tallahassee, Florida, where she first saw and became intrigued with azaleas, rhododendrons and camellias. When the couple moved on to Texas, she took cuttings along.

"They promptly died," she recalls.

But her interest was rekindled later when the Schipper family settled in Bethesda, Maryland. A friend there, who maintained an acre devoted to azaleas, frequently rooted and shared with Mildred cuttings of her prized cultivars. After several years of planting and nurturing those rooted cuttings, the landscaping on the Schipper quarter-acre lot presented an almost picture book appearance.

Searching for a lot on which to relocate and build their planned retirement home, the Schippers had agreed the site should meet several guidelines. Her husband wanted an unspoiled, hillside environment, while Mildred sought acid soil for her azaleas. Plus, the location had to be within a 100-mile radius of Bethesda.

The Delta wooded lot, surrounded by crop and dairy farms and 96 miles from their former home, fulfilled the Schipper's specifications. It further provided the ideal setting for the airy, open home of stone and wood they designed, and which blends aesthetically into the old oak and beech woodlot.

"I love the country," Mildred explains. "There's a freedom here.

It's also an ideal spot for azaleas, obvious to the Schippers by the related plants which already grew naturally on the hillside - wild azaleas, rhododendrons and laurel. Each year the crop of leaves, especially the abundant oaks, fall to blanket the ground with a heavy natural mulch, eventually breaking down and further enriching the naturally-acid soils.

Mildred's most prized azaleas, carefully selected specimens lifted from the Bethesda garden, formed the initial plantings when the house was complete. True to her own advice, none went too close to house foundations. However, the first beds were planted near the house and additional plantings have continuously enlarged the radius of shrubs which surround the home.

In the fourteen years since she has been developing her hillside azalea haven, the plantings have been largely of rooted cuttings, many from those started by Mildred from her Bethesda transplants.

Cuttings are usually rooted through air layering or by simply laying a long branch against the soil, and perhaps weighting it down with a rock. To air layer, Mildred nicks the bark of a branch, wraps the area of the nick with damp spaghnum moss and encloses it in aluminum foil. The foil holds moisture in the spaghnum and encourages roots to form at the "wound," while the branch continues to receive nourishment from the mother plant. When roots are formed, the branch is cut below the rooted area and replanted as a seedling.

Such small seedlings go into a protected rooting bed over the winter. The rooting bed is simply a rectangular raised, wooden frame, filled with the acid, woodland soil. One side of the frame is higher, allowing plastic to be stretched over the bed in a lean-to effect, providing the young plants additional protection during their first winter. By the next season, the small, rooted azaleas have hardened enough to withstand weather extremes.

Periodically, Mildred expands her collection with purchases of additional varieties. Naturally, the "pedigree" of azalea varieties added through purchase is carefully studied so that newcomers can withstand the sub-zero temperaturese, as well as occasional midsummer heat waves, which arrive in normal years. Color, bloom, and growth habits are also considered along with hardiness. Continuous bloom through the spring season is a goal kept in mind as well.

Certain hybrid strains developed over years of selection meet Mildred's pereferences. Japanese hybrids are hardy and low growing, some with four-inch blooms. Many of these plants are located on the edges of the beds, which are split by walkways for accessibility. Others of this low-growing habit thrive along the top of a high stone wall, built to terrace the hillside which curls around the back of the house, and provide a backdrop for a grassy patio-picnic area. The Gable hybrids, a strain of azaleas developed by a York County hybridizer and adapted to the area's environment, perform well for Mildred.

Because the woodlot soil is naturally acidic, and azaleas are generally pest free, Mildred spends minimal time on maintenance of the extensive plantings. In fact, the species' low demand for a gardener's attention is a key reason she plants them almost exclusively and is quick to recommend their culture to others.

In early spring, woodlot leaves which have piled up through the azaleas' branches through the winter are carefully removed with a rake. Some leaves may be shredded for mulch, which helps conserve moisture for the azaleas' shallow root systems. Because they are shallow rooted, ground covers are not favored by Mildred under her plantings. She also diligently prunes out the invasive roots of maples and beech, which

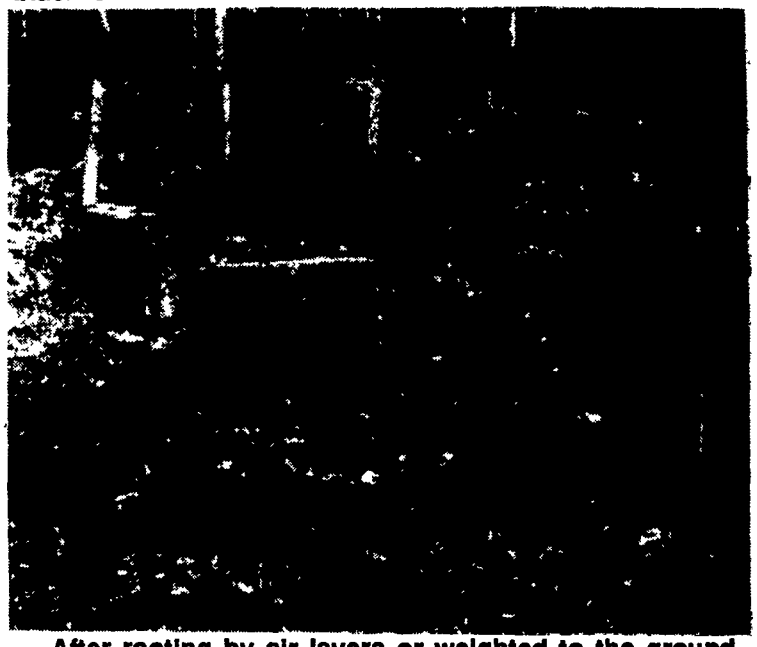
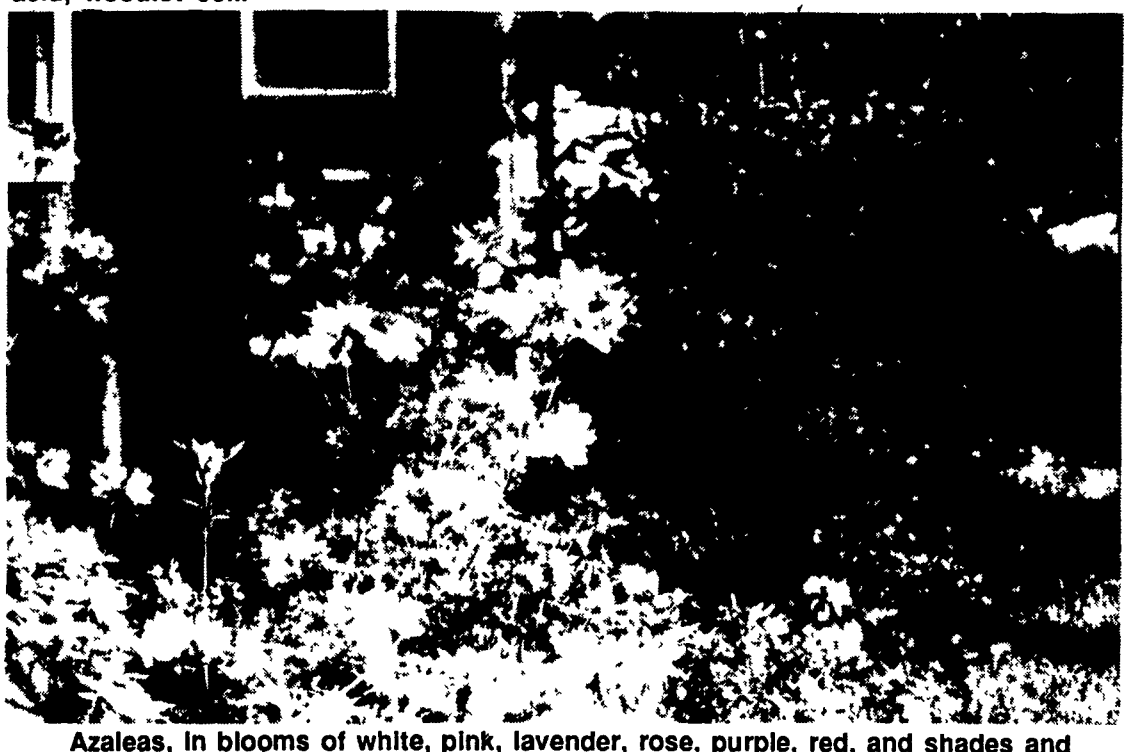
The mile of bluebird trail Mildred monitors begins in her azalea plantings. She cleans and maintains two dozen bluebird houses in that mile. On occasion, she's had to remove black snakes from inside the bird homes.



After rooting by air layers or weighted to the ground, azalea seedlings spend a winter in the raised, wooden starting bed. By the next season, the plants are ready for relocation to a growing bed, before being put in their permanent spot.

Earliest bloomer in Mildred Schipper's extensive plantings is a small-leafed rhododendron, covered with lavender flowers in late April. Like azaleas, rhododendrons thrive in acid, woodlot soil.



Azaleas, in blooms of white, pink, lavender, rose, purple, red, and shades and blends in between, keep Mildred Schipper's woodland hillside a riot of color through the month of May.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

I like to run.

There's a feeling of freedom in heading out the road, breeze blowing lightly through one's hair, dog trotting companionably nearby. Running offers a satisfying sense of release, pounding away the fatigue from daily routine busyness and frustrations with each football that solidly makes connection to the ground beneath.

My running is neither far nor fast. I slow down and walk when the mood strikes or breath grows short. It's done on an erratic schedule, fit in whatever days it suits. I'm neither marathoner nor martyr about the whole thing, aiming at a pleasurable, rather than a painful, form of exercise.

Preferable time is early evening, around dusk, after the barn chores are finished. The countryside is still, the stars coming out, and perhaps the moon is just beginning to peek over the Keeney's hayfields on the horizon. Warmth of daytime sunshine is giving way to the cooler temperatures of sundown. (In winter, it's downright cold.)

But, I never fail to come back through the front door refreshed, relaxed, clearer of head, and with a more reflective viewpoint on whatever wacky, way-out, major and/or minor farm or household snags developed over the day.

So, for goodness' sake, why can't I seem to find — or make — more time to run?

On the other hand, come to think of it, maybe there's no real need. Because, rare are the days when I don't get such exercise running the role of the family "beeper."

This position as a beeper equates to a slightly less technical version than that found in those micro-tech square jobs which are carried on a belt or in a pocket, and activated by a phone electronics signal. Our farm beeper is activated, not by electronics, but by two ratty-sneaker-clad feet which propel messages from the office phone to miscellaneous sites around the farmstead.

We activate the sneaker-run beeper for any number of varieties of messages, with priority emphasis on emergencies. Any breakdown in the field with equipment, calling for specific parts (tire tube, super-size wrench, replacement bearing, new belt, or forgotten refill can of fuel) gets hasty beeper response.

More than three animals reported on the outside of a fence at a given spot, but especially close to a highway, also goes on priority beeper status. Schedule-change messages to visiting vets or equipment repair technicians, as well as field directions for fertilizer spreader trucks, too, constitute a "drop what you're doing and run" alert.

For whatever reason the beeper must activate, it had better hit the pavement with sneakers revved in high gear and not get winded easily.

Visiting specialists, i.e. the vet, milker equipment technicians, and machinery mechanics, can generally be located in a 50 to 500-yard sprint.

It's the Farmer himself who stretches beeper endurance to the huffing-puffing limit by locating himself in obscure hiding places. His Red Alert messages entail a beeper run on a circuit from the dairy barn office to the silo unloader, to the shop, to the feeding equipment room and maybe out to a distant field. For this last, due to time constraints, we cheat and run in a two, three or four-wheeled vehicle.

He will, if found at all, naturally be in the last site checked. He'll assess the problem at hand, render a decision, map a game plan and lay out instructions, allowing a good ten seconds for the beeper's sneaker soles to cool down. Meanwhile, she gulps breaths of fresh air for the return trip to the phone. Beeper runs just aren't as relaxing as recreational runs.

But, our beeper desperately needs retooling. Its running shoes are shot.

Mildred's Azaleas

sap moisture from the azalea beds.

As small plants develop and mature in her growing "patches," Mildred moves them into selected spots in establishing plantings or new areas she clears, often terracing with rows of leaves to control washing. By careful digging and lifting of the shallow root ball, and dragging it to the selected planting location on a flat scoop shovel, she can move even large specimens with minimal soil loss.

Only during extremely hot, dry periods of summer weather are the azaleas watered. Wilting leaves on the shrubs trigger Mildred to stretch hoses to the plantings and provide a thorough, evening soaking. Most critical weeks are in August and September, when the flower buds are formed for the next blooming season.

"But, I prefer to mulch with natural, shredded oak leaves than to artificially water," she emphasizes.

"And, when rain is predicted, I move a lot of plants," she claims as her plan of action to avoid the extra labor of watering relocated azaleas.

The pleasure Mildred derives from her "lawn" of azaleas is obvious. She knows their variety names, color of bloom and growing habit, many without looking at the markers she devises from disposable aluminum food and baking containers.

"They all have personalities, like children," Mildred says of her prized plantings. "I was only going to plant a few, but it's like Topsy - it just grew and grew. They give me a great deal of pleasure; I like to walk out in the early morning sunshine when they're blooming, with a cup of coffee, and just enjoy them."

Judiciously placed floodlights allow for nighttime enjoyment of the plants at the peak of bloom as well. And, each year during the season of azalea bloom, as many as one hundred friends and visitors drop by to enjoy the beauty Mildred Schipper has created on this Muddy Creek hillside.

Even more are expected to view the blossoms this year. The Southern York County Garden Club, of which Mildred is an active member, will hold a day-long, mini-flower show June 7 in her spacious art studio-basement. Primarily planned as a learning experience for new members, the show is open to public attendance, and will be judged and critiqued by accredited judges.

When not working with the azalea plantings and garden club activities, Mildred might be found at her word processor, compiling a book on her family's history. Ten years of spare-time work have resulted in extensive records tracing the roots of her Norwegian family tree back to 1607.

Working with her brother, she's studied microfilmed records from the exttensive genealogical data available through the Mormon church headquarters in Utah. A trip to Norway in 1976 focused on the town from which her father had emigrated at age 6 and a few names and addresses of Norwegian cousins. Plus, among her treasured possessions is a family wedding remembrance certificate, containing old church and marriage dates and names. Using these sparse clues and history tracked through lengthy searches of church and municipal records, Mildred continues to fill in gaps of her heritage.

"My winters are really very short," she laments. "I just don't have enough time."

For the next few weeks, however, genealogy rounds and her art studio will be mostly abandoned. Instead, the "few" azaleas Mildred Schipper set out to plant will claim her undivided attention, dressing this quiet green hillside into a riot of color.

Tips For Travelers

Many of you will be packing for vacations in the coming summer months. Packing for a trip is never easy and one of the most common mistakes is packing too much. I want to share some tips with you that will lighten the load for any trip, business or pleasure.

Travel light by planning for each day you will be away ahead of time. Think in terms of a small number of garments by selecting separates, coordinated around a basic color or two that can be mixed or matched for a variety of different looks. With separates, you can also dress in layers to compensate for temperature changes or travel to different climates.

Avoid clothes that wrinkle and need special care to look good. Bulky items should also be left at home, since they take up precious packing space.

To ensure your pared-down wardrobe will wear well on the trip, take a small box or bottle of laundry detergent for handwashing that can be done in a sink. The garments to be washed should be of easy-care fabrics that can be dried and worn with no ironing.

Like any bottles that may leak, such as medications and toiletries, place the bottle of laundry detergent in a sealable plastic bag. As a precautionary measure, carry bottles in a bag that does not contain clothes.

Consider taking two small suitcases instead of a large one, which is difficult to carry. One suitcase, preferably a carry-on bag, is ideal to avoid lost luggage and time spent in checking in and picking up baggage when you are flying. But if checking bags is unavoidable, a portable luggage cart makes baggage handling easier.

Pack a change of clothes in a carry-on bag just in case checked bags are lost or temporarily delayed.

To help ensure that lost luggage will be returned to you, attach labels to the inside as well as the outside with your name and office address. (Try to avoid using your home address since your absence is an invitation for burglars). Be certain to remove all old baggage claim checks. Another precaution: Write a list of the contents for each piece of luggage so that making claims for lost bags will be easier.

Carry all your important documents like traveler's checks, passports, tickets and a copy of the list of contents for each piece of luggage in hand-carried luggage. The same rule should follow for jewelry and any other valuables. Wear the jewelry you want on the trip all the time. That way you will not have to bother with hotel safes. Locking valuables in a suitcase left in a hotel room is not advisable since it simply is not safe.

When packing any small appliances for use in countries overseas, be sure the appliances are compatible with the voltage of the countries, generally 220 volts. Some appliances are designed with dual voltage settings of 220/110 volts. If not, converters are available to handle the voltage differentials. Wall plugs also vary in the number and size of prongs. Prepare for this situation by packing a set of plugs with the appliances.

Restoring Glassware

Glass that is used in bakeware, cookware, coffee makers and microwave cookware may develop a cloudy, spotted or streaked appearance. This is usually caused by hard water.

Restore the glassware using the following method. Soak the items in a vinegar-water solution, ½ cup vinegar to a gallon of water. Then wash in a detergent solution and hot water, rinse.

A vinegar treatment to remove spotting and filming can also be accomplished in your automatic dishwasher. Start by putting the dishwasher load through a complete wash and rinse cycle. Remove all metal items such as flatware and pans. Pour 2 cups of white vinegar in a container and place on the bottom rack of the dishwasher. Then run the load through a complete cycle.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Yesterday I traveled to New York City with a group of people from our church. We spent the day at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. We had gone especially to see the Dutch and Flemish paintings from the Hermitage in Leningrad, U.S.S.R.

Afterwards, we saw the galleries of Chinese paintings with their delicate scrolls of landscapes and flowers. These handscrolls were hundreds of years old and were painted on bamboo, silk or paper. Many hand-held silk fans were also shown.

We enjoyed the Egyptian, Greek and Roman art and the Japanese exhibit. However, the American Wing and the English Period rooms were something that I could relate to more easily.

Simply being in New York City is an experience. As our bus proceeded slowly up Madison Avenue and on to Fifth Avenue, we had to study not only the skyscrapers but also the people scurrying along the streets. Some of the women wore ankle length dresses while others had hems that were mid-thigh. There were many nationalities and at the museum we heard many languages being spoken.

All in all, it was quite a contrast to nearby Central Park which extends from 59th Street to 110th Street. This 845 acres of lakes, wooded areas, public zoo and playgrounds is surrounded by a big city and yet one can get the feel of "country."

One day I am in a big city and yet, just the day before, I was hoeing my 100 new strawberry plants in my garden along the Conestoga River. In the evening I took my fishing pole back of the barn and caught two small fish while watching an Amishman and his little children plant watermelons in a big field. It was a peaceful and quiet scene compared to busy honking taxies in New York City. I know that I prefer the countryside and its calm to the bustling city.

The thrill of the grill calls to Americans each summer. Cooking out-of-doors is more fun than being cooped up in the kitchen, and willing hands to help are more easily found. It doesn't matter if the grill is on a patio or porch, a deck, balcony or fire-escape, in the neighborhood park, on the roof or at the beach. Delightful odors fill the air, appetites freshen, and eating takes a festive flair.

Enjoy the recipes submitted by adapting them to your gas or charcoal grill. And for a personal viewpoint on charcoal versus gas, read the article "Charcoal Grilling Offers Versatility" by Lynne Rossi. CHEESY POTATO-CARROT FOIL BAKE

4 slices bacon
3 large potatoes
3 medium carrots, shredded
¼ cup sliced green onions with tops
Salt
Pepper
¼ cup butter

A summertime meat and potatoes dinner doesn't have to mean spending hours at the stove. A minimum of indoor preparation time can result in a marvelous outdoors meal.

½ teaspoon caraway seed
1 cup shredded Monterey Jack cheese (4 ounces)

Cook bacon until crisp; drain and crumble. Set aside. Tear off a 36x18-inch piece of heavy-duty foil. Fold in half to make an 18-inch square. Fold up sides, using fist to form a pouch. Thinly slice potatoes into pouch; add carrots and green onion. Sprinkle with salt and pepper; dot with butter and sprinkle with caraway. Fold edges of foil to seal pouch securely, leaving space for expansion of steam. Grill over slow coals until finished, 55 to 60 minutes; turn several times. Open package; stir in crumbled bacon and cheese. Close pouch; return to grill until cheese melts, about 1 minute. Serves 6.

If you're reading the paper, you'll notice that many counties are searching for young women to compete for the dairy princess crown.

During the months of May and June, more than 40 new county princesses will be chosen to represent the dairy industry at supermarkets, schools and promotionals.

Jenny Bigelow, Blair County Dairy Princess, faithfully submits recipes using real dairy products to this column. This week she submitted a recipe that is not typically categorized as a dairy recipe. But it again illustrates how dairy products can enhance almost any dish. Enjoy it.

Charcoaled Halibut Steaks

½ cup shredded unpeeled cucumber
½ cup dairy sour cream
¼ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
1 tablespoon snipped chives
2 teaspoons lemon juice
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
2 pounds fresh or frozen halibut steaks or other fish
¼ cup butter
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
Paprika

Blend shredded cucumber with sour cream, mayonnaise or salad dressing, chives, lemon juice, the ¼ teaspoon salt, and the dash pepper. Mix well and chill sauce.

Thaw fish, if frozen. Cut into 6 portions. Place in well-greased wire grill basket. In saucepan melt butter; stir in the 1 teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper.

Grill fish over medium-hot coals for 5 to 8 minutes, brushing with butter mixture occasionally. Turn and baste with remaining butter mixture. Grill until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork, 5 to 8 minutes more. Sprinkle fish with paprika and serve with chilled cucumber sauce. Makes 6 servings.

Outdoor Cooking:

GRILL-TOP GARDEN POT-ROAST

3 to 4-pound beef blade roast or 7-bone pot-roast
1 package Italian salad dressing mix
¼ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon paprika
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 cups thinly sliced carrots
2 cups sliced zucchini, cut ¾ -inch thick
½ teaspoon salt

Combine salad dressing mix, flour, 1 teaspoon salt, paprika and pepper; thoroughly dredge meat on both sides. Place meat in center of a double-thick rectangle of heavy duty aluminum foil (twice the circumference and 8-inches longer that roast). Sprinkle any remaining flour mixture over meat.

Bring 2 opposite edges of foil together over top of meat. Fold edges over 3 or 4 times, pressing crease in tightly each time. (Allow some air space.) Flatten foil at one end, crease to form triangle and fold edge over several times toward package, pressing tightly to seal. Repeat procedure on other end. Place on grill and cook at low to moderate temperature 1½ hours, turning after one hour. Remove foil packet from grill; open carefully and add carrots and zucchini. Sprinkle ½ teaspoon salt on vegetables. Close foil, sealing securely. Place on grill (vegetable side up) and continue cooking 30 minutes or until meat and vegetables are done.

HONEY GLAZED PORK CHOPS

4 to 8 pork chops
Sauce:
2 tablespoons vinegar
½ cup honey
2 tablespoons minced onion
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon celery seed
1 clove garlic, minced
Salt and pepper
1 8-ounce can tomato sauce

Combine all ingredients for sauce. Simmer about 20 minutes. Brown pork chops on both sides, basting often with sauce. Cook until tender. After the chops are browned, you may wish to put foil between them and the grill and continue cooking and basting.

CHILI CORN

½ cup butter
¼ cup chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon chili powder
6 to 8 ears corn

Whip butter until light and fluffy. Stir in green pepper, pimiento, salt and chili powder. (Yield: 1 cup). Place each ear of corn on a square of double thickness heavy duty aluminum foil. Spread with about 2 tablespoons butter mixture. Wrap securely in foil, twisting ends. Roast directly on medium coals 10 to 15 minutes, turning once.

PICNIC POTATO SALAD

2 pounds red boiling potatoes
1 cup dairy sour cream
8 slices bacon, cooked and crumbled
2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
2 teaspoons prepared horseradish
1 teaspoon Dijon-style mustard
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
Snipped fresh chives, if desired

Boil potatoes in salted water until tender, but still firm (cooking will vary with size of potato). Drain well and pat dry with paper toweling. Cool potatoes. Do not peel. Cut into thin slices. Combine sour cream, bacon, lemon juice, horseradish, mustard, salt and pepper. Gently toss with potatoes. Chill, covered, 1 to 2 hours to allow flavors to blend. Sprinkle with chives before serving.

ANSWER - L. Spangler requests a recipe for marinated mushrooms. Thanks Kathy Bowman, Myerstown, for sending "the best one you ever tried."

Marinated Mushrooms

1½ pounds vinegar
2 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon minced garlic
½ teaspoon oregano
4 tablespoons oil

Bring all ingredients except oil and mushrooms to a boil. Add oil and pour mixture over mushrooms. Set in refrigerator for about one day before serving.

ANSWER - Stephanie Sudal, Pine Island, N.Y., requests a recipe for large chocolate chip cookies. Thanks Anna Martin, Reinholds, and Jeanette Foster for answering this request. I am printing both, however, I think Stephanie wants a recipe for the pizza-sized cookies that are sold in bakeries. If anyone has one, please send it to us.

Chocolate Lover's Cookies

2 cups flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
¾ teaspoon salt
1 cup butter, softened
¾ cup firmly packed brown sugar
½ cup granulated sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 egg
¼ cup sour cream
1⅓ cups semi-sweet chocolate chips
1 cup coarsely chopped nuts

Mix flour with baking soda and salt. Cream butter. Gradually beat in sugars and continue beating until light and fluffy, about 5 minutes. Blend in vanilla, egg, and sour cream. Gradually add flour mixture, beating until smooth. Stir in chips and nuts. Using scant ¼ cup for each, drop onto ungreased baking sheets, 2-inches apart. Bake at 375 degrees for 12 minutes or until lightly browned. Carefully remove from sheets, cool on racks. Makes 2 dozen large cookies.

Monster-Size Chocolate Chip Cookies

1 cup flour
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup margarine
¾ cup sugar (brown and white combined)
½ teaspoon vanilla extract
1 egg
6 ounces semi-sweet chocolate bits

In a small bowl combine first 3 ingredients and set aside. In a larger bowl, cream margarine and add sugar and vanilla. Beat in the egg. Gradually add flour mixture. Mix well. Stir in chocolate bits (I also add walnuts). Use an ice cream scoopful of dough and space 3-inches apart on ungreased cookie sheet. Be sure to lightly flatten the batter so that it spreads evenly. Bake one cookie sheet at a time in 375 degree oven for 10 minutes or until lightly browned. Makes nine 5-inch cookies.

Recipe may be multiplied by 4 and frozen with good results.

Charcoal Grilling Offers Versatility

BY LYNNE ROSSI
Special to Lancaster Farming

LITITZ (Lancaster) — While standing in line at the local grocery the other day, I observed a young couple purchasing a large bag of charcoal briquettes and a plastic container of lighter fluid and was reminded that one of these days soon I'll too be wanting to roll out the outdoor charcoal grill, dust it off and fire it up for another season of outdoor cooking.

I will say I'm well aware that a growing number of people are investing in gas grills, and there certainly are a large number of models. As a matter of fact, they overwhelm me in their variety and complexity!

And maybe that's one reason I'm wary of them and continue to grill in this old-fashioned way. Furthermore, I'll be honest and say that a gas grill frightens me a bit, largely because of that initial poof! that indicates the gas flame has been lit. I've also observed that chefs of all abilities tend to overcook the meat, particularly, because the intensity of the heat is so difficult to control in a gas grill. Come to think of it I never observed anyone cook anything other than meat on a gas grill.

Therefore, until someone shows me that gas grills are indeed easy and versatile to use, I'll stay with my trusty charcoal method that at present is challenging enough.

A charcoal grill with a lid is, of course, more versatile than one without for two reasons: First, by closing the lid, one can achieve a more even cooking temperature; and secondly, when the cooking has concluded, one can close the lid and the vents and thus save a portion of the briquettes for future use. Otherwise, uncovered coals burn themselves out.

However, one can simulate a covered grill by laying a large piece of heavy foil over the food in order to form a tent of sorts.

One method of grill cooking is really quite clever and may not be well-known or easily done with certain grills. And that is as follows: Prepare your charcoal fire in the conventional manner -- all vents open. Be generous with briquettes and fluid to insure a good, hot fire. Wait until the flames die down, about 20 minutes, and then with long tongs place all of the coals around the perimeter of the fire bed. Then in the very center of all the coals place an extra 8x8 or 9x13 disposable aluminum pan and push the coals tightly around it.

Place your rack, and directly above the disposable pan place your roasting chicken breast. Baste it with the oil of your choice and/or mix soft butter or margarine with chopped parsley and/or chives and gently brush this mixture between the actual meat and the skin so that it will slowly melt over your breast as it cooks.

If you can visualize this procedure, you'll know it's done this way to keep foods from burning and to prevent flare-ups. Thus, any grease from your meat drips into the disposable pan instead of onto the live coals. It doesn't require careful attendance either.

Don't expect that real charcoal flavor that you get with food cooked directly over the coals. However, it is quite a clever and challenging way to keep the heat and you out of the kitchen.

Determining doneness isn't so easy as indoor oven cooking. I invested in an instant reading thermometer that at least gives me some idea when my meat is ready to be eaten.

Use this same procedure with other poultry and meat-- eye round roast, pork roast, ham or turkey. Be sure to add briquettes if your cooking time is going to be extended.

When someone mentions charcoal grilling, I think of steak. To me it's so much better cooked in this manner than in the kitchen broiler. Once again, determining the proper degree of doneness can be tricky. Cutting into the meat, no-no that it is, is my only method and not a very reliable one at that!

For sale for the first time this spring, I've seen "steak buttons," three to a pack for about $13. They resemble little thermometers with a sharp point on one end for pushing into the side of the steak and on the other end a gauge that indicates well, medium or rare. Granted, not cheap little gadgets, but if they work, there's a little less guesswork in grilling steaks.

Following is a recipe for Herb Marinated Steak that I plan to try.

⅓ cup red wine vinegar
⅓ cup soy sauce
⅓ cup Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon dried basil
¼ cup light brown sugar, firmly packed
1 teaspoon oregano
1½ pounds boneless sirloin steak approximately 1 inch thick.

Combine all ingredients except steak in flat dish. Add steak. Marinate 30 minutes at room temperature. Reserve marinade. Broil 4" from heat, 7 minutes for rare, 8 minutes medium, approximately. Turn steak and brush with marinade. Broil 7-10 minutes until desired doneness. Serves 3-4 people.

Vegetables do just as well on the grill as meat, but, of course, need less cooking time as a rule. One of the easiest methods of preparation is to wash the vegetable, prepare it in the usual manner for its type and then wrap it securely in heavy foil along with complementary additions, usually salt, pepper and butter. This manner of cooking lends itself to just a little bit of experimenting. For example, add a little lemon or orange peel to the carrots, or a few leaves of lemon balm, a little bit of spearmint with the peas, parsley or dill with the new potatoes. Even a solid cookbook chef like me sees any number of possibilities!

Depending on the vegetable and the intensity of the heat, cook 20-25 minutes on the grilling rack. Also turn the packet 2 or 3 times for even cooking.

To round out a meal of charcoaled meat and vegetables, why not go all the way with some bread? The recipes are many, but one of my favorites is Parmesan Slices.

½ cup grated Parmesan cheese
¼ cup French bread
1 tablespoon poppy or sesame seeds

Mix cheese and butter; spread on both sides of bread slices. Sprinkle with seeds. Grill approximately 5-6 inches from medium coals, turning once, until golden brown 6-8 minutes.

Browning bread directly over the fire invites burnt toast so watch it carefully, or use a recipe that

Horsing Around On Wishful Acres

BY LISA RISSER

MANHEIM (Lancaster) — Many children fall in love with the grace and beauty of a horse and dream of owning a whole stable of the delightful animals. But only a few realize this dream. Holly Wolgemuth held onto her dream and now owns Wishful Acres with her husband Dennis.

Currently home to three Arabian horses, a Morgan horse, and a Welsh pony, Wishful Acres is a training stable as well as a boarding place for equines. Holly will break and train any breed of horse, but shows only Arabians.

"I chose Arabians because they are a versatile breed," she explained. They are everything from a jumper to a working stock horse. Also, everything they do is natural, such as the way they carry their heads and tails up. On Standardbred horses they clip nerves so the tail will stand up. On Arabians this is natural."

Holly's experience with Arabians extends back to the year she was 14 and was given an Arabian yearling, Miss Moonshine. Holly broke and trained Miss Moonshine herself.

Holly learned how to train a horse by helping her neighbor work with Welsh ponies and attending demonstrations. In addition, "ever since I was a kid, I had read everything I could get a hold of," she related. "If I had any questions I would go to trainers for the answer." Some of the trainers Holly met while working at horse farms such as Senora Farms in Manheim and Kellori Stables in Brickerville. She met others through notices in tack shops.

In breaking an Arabian or Morgan for riding or driving, the first step is taken just weeks after the horse is born. The animal is touched and brushed to accustom it to being around and being handled by humans. After a time, a halter is put on and then a lead attached to teach the young animal to respond

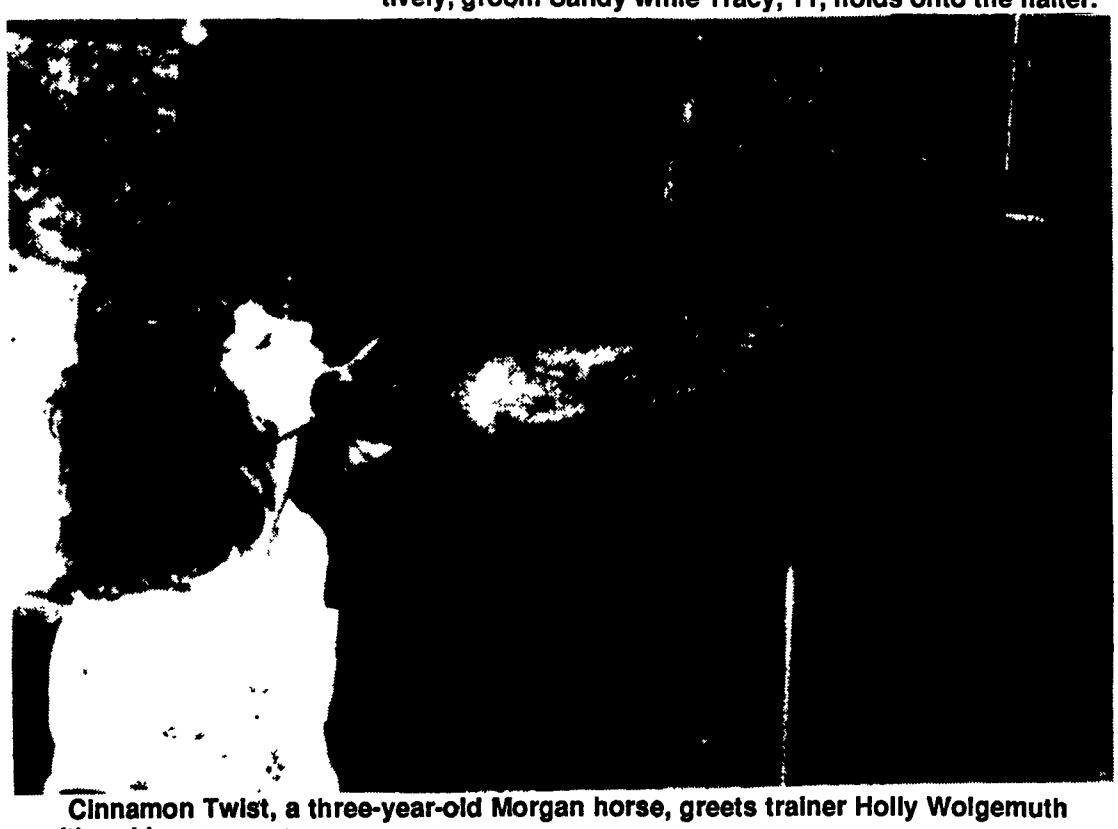
Wish is the farm's newest member. Holly has named the filly Moon Rocks Wish, pending acceptance with the Arabian Horse Association. Moon comes from the filly's dam, Miss Moonshine; Rocks comes from the sire, Elza Rock; and Wish comes from the farm name, Wishful Acres.

Dennis's nieces and nephew came for a visit and helped groom Sandy, a Welsh pony that Holly has owned for many years. Amy and Derick Bollinger, 9 and 4 years old respectively, groom Sandy while Tracy, 11, holds onto the halter.

Holly and Dennis purchased the farm in 1985 and have developed it into a training and boarding stable for all types of horses.



Cinnamon Twist, a three-year-old Morgan horse, greets trainer Holly Wolgemuth with a kiss.

Dairy Princess Goes Bananas

Patty Dunkleberger, Cumberland County Dairy Princess, left, dipping ice cream at Selinsgrove for the 4.5 mile banana split.

Patty Dunkleberger
Cumberland Co. Dairy Princess

SELINSGROVE (Snyder) — Did you know I went bananas on Saturday, April 30? Yes, along with 20,000 other people in Selinsgrove.

Four of us from Cumberland County motored to the little town of Selinsgrove, a community of 3,800 residents. We helped to make the 4.5 mile banana split that will put them in the 1988 Guiness Book of World Records.

What a wonderful time we had. Twenty other Dairy Princesses, Alternates, and Junior Dairy Representatives from across the state helped to make this huge dairy delight. Six hundred captains, each produced a 40-foot section of the dessert. The Dairy Princesses and myself were also section captains.

They used cardboard troughs fashioned from empty carpet rolls running up and down Market Street. They were divided into three sections and looked like large snakes slithering down the middle of the street. Aluminum foil lined the troughs. Paper plates were then placed in the troughs. The section captains were in charge of peeling and slicing the 33,000 bananas. The toppings came next, consisting of 2,500 gallons of ice cream, 150 gallons chocolate syrup, 600 pounds of chopped nuts, 150 gallons each of strawberry and pineapple toppings and 24,000 cherries.

Radios were placed along the route and the announcer gave us instructions. He told us when to peel the bananas and when to place the ice cream and toppings on them. Finally the order to dig in came from the announcer. And dig in they did, consuming 12.6 million calories. A dessert-lovers dream. I don't know how many calories I consumed but I know I ate at least a yard. With no lunch under my belt, it was easy.

Charcoal

requires that the bread be wrapped in foil. For example:

Mix ½ cup softened butter with ¼ cup snipped chives and 1 or 2 cloves garlic, crushed. Cut 1 loaf French bread diagonally into 1" thick slices. Spread mixture between slices. Wrap in two packets in heavy duty foil and grill 5-6" over medium coals, turning once about 10 minutes. Open foil and grill bread uncovered 5 minutes longer.

With these and other recipes for charcoal grilling, it's easy to see the many possibilities for cooking complete meals outdoors. Your only limitations are the size of your ill and your imagination.

Women Learn More About Aging, Fashion And Makeup

BY BARBARA MILLER
Lycoming Co. Correspondent

WILLIAMSPORT (Lycoming Co.) — Has your memory been playing tricks lately? Do you lose your car keys frequently or perhaps misplaced your car at the shopping mall? Or have you ever sent within a few days, two identical thank you cards to the same person? If so, you may question if you are becoming senile.

Dr. Barbara Davis, a specialist in adult development and aging from Penn State, spoke on the story behind memory changes at the Lycoming County Spring Interest Day held April 26, at the Genetti-Lycoming Hotel, Williamsport. One hundred homemakers attended the day-long event which also featured presentations on dressing fashionably for less and tips on applying make-up.

"Sometimes you hear people say when someone forgets something they are afraid that person is going senile," Davis said.

According to Davis, the word senility is a wastebasket term. It is used for a whole range of different disorders and is not a specific term. Actually, Davis reported, it is a pretty innocuous word — it simply means to grow old.

But growing old in our society, Davis points out, is not as easy to do as in some societies. Our society is prone to age-ism, she said, despite the fact that there are probably more senior citizens than teenagers in our nation. Age-ism is like sexism and racism in that it is a prejudice against age. A belief exists that there is only one ideal age, Davis explained.

"We have to think about what this (attitude) does to people," she said. "There is a lot of misinformation spread around about aging and about what happens to our mental abilities. It is unfortunate and cruel when we assume because of age people are no longer competent."

Being knowledgeable about the various types of memory changes reassures us that minor memory changes may be inconvenient but not serious.

When you forget a name or a grocery store item, Davis says, it is probably benign senescent forgetfulness or simple forgetfulness. It happens to younger people but oftener to older people and has nothing to do with organic brain disease.

Davis cited a recent study by a well-known researcher who followed the same people over a period of 20 or 25 years to see how their mental functions changed. He reported most healthy adults in the study retained very high levels of functioning at least through their sixties and seventies.

Senile dementia, Davis said, is a term used to cover more than one kind of brain disease. It means there is something organically wrong with the brain which results in some type of progressive loss of mental abilities. This is not part of normal aging. Davis stressed senescent benign forgetfulness or simple forgetfulness does not lead to senile dementia.

Symptoms of the more serious senile dementia are an impairment in ability to think, learn, memorize, and affects judgement, mood, behavior and personality. For example, maybe a person is an impeccable dresser but suddenly starts presenting a slovenly appearance. Such a person should be checked by a physician, neurologist, and a psychiatrist to sort out if they have an organic brain disease.

"Is this her color?" Karen Thomas, Home Economist from Lackawanna County and speaker for Lycoming County's Spring Interest Day, asks the audience.

According to Davis, 15 percent of the people over 65 have senile dementia, and 50 to 60 percent of the people with senile dementia are affected with Alzheimers disease. The number of people with Alzheimers disease is much smaller than many people think, Davis noted. She added there is no way to be absolutely certain a person has Alzheimers disease until they die and an autopsy has been performed.

The remaining percentage of people with senile dementia is made up of those with multi infarct demntia, which means they have a series of small strokes, and those who have rare neurological diseases.

Because a person exhibits some of the above symptoms does not always mean he has senile dementia, Davis states. Some of the things that mimic senile dementia in older people are illness (people become confused when they are moved, perhaps to a hospital), toxicity from medication, poor nutrition, infections, metabolic disorders (thyroid), and depression.

"Depression is a big one," Davis stressed. When we get older if we have a lot of losses in our lives and we don't have much time to recuperate from one loss before another one hits us, we can become very depressed, she explained. People who become depressed sometimes become confused. And then, if they become anxious because they are confused and other people are anxious about them, that can make it worse.

"If you see someone going through a depression, don't be surprised if they become confused," she advised.

To help maintain mental agility Davis suggested the following aids to learning and remembering:

— Eat well-balanced meals

— Avoid excessive fatigue

— Exercise mind and body. For the mind she suggests such things as crossword puzzles, reading on a variety of topics, discuss ideas with people whose viewpoints differ from yours.

— When learning something new avoid distractions, concentrate, read for meaning, and relate new information to what you already know about the subject.

— Use cuing strategies to help yourself remember. For example, visualize the information in a different form. To remember the name June Berry picture a juneberry bush, etc.

Davis reminded the audience that everyone of every age sometimes forgets things and it happens more frequently when we are anxious, hurried, or tired.

In other discussions, Karen Thomas, extension home economist from Lackawanna County, gave a lively presentation entitled "Fashionable You" which focused on wardrobe planning, the importance of color in a wardrobe, and how to accessorize a wardrobe.

What you need for a great looking wardrobe, according to Thomas is careful planning, not a great deal of money. This means having a wardrobe plan establishing the minimum number of basic garments you require to satisfy your needs. Then your goal should be to maintain those garments and if you have extra money, to build on that plan and expand your wardrobe.

With a wardrobe inventory on paper of what you have and what you need you can plan to purchase clothing to coincide with seasonal sales. Thomas suggests building your wardrobe around two basic colors, buying clothes that span the seasons such as long-sleeved crew necked cotton sweaters that can be worn in a variety of ways all year around. She advised making coordinates the mainstay of your wardrobe and buying classic styles.

Thomas stressed the importance of color. "Color is probably the most important thing that affects the way you look and the way your wardrobe works for you."

Color has dramatic optical effects, Davis noted, and can make you appear slim or not too slim. To appear thinner try dressing in monochromatic tones which means creating an outfit from several shades of one color. To appear shorter, wear contrasting colors.

The bright colors such as red, yellow, and orange are more forceful than the blue, greens, and purples, Thomas observed. Therefore, if you have a larger than average bust to which you don't want to call attention, you might wear a bold colored skirt and a subtle or neutral-toned top. If your hips are broad, you may wish to wear a brightly colored top and subtle tones on the bottom.

The remaining presentation, a make-up demonstration, was performed by Patricia Tilley, owner of Merle Norman Cosmetics Studio and Personal Appearance.

The Lycoming County Spring Interest Day was sponsored by Penn State Cooperative Extension.

HUMOR: A SPECIAL TONIC

The American public began to take notice of the power of humor to promote health in 1979, when Norman Cousins published his book, Anatomy of an Illness. In that book, Cousins explained his systematic use of old comic films to stimulate laughter when he was battling a life-threatening disease. He cited evidence that laughter relieved his pain and produced positive physical changes. There is some evidence that humor helps relieve the stress of caregivers and may even promote health.

Today, we are seeing the beginning of humor programs in certain hospitals, nursing homes, and businesses. If there is a humor room in your hospital, your physician may give you a prescription to go there to watch a funny movie or listen to tapes of classic radio comedians.

If you are a volunteer in a nursing home, you may be asked to help run "humor hours." Informal conversation, melodrama, puppet shows, parties, and sing alongs may be planned during such times.

Humor is not a substitute for medical treatment, but it has been reported to have several beneficial effects:

* lowers blood pressure
* reduces stress and anxiety
* eases muscular tension
* revives the will to live
* improves communication
* creates goodwill

Try adding some extra humor if you are giving care to someone at home, visiting a shut-in or someone in a nursing home, or feeling the need for a certain lift, yourself. Some suggestions:

* Watch humorous television shows;
* Rent some funny old movies and a video cassette recorder (for example, Laurel and Hardy or W.C. Fields;
* Listen to cassette tapes of comedians such as Jack Benny or Red Skelton (check your public library or book store);
* Read comic strips or books of collected comic strips like Charlie Brown and Snoopy;
* Ask children or grandchildren to share jokes and riddles;
* Reminisce about amusing times and stories from the past;
* Look for ways to inject humor into the conversation and experiences of the moment.

If you are especially interested in ways to use humor in long-term care facilities, a handbook has been developed entitled Humor: The Tonic You Can Afford. Please order from the Andrus Volunteers of the Ethel Percy Andrus Gerontology Center, University of Southern California (University Park/MC-0191), Los Angeles, CA, 90089-0191. Send $6.50 plus $1.00 postage.

to a lead. This usually takes two people at first with one person pulling slightly and the other pushing. "If you turn it out and don't do anything with them (the young horses), then you'll have your hands full when you try to train them as a yearling," explained Holly. They'll be really spooky if you don't handle them."

Many horses are shown as yearlings. This involves learning how to stand while in the halter. The horse also is lunged daily for muscle condition. Lunging involves attaching a lead line to the halter and having the horse run in a circle.

Because Arabians and Morgans are slow to mature, they are not broken further until they are about three years old. At this point Holly introduces the horse to a bit and bridle and fastens a bitting rig, which is a leather or nylon strap with many metal "O" rings attached, on its back. Holly makes the bitting rig more comfortable by attaching it to a sheepskin pad.

"Next I begin working on their head," said Holly. "I teach them what pressure on the bit is." She does this by attaching side reins to the bridle and the bitting rig. Line driving is next. This is where Holly walks behind the horse holding on to it and directing it with long lines. It would look very much like driving a horse but without the cart.

Once Holly can control the horse, she either introduces it to the cart or saddle, depending on whether or not it will be a driving or riding horse. Then she goes through the process of line driving it with the saddle on or she starts driving the cart.

"When the horse is used to the saddle, I put weight on its back. I do this by laying over the saddle. I lay there instead of sit so that if they flip out, I can jump off," Holly explained.

Once comfortable with weight on its back, the horse is taught what are called "leg aids", this means directing the horse with the rider's legs.

At this point the horse is green broke, or can be riden by an experienced rider. A green-broke horse will shy or spook at unexpected sights or actions, such as crossing over water.

It takes Holly about two to three months to green break a horse. In a couple months or less, the horse can be trail ridden, and in six months to a year, the horse will be ready for the show ring. "People say they can train a horse faster, and they probably can, but they usually have to back and redo parts of the training later on," Holly commented. "I am a big believer in not rushing them. If you take it slow, the horse will understand everything and won't be frustrated. It also will have more confidence in itself."

To be properly trained for the show ring, a horse must learn to move in a balanced manner: not dragging its back legs or putting its weight on one side or another. It also must know with which leg to lead when going in certain directions. Holly teaches it how to hold its head. Then she works on all things until the horse is polished.

While in the show ring in a performance class, the judges look for control of the horse; the horse's way of moving, which includes not breaking out of a gait, not being sloppy in its movements, and not going too fast or too slow; the way the animal holds its head, called head set; if the horse uses the correct lead; and the horse's attitude.

Like a riding horse, the horse destined for the show ring also must be accustomed to trail riding as many shows have a trail class.

Holly became interested in the show circuit for Arabians when she was fresh out of high school. Her mount was Miss Moonshine, who she has ridden in English hunt seat shows since 1983. During the past two show seasons, Miss Moonshine's rider has been Holly's niece, Kerri Myers. Kerri, a 4-H'er in the Broken Bits Club, helps Holly with grooming and other chores. This next season, however, neither Kerri or Holly will show Miss Moonshine as the horse recently has become a mother. Her foal is a filly, which will be named Moon Rocks Wish pending acceptance by the Arabian Horse Association. Holly simply calls the filly, Wish.

Holly and Dennis purchased the 10-acres farm when it was still fields with only the beginnings of a house. That was in 1985, three years after the two were married. The barn was designed and built by both Holly and Dennis. In designing it "we thought about the safety and comfort of the horse," Holly remarked. This meant big box stalls and an aisle wide enough for a horse to turn around in. They included a tack room, feed room, and wash stall on the ground floor with hay storage above. The foaling stalls double as regular stalls. As a safety precaution, two fire alarms were installed with the wiring hooked into the fire alarms in their house.

A 100'x225' riding ring is near the barn as are two turn-out paddocks and two pastures. The turn-out paddocks are used to provide exercise for the animals. The paddocks are especially important for the young animals as a place to play. "I think it is important for them to play and relax," said Holly. "Many big training places don't let the little ones play. When you let them play and you're ready to train them, they're ready to listen."

Attention to the welfare and well-being of the horses is a reult of the farm's motto: Quality care is our guarantee. "because we're a small we can give good care to each animal and watch them carefully," explained Holly. "We feel we can offer people a lot more for a reasonable price."

On Sunday, May 15, Holly and Dennis are hosting an Open Barn beginning at 10:00 a.m. It is open to the public and refreshments will be served. Call Holly or Dennis at 664-3893 for directions.

House Of His Creation

Giving Birth To A New Life

BY PAT PURCELL

LITITZ (Lancaster) — As spring arrives and delivers the green lush new life to fields, pastures and forests, the rebirth of land is evident and a welcomed sight. The signs of new life of birth and rebirth are joyful times full of hope for the future.

Many expectant mothers greet the news of new life with happiness which spreads contagiously among family members, but for thousands of teenage girls each year who become pregnant, unwed, forsaken by family members, and unable or incapable of caring for themselves and their child, there is little happiness. The news of birth brings sadness, hopelessness and frustration.

At the heart of the one of the most fertile and productive garden spots of the world is a home and refuge and a chance for a new life for unwed mothers between the ages of 11 to 25. And while some of these troubled young girls come from broken homes, big cities and are victims of abuse and neglect, for the most part those girls who call the House of His Creation home are from all walks of life.

"We all must take time to talk with our kids. By doing that you are showing them you love them. This is really important for us," added Donna.

"The girls who come to us are from wealthy families, poor families, troubled familes and just normal homes, but when they become pregnant either they chose not to stay at home or their family won't allow them to," explained Donna Pry, house mom at the the Lititz House of His Creation. " And that's why we're here. To love them where they are at in their lives now. We have them for such a short time. Their minds have already been plowed by the things which have happened to them in the past and we can't do anything about that. But maybe we can plant some seeds and hope they have a better life for being with us."

The House of His Creation with a home in Lititz and in Coatesville, Chester County, was begun in 1973 by a couple from Washington, D.C. who were concerned with the lack of care facilities for young women who found themselves pregnant, unwed, sometimes unwanted and unable to care for themselves. It was the first of its kind in this country and since then has served nearly 400 young women between the ages of 11 and 25 from 34 states and several other nations.

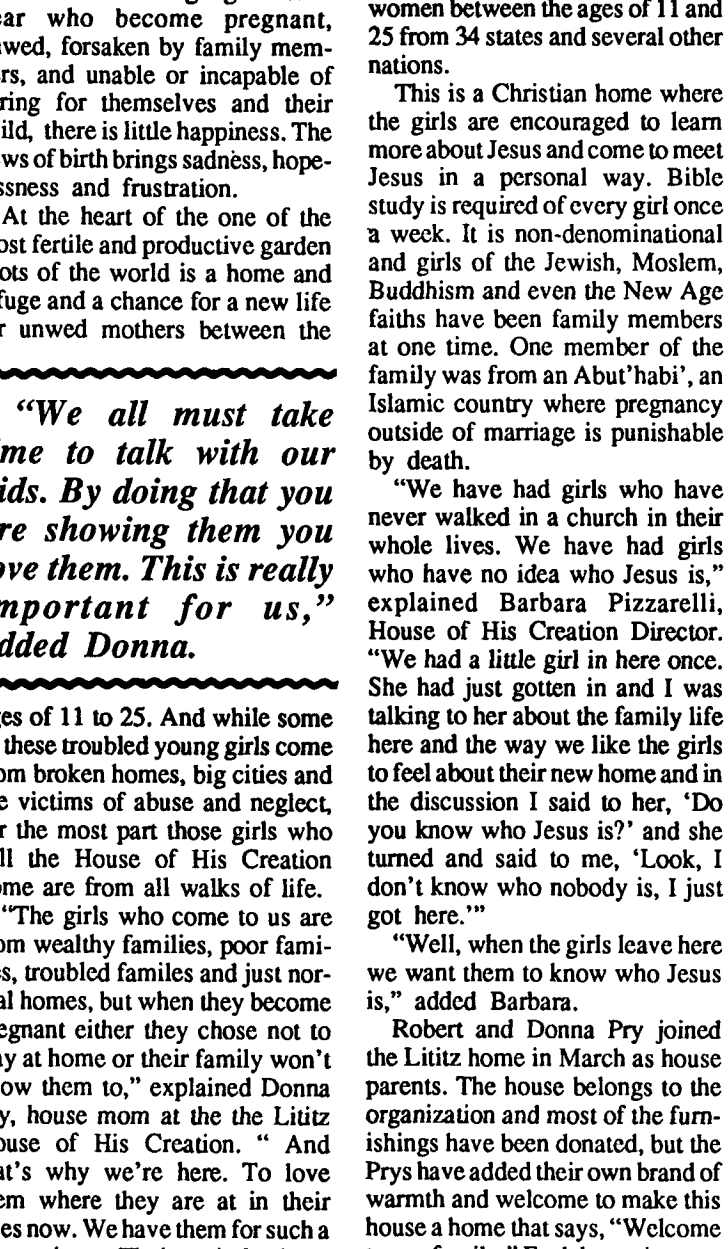
This is a Christian home where the girls are encouraged to learn more about Jesus and come to meet Jesus in a personal way. Bible study is required of every girl once a week. It is non-denominational and girls of the Jewish, Moslem, Buddhism and even the New Age faiths have been family members at one time. One member of the family was from an Abut'habi', an Islamic country where pregnancy outside of marriage is punishable by death.

"We have had girls who have never walked in a church in their whole lives. We have had girls who have no idea who Jesus is," explained Barbara Pizzarelli, House of His Creation Director. "We had a little girl in here once. She had just gotten in and I was talking to her about the family life here and the way we like the girls to feel about their new home and in the discussion I said to her, 'Do you know who Jesus is?' and she turned and said to me, 'Look, I don't know who nobody is, I just got here.'"

"Well, when the girls leave here we want them to know who Jesus is," added Barbara.

Robert and Donna Pry joined the Lititz home in March as house parents. The house belongs to the organization and most of the furnishings have been donated, but the Prys have added their own brand of warmth and welcome to make this house a home that says, "Welcome to our family." Each home is operated by a Christian married couple who serve as role models and parents and teach the girls how to take care of themselves and a baby.

House of His Creation was the first Christian, maternity home of its kind in the country for young women up to the ages of 25. The home in Lititz sits on a hill overlooking the beautiful and fertile farmland which surrounds it. Nearly 400 girls have called the House of His Creation home since it was begun in 1973.



Robert and Donna Pry, house Dad and Mom, have brought warmth and welcome to the spacious House of His Creation Home in Lititz. Individual mailboxes line the wall along the staircase to keep the lines of communication always open among family members.

Teenagers. The mention of the word usually intiates moans and groans and stories from parents who have one, had one or is going to have one. The teen years are full of emotional changes and upheaval, frustrations, heartbreak, and sometimes immense feelings of hopelessness and sadness. There is no parent which needs to be reminded of the changes teenage girls go through. In the most loving and secure family relationships, it is a difficult time for both parents and daughter.

But for a distressed, displaced, teenager under the stress of pregnancy and her situation, emotions must be at the breaking point, when she is suddenly thrust into a home with strangers, without the comfort of familiar faces or surroundings. The strain on both the surrogate parents and other members of the extended family is increased.

"The girls who come to us are from wealthy families, poor families, troubled familes and just normal homes, but when they become pregnant either they chose not to stay at home or their family won't allow them to. And that's why we're here. To love them where they are at in their lives now."——Donna Pry

"We just have to let the love of Christ show through all the time. We must react the way Christ would have us react," said Donna. "What has worked for our children I feel will work for these children. When you are coming in as substitute parents you are coming in without their love. You might have ones who are hard to love and some that need more loving than others."

Added Robert, "We are having a closer walk with God ourselves."

Robert and Donna raised five of their own children and have eight grand children, but even with all that experience, being housepa-

House of His Creation director, Barbara, depends upon God to touch the hearts of people and lead them to supporting the homes through their donations and contributions and said the homes have been very blessed.

rents is a brand new ball game for them. It is a challenge and one they aren't always sure they can meet.

"When our kids were at home we always had a lot of kids around the house and I guess I kind of mothered them all. I read a newspaper article about so many of the girls getting abortions years ago. It upset me," explained Donna. "And I felt this was something that I wanted to be involved in."

"But as we got closer and closer to becomming involved with the actual program, I thought 'God, I don't know if this is for me," said Donna. "I prayed a lot. Then an inner voice said to me, 'Donna, its only for a year.' I know we were called by God. I'd rather be doing what is God's will. We are totally dependant upon God."

Added Robert, "God is still training us, everyday."

Only twelve girls live at the home at one time. The Prys are there fulltime with one evening off a week, one weekend off a month and two months annual vacation. They live there around the clock and when they are not there someone from the extended family is there with the girls.

"The girls never have to wonder, 'who will be on shift when I have my baby?' This is not an agency. This is a home and their (the houseparents') whole heart is there with the girls to love them and care for them," said Barbara.

The girls and house parents do everything as a family. They go to church, go bowling or to the movies or shopping together. Each girl is interviewed before being permitted to live at the home and she must agree to abide by certain written rules. Most girls stay. Some do not.

"We have these girls for such a short time. Their minds have already been plowed by the things which have happened to them in the past and we can't do anything about that. But maybe we can plant some seeds and hope they have a better life for being with us."——Donna Pry

"We had one girl who couldn't make the adjustment to life here," explained Barbara. "She broke some rules several times and I finally had to sit down with her and tell her that she couldn't stay with us anymore. After she left, she called me up one time to say that a friend of hers needed to live here. She said that although she could not accept the love she was given here, she felt her friend could." Barbara paused, then added softly, "I hope she learned something from us for the short time she was here."

There are some things they must learn such as life skills. According to Donna when most of the girls get there they don't know much about cooking. That soon changes. The girls are responsible for planning and preparing nutritious meals with the help of the house mother.

"You only have the girls for five months and they don't know much about cooking so that's the first thing we get into. Most of us take so many things for granted that these girls have not been taught," said Donna. "We show them how to be frugal. So they learn to make something out of nothing in every area of their lives not just in the kitchen."

When a new member of the family arrives, the house father greets each girl with a rose and a note to make them feel welcomed. This helps the girls feel comfortable and relaxed in their new surroundings. Each girl has a separate mailbox which the houseparents use to slip little notes to the girls. Typical notes say, 'If you need someone to talk to, I'm here for you.' The Prys get notes in their mailbox too. Some things are too painful to talk about face to face and can be easier when handled in a note.

""Too much idleness is not good. I often say let's do this, so we can talk, but I may not tell them that. But doing things together gives us the opportunity to be together and talk.

Communication is the key to a healthy relationship for Donna and the girls. Her efforts are aimed at creating a oneness between she and Robert and the girls and to let them know they are important to them.

"We all must take time to talk with our kids. By doing that you are showing them you love them. This is really important for us," added Donna.

Robert's task is to let the girls know that they can trust him and depend upon him. The Prys agree girls need their father especially when they are in their teens. This is when their relationship with Dad is most important. This is where they learn how they are supposed to relate with the opposite sex and learn the meanings of trust, love and respect.

"Many of these girls have never known the love of a father or any other man. I must let them know they can trust me," explained Robert. "Listening, I think is the most important thing in a relationship with the girls. You have to let them know you are listening to them and keep talking and letting them talk even though you are not agreeing with them. They are entitled to their opinion. Then I give them my idea on whatever we are talking about. If they take it, fine. If they don't, well, that's fine too."

Barbara received a letter from a girl with a drug background who had been a member of the family at House of His Creation.

"I'm lonely. For the first time in my life I'm lonely. Now that I know what love is, now I want love!. I'm angry. Now I want to be something. Before I was content to be nothing."

Since its beginning in 1973 the House of His Creation in both locations has seen the births of over 250 babies and 110 of those babies have been placed for adoption with local couples. The organization is totally funded by contributions and donations.

"Finances, we pray that in!" said Barbara. "We trust in the Lord to provide. The Lord is the head of our agency. The board of directors does not look to me to do fund raising. The Lord will touch their hearts and lead them to give what they can to help us in our mission. The Lord will keep the home open for as long as it is needed or he will shut it when the home's work is done."

A country auction will be held to benefit the House of His Creation on Saturday, May 28, 10 a.m. at the Intercourse Firehall. Any donated items can be takend directly to the House of his Creation at the Lititz or Coatesville before the day of the sale. Items can be picked up by calling (215) 383-4414. Test Boneless, Skinless, Marinated Chicken

BY LOU ANN GOOD

EPHRATA (Lancaster) — Do you ever wonder where companies get their ideas for new products?

"From consumers," Carol Merluzzo answers."

She ought to know. As manager of product development for Pennfield Farms Chicken, Ephrata, Merluzzo plays an important role in the new chicken products that the company has recently released in area supermarkets. The marinated chicken breasts in Teriyaki, Italian or Herbal flavors, is boneless and skinless and can be broiled, grilled or cooked in 10 to 15 minutes.

Merluzzo noted that Pennfield Farms is a consumer driven company that develops products that society wants and needs. She explained, "We listen to what consumers say and give them what they need." Exactly how the company finds out consumers' opinions is a secret that Merluzzo refuses to reveal. "Competition would love to know so I can speak only in broad terms," she related.

Carol Merluzzo, manager of product development for Pennfield Farms chicken, displays a package of the boneless, skinless, marinated chicken that the company has recently developed.

"Developing a new product—any product—is no easy task," Merluzzo said. It involves a lot of dollars and time. Often product development is spread over a three-year span during which time researches decide on a product that will meet the consumers' needs. Then scientists perfect the formulas to produce optimum taste and eye appeal. A prototype of the product is designed. Elements such as visual appeal, odor, and packaging is checked and rechecked. Sometimes more research needs to be conducted before the product can be test marketed with the population for which it is targeted.

Feedback during this time tells the marketing department whether or not their product is filling a demand. Is the price affordable? Is the label identifiable? Should store placement of the article be changed? What promotional efforts should be carried through?

Consumer feedback decides whether or not sales tactics need refining or if the product should be withdrawn from the market.

According to Merluzzo, national statistics reveal that three out of four new products fail. It's hard for a new product to entice new buyers who are familiar with name brand products.

The majority of working women, Merluzzo noted, don't have much time to cook; yet, they enjoy it when they have time. She believes that for the most part, people under 30 cook very little from scratch. She said, "Cooking is a skill that if not practiced will get rusty. Consequently, society looks for alternatives in cooking."

Merluzzo believes that Pennfield Farms new products are just what consumers need. Merluzzo said the chicken can be eaten without adding more seasonings or other ingredients, but it is also versatile enough to cook in other ways. For example, the Terayaki makes a nice stir fry with vegetables. Merluzzo suggests that cooks buy their vegetables already cut, and rice that can be cooked in 5 minutes. While the rice is cooking, cut up the terayaki chicken and stir fry with vegetables.

Marinated chicken, she maintains, is a product that allows people to put something of themselves into dinner while it remains quick and easy to prepare. "It allows originality and elegance." Although the chicken comes uncooked, it can be cooked and served within 10 to 15 minutes.

Merluzzo admits that like other products, this one is targeted for a specific group and will not necessarily appeal to all age groups, economical brackets or occupational groups.

Currently the new Pennfield Farms chicken products can be purchased in supermarkets throughout Lancaster county. Merluzzo anticipates that the products will eventually be available in other areas.

Look for it in the fresh meat department. Ask the meat manager for help in locating it.

Merluzzo cautions, "It can be frozen if not used within 24 hours, but like all fresh poultry, take out of store packaging and rewrap before freezing."

Merluzzo received her MBA from Drexel University with her main emphasis on marketing. She also holds an undergraduate degree in home economics. She is in charge of product development, research, production and marketing at Pennfield Farms.

MICROWAVE MINUTES

By JOYCE BATTCHER

Some Moms have to cook on Mother's Day. When that Mom is me, I keep it simple, fast and, of course, microwavable. I also get the rest of the family to help. In no time at all, we can eat and I can retire to read the Sunday paper while everyone else cleans up.

One menu that I especially like for a nice easy dinner centers around Pork With Wild Rice. It uses cubes of quick-cooking pork and a wild rice mix. Salad is a spring favorite — delicate leaf lettuce or fresh spinach with a mild sweet-sour dressing. And dessert is easy too, but one with a rich flavor for a little indulging — vanilla ice cream topped with an almost instant chocolate sauce.

If you want to make this meal, preparation can start the day before. Cut pork into cubes and marinate them in the refrigerator. Make salad dressing for reheating. Make fudge sauce for reheating. Otherwise the meal can be quickly put together and be ready for eating in an hour.

Here's my Mother's Day (or anyday) plan for this quick microwave meal. Cut up pork and onions. Marinate pork cubes and white parts of onions for 10 minutes or while preparing salad vegetables. Make fudge sauce. While wild rice is cooking as directed in recipe, set the table. Cook pork and finish Pork With Wild Rice. Heat salad dressing and toss with vegetables. Rewarm fudge sauce right before serving.

Many other microwave meals are just as easy as this one to prepare. Even though it's most efficient to cook one food at a time in your microwave, a complete meal can be made quickly and efficiently.

The secret is to take a few minutes to plan the cooking order. Plan to use standing time, where food continues to cook after removal from the microwave. Take advantage of quick cooking for reheating.

Often, dessert is cooked first because it's served warm or cold. Then the extras are microwaved — like sauces, dressings or other additions to food. Next comes the longest-cooking food, which is usually the main dish. When the main dish is cooked, it often needs to stand to finish cooking. Set it, tightly covered, on the counter and microwave a vegetable during this standing time. Do any last minute reheating and bring your meal to the table.

Pork With Wild Rice

6 green onions
1 pound boneless pork shoulder or boneless country-style ribs, cut in ½-inch cubes
1 teaspoon kitchen browning sauce
1 package (6¼-6¾ ounces) fast-cooking long-grain and wild rice
1¼ cups water
¼ teaspoon ground cumin

Cut white part of green onions in 1-inch lengths; thinly slice green tops and set aside. Combine white lengths of onion with pork cubes, browning sauce and about half of rice seasoning packet in microwave-safe 1-quart casserole. Marinate 10 to 15 minutes at room temperature. Refrigerate, if mixture needs to stand longer.

Combine remaining rice seasoning packet, rice, water and cumin in microwave-safe 2-quart casserole; cover with lid or plastic wrap. Microwave (High) 4 to 5 minutes or until rice is hot and slightly cooked. Let stand, covered, about 5 minutes to finish cooking.

Microwave pork mixture, covered with waxed paper, on High 5 to 6 minutes, stirring after each 2 minutes, until pork is done. Stir in green onion tops. Fluff rice with a fork and push toward edges of casserole. Spoon pork into center of rice. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Wilted Spring Salad

2 tablespoons oil
2 tablespoons herb-flavored or cider vinegar
1½ tablespoons honey
¼ teaspoon onion powder
1 small bunch leaf lettuce or fresh spinach
8 radishes, sliced paper-thin
Freshly grated black pepper

In microwave-safe measure, stir together oil, vinegar, honey and onion powder; set aside. Tear lettuce into bite-size pieces and place in serving bowl. Slice radishes paper-thin and put atop lettuce; set aside. Right before serving, microwave dressing on High for 1-1½ minutes or until boiling. Immediately pour over lettuce; toss until lettuce is lightly coated. Sprinkle with pepper. Makes 4 servings.

Each serving: 94 calories, 1g protein, 7g fat, 9g carbohydrate, 5mg sodium, 0 cholesterol.

Chocolate Sauce For Ice Cream

1 package (6 ounces) real semi-sweet chocolate chips (1 cup)
⅓ cup milk
1 tablespoon butter
¼ teaspoon vanilla

Place chips and milk in microwave-safe 2-cup measure or small bowl. Microwave (High) 45 to 90 seconds. Stir well to melt chips. Stir in butter and vanilla. Serve warm over ice cream. Sauce will thicken as it cools. Makes 1 cup sauce.

Each tablespoon serving: 62 calories, .6g protein, 5g fat, 6g carbohydrate, 12mg sodium, 2mg cholesterol.

Questions and answers —

Q. How do you soften brown sugar in the microwave?

A. Sprinkle sugar lightly with water in a plastic bag. Close bag tightly with string or a rubber band, not a wire twist. For one pound, microwave on High about 30 to 45 seconds. For less than ½ pound, check every 15 seconds. Let it stand, still closed tightly, about 5 minutes.

Be sure to allow standing time for the moisture to even out in the sugar. There will be excess moisture on bag when you're done microwaving, but most of that disappears into the sugar during the standing time. Do not microwave too long, so that sugar starts to melt. If it does, stop microwaving and let it stand to finish softening.

Q. Do I have to leave a glass of water in my microwave when I'm not using it?

A. It's not necessary in most cases. It is a good idea if you have small children around who might turn on the microwave when no food is in it, especially if your microwave doesn't have a "Start" or "Cook" button. Without a "Start" control, if you remove food when time is still left on the timer and then close the microwave door, the microwave keeps operating. As you know, a microwave can be damaged if it runs empty for a prolonged period.

Puppies With A Mission

Franklin Co. Correspondent

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin) — "What you people do is so important — you teach the puppies the basic behavioral skills they will need to be a good guide dog," Stephanie Konrad told members of the Franklin County 4-H Seeing Eye Club. At Stephanie's side was Desi, her eleven-year-old black Labrador guide dog. Every day, with Desi's assistance, Stephanie walks two miles from her home in Carlisle to a bus stop. She and Desi ride the bus to Shippensburg Junior High School, where she teaches Spanish.

Stephanie spoke to the 4-H'ers, who are all raising puppies to be Seeing Eye dogs for the blind, April 25, at the Franklin County Extension Office. She stressed the importance of the 4-Hers' role in the eventual career of the dog. "It is the basic training you start with the dogs that will determine how well they'll do," she said. Desi is patient with strangers and particularly good with children, which she attributes to the presence of a small child in the 4-H family who raised Desi.

Stephanie obtained her dog from Guiding Eyes for the Blind in Yorktown, New York. The puppies the Franklin County 4-H'ers are raising are from The Seeing Eye, Inc. in Morristown, New Jersey, but there are many similarities between the two schools. For both schools, 4-H'ers raise the puppies for a year, then return them to the school. There, the puppies undergo intensive training with a sighted trainer. Then the blind person comes to the school, is matched with a dog, and they take training together. After college graduation, Stephanie spent 26 days in Yorktown learning to use Desi. First, they walked in residential areas, then gradually moved on to more heavily travelled areas. Then they learned how to negotiate busses, subways and rural roads.

The New York 4-H family who had raised Desi came to Stephanie and Desi's graduation from Guiding Eyes for the Blind. Desi had enjoyed playing with a feather as a pup, and his 4-H family brought one with them when they came to graduation. "It was their farewell to the pup," Stephanie said. She disagrees with The Seeing Eye's policy of not letting the dog and 4-H'er see each other after the dog is placed with a blind master. She doesn't feel that the reunion sets the dog back in its training or relationship with the new master. "They should give the kids an opportunity to see who has the dog," she said. "The dog knows who its master is."

Desi's responsibility is to be sure Stephanie doesn't bump into anything. He guides her around objects and stops at driveways and curbs. When Desi stops at a curb, Stephanie has to decide when to cross by listening to the traffic, (I don't like 'Right on red,'" she said emphatically) then gives Desi the comand to take her across the street.

Desi is supposed to take her straight, rather than diagonally across the street, "but he did that a few times in his younger days," she said. "I didn't realize it until we were in the middle of the intersection, and there wasn't a whole lot I could do about it."

To be able to go to a place she has never been before, she must first walk the route with a sighted person. Once she knows how many blocks to walk and when to turn, she can tell Desi the directions when they walk it alone.

Desi only leads Stephanie if she is holding the harness and he is in front of her. If a sighted person takes her arm and guides her, Desi will heel like a regular dog.

The bond between the two is obvious. Stephanie speaks to Desi lovingly, calling him "Sweetheart." Desi was in the hospital for several days around Thanksgiving. "I got rides to work — people were real nice," she said, "but I missed him."

Referring to the 4-Hers' role in raising a puppy, she commented, "I couldn't raise one for a year and then give it up," as the 4-H'ers do.

Club leader Donna Boyd acknowledged that it is difficult to take the puppies back to Morristown. She felt that Stephanie's visit to the club was important in helping the 4-H'ers to realize that guide dogs are well-cared for by their masters, and how crucial the dog is in a blind person's life.

"I wish I'd belonged to something like this when I was a kid," Stephanie said. "I wish more kids belonged."

Stephanie Konrad, Carlisle, and her guide dog, Desi. Desi has been assisting Stephanie since he was fifteen months old.

Middletown Grange Celebrates 112 Anniversary

PLUMSTEADVILLE (Bucks) — Middletown Grange #684 celebrated its 112th anniversary on April 9, with a roast beef dinner at the Fire Hall here. The affair was attended by Grange members, their families and friends.

The special guest for the evening was Dick Bailey, who has retired after serving 32 years as Bucks County Agricultural Extension agent in Doylestown.

Middletown grange presented Bailey with a plaque inlaid with nine Mercer tiles depicting an agricultural theme, to commemorate his years of service. He also has been involved with the Middletown Grange Fair each year through the 4-H.

A fruit basket was presented to member Lori Ekelman of Yardley Flower Company from the women's craft group for all of her volunteer work with the women throughout the year.

Festivities for the evening included music by "The Pros" and an evening of dancing.

News from American Egg Board

AEB'S CONSUMER EDUCATION OFFERS CONSUMER ANSWERS: AEB's Consumer Education Department has continually worked to provide consumers with proper handling and storage information on eggs. Many of these efforts have been done in cooperation with the Egg Nutrition Center and the United States Department of Agriculture. The 800- Meat and Poultry Hotline number, for example, is maintained by the USDA to answer consumer questions about eggs. Since the bulk of the egg questions center on food safety, AEB has provided USDA with a P.O. Box address to which consumers can write for copies of "Answers to Often-Asked Questions About Eggs" and "A Scientist Speaks About Salmonellae and Eggs."

This is just one of many publication offers made by the Department. Others have been printed in newspapers, in national women's service magazines, military, 4-H, farm and teachers' magazines, insurance, real estate and nutrition newsletters and publications which specialize in offering free or low-cost items to the public. If you've read publications that list offers for write-in materials and you'd like to see egg items included, send Linda (at AEB) the publication's name and mailing address. We'll be happy to see if we can work out an offer.

WENDY'S INTRODUCES BISCUIT SANDWICHES AND "SUPERBAR" BUFFET: You will remember that Wendy's began an omelet-based breakfast program in 1985. The program was quickly pulled as preparation and production problems were encountered. Additionally, market research showed that patrons were interested in more portable breakfast items that could be quickly prepared and taken out.

Wendy's franchisees have now been given the option of adding egg-based biscuit sandwiches as a new breakfast line. These biscuit items are available in 3 varieties: egg and cheese, egg cheese and bacon; and egg, cheese and sausage.

Wendy's has also recently introduced the "Superbar" all-you-can-eat buffet that will eventually be included in most of the 1,120 company-owned units. Franchisees have also been given the opportunity to add this menu option. The "Superbar" features all-you-can-eat pastas, Mexican foods, salads and baked potato fixings. Diced, hard-cooked eggs are included on the salad bar portion of the "Superbar."

WESTERN FOODSERVICE TELLS ABOUT THE GOOD EGG: The Good Egg, an egg specialty restaurant on the grow, was among the subjects featured in the April, 1988 issue of Western Foodservice magazine.

The breakfast-and-lunch-only chain caters to mostly people with more money than time, who spend an average of $5.50 per person per meal. This business computes into an annual sales total of $4 million based on the seven-restaurant chain. Two new units are expected to open this year and the company plans to begin franchising in 49 states by the end of this summer.

And the menu? Mostly eggs, of course. Everything from egg standards to frittatas, eggs in crepes, special omelets, pancakes and sandwiches and salads.

RESTAURANTS & INSTITUTIONS REVEALS 1988 MENU CENSUS: According to the April, 1988 issue of Restaurants & Institutions, "the 1988 R&I 'Menu Census' brings us back down to earth." Scrambled eggs and bacon for breakfast, among other old stand-bys, are the menu elements that have been the backbone of foodservice for years. And . . . these are still the menu items foodservice operators put on their menus most often. American palates haven't changed much.

The survey, which sampled nearly 2,000 respondents, questioned foodservice operators dealing in breakfasts, lunch and dinner. Of these, 51% served breakfast, 90% lunch and 75% dinner. Brunch was served by only 10%.

Operators report that bacon and eggs are what's popular for breakfast; specifically, scrambled eggs are as strong on the menu as ever. Commercial restaurants report that omelets, poached eggs, ham and hash browns are also good breakfast bets.

Poultry-Litter Conditioner Cuts Costs

EPHRATA (Lancaster) — The answer to poultry house litter problems. The Brown Litter Conditioner will cut the cost of re-bedding the poultry house after every flock. The Brown Litter Conditioner enables you to enter your poultry house and pulverize the litter cakes into usable litter.

The conditioner is equipped with ridged, mounted blunt blades that pulverize the litter cakes into a light and fluffy state so that air can move through the loose litter bed. The lifting blade, mounted just in front of the rotating blades, lifts all material from the pad into the blades without mixing the litter with the dirt pad. The leveling bar on the back of the unit will insure a smooth litter bed.

The Brown Litter Conditioner is distributed by Hamilton Equipment, Inc. For the name of your nearest dealer or a demonstration, contact: Hamilton Equipment, Inc., 567 South Reading Road, Ephrata, PA 17522; telephone: 1-717-733-7951.

Home Economists Plan National Meeting

WASHINGTON, D.C. — More than 4,000 home economists from across the nation will gather in Baltimore, Maryland, for the 79th Annual Meeting and Exposition of the American Home Economics Association, June 19-23, at the Baltimore Convention Center. Attendees will hear about the latest developments in areas that range from AIDS education, single parents, aging and the family, and teen pregnancy, to new developments in housing and nutrition.

Here are some program highlights:

— The results of a survey on the major concerns of today's teenagers will be released for the first time on Sunday, June 19. A panel of leading home economists will debate the study's findings and possible implications for teachers, home economists, and the nation as a whole. The forum is free and open to the public.

— Dr. Wanona Fritz, an expert on wellness who is now serving as a consultant to the Surgeon General of Jordan, will deliver the opening General Session address on Monday, June 20. A former Army pilot and Vietnam war nurse, she draws on a wealth of colorful experience for her address, "Wellness: Living with Satisfaction."

— AHEA's Project Home Safe for "latchkey children," which taps the unique skills of home economists, will be the focus of a panel presentation Wednesday, June 22. Home Safe is a three-year program to help parents, schools, community groups, and social service providers get the training they need to solve the problems of these latchkey children.

— Marian Wright Edelman, founder and president of the Children's Defense Fund, will headline the Pacesetter Dinner banquet on Wednesday, June 22. She will relate the story of her crusade for children, which has earned her the title: "The 101st Senator on children's issues."

— Over 200 nationally known firms and organizations will present the latest in products and services for professional home economists and American families at the AHEA Exposition, June 20-22.

WHAT ARE WET BREWERS GRAINS?
By Products from the brewing, food and other related industries represent a valuable source of nutrients. Miracle Feeds markets these by products both in Canada and the United States.
The livestock producer benefits through the Miracle Feeds custom tailored by product feeding programs designed to enhance productivity.
In the brewing of beer only the highest quality barleys and other cereal grains are used. Wet brewers grains are the portion of the grains that remain following the extraction of carbohydrate that takes place in the brewing process. They provide protein, fat and unextracted carbohydrates as well as essential minerals.

EBY BLUE BALL, PA
ALUMINUM GOOSENECK TRAILERS

20' Gooseneck Trailer

A versatile, lightweight, Eby aluminum stock trailer is built to provide years of maintenance free service. An Eby trailer is custom built to fit your individual hauling needs - No mass production! We use only quality components and strong alloy aluminum to manufacture what may be the last trailer you'll ever buy.

- LIGHTWEIGHT - Eby stock trailers are 25-35% lighter than comparable steel trailers. Less weight means better fuel mileage or increased payload.
- MAINTENANCE - Eby aluminum trailers won't rust. Welding and painting can cost you dollars in down time and repairs.
- DURABILITY - Eby trailers are built tough. Quality components and 6061 alloy aluminum provide the ruggedness required in a livestock trailer.

Delaware students who have spent at least one year in 4-H may be eligible for six national 4-H scholarship programs. Because each scholarship is directly related to the national 4-H awards program, outstanding achievement in the 4-H program is a prerequisite for application.

The following national scholarships are open to Delaware 4-H'ers:

Test Now For Nematode

NEWARK, DE — Soybean farmers should check their fields now for the soybean cyst nematode.

According to Bob Mulrooney, University of Delaware Extension plant pathologist, the soybean cyst nematode is likely to show up in fields where soybeans have been grown for more than two years. He encourages Delaware growers to identify infestations before planting.

"This pest," says Mulrooney, "can reduce a crop of susceptible soybeans by 33 percent or more, depending on the season."

To test for the soybean cyst nematode, farmers should take samples of no more than five acres. Each sample should be a composite of 20 soil cores. A Cooperative Extension fact sheet, "How To Take Soil Samples for Nematode Detection," is available free from county Extension offices in Delaware. Four or five samples per field should be submitted. Growers can take the samples to their Extension office for analysis.

Osteoporosis: The Silent Disease

PITTSBURGH (Allegheny) — Osteoporosis affects 24 million Americans a year. It is a silent disorder that may only be diagnosed after a serious bone fracture. May 8-14 has been designated as National Osteoporosis Prevention Week in an effort to concentrate the public's interest on prevention and early diagnosis.

This disorder, characterized by serious loss of bone tissue, is associated with 1.3 million fractures annually. Judy Dodd, a registered dietitian with the Dairy & Nutrition Council, points out that it is estimated that this disorder costs Americans about $10 billion each year. This includes the medical care as well as the social and economic loss that is a result of fractures attributed to osteoporosis. The most commonly affected areas are the spine, hip and wrist. Over 247,000 hip fractures each year are attributed to this bone-thinning disorder.

Increased emphasis is being placed on prevention since effective methods of treatment are not widely available. People are living longer thus increasing the number of persons at risk.

The three biggest factors in the development of osteoporosis are a drop in estrogen levels in women at menopause, a low intake of calcium, and too little weight bearing exercise. Both males and females are affected but caucasian and oriental older women are more likely to be affected. Women who are small boned, thin or who experienced early menopause are especially susceptible. Smoking and excessive intake of alcohol also raises a person's chances of developing osteoporosis.

Prevention centers on building a stronger bone mass as a protection against osteoporosis in later years. The peak periods for building bone mass are in childhood through the twenties. At all ages a healthy lifestyle, including a nutritionally balanced diet and adequate exercise, is important. Food choices should be balanced including adequate calcium, the bone-building mineral. Medical experts agree that osteoporosis does not have to be an inevitable part of growing old.

Marketing Opportunities For Smaller Packers

DENVER, CO — Packing industry concentration has created marketing opportunities for smaller, independent meat packers. That's the message James H. Bruce delivered at a recent Western States Meat Packers Association convention in Palm Springs, California. Bruce is group director of lamb marketing with the American Sheep Producers Council (ASPC).

Independent meat packers are in excellent position to differentiate products for particular market segments. "You can be successful if you are an effective niche marketer," Bruce said.

Large U.S. corporations have typically pursued a convergence strategy in marketing according to Bruce. Under this strategy the company markets one product line to meet all demand requirements. This is the marketing counterpart to product standardization and mass production. The result is a price-driven commodity market.

The alert, smaller company that is willing to change quickly can alter products to meet particular consumer needs. This strategy of divergence recognizes that the market is composed of numerous market segments. "Identify one or more segments of the market and satisfy their needs better than anyone else. Your chances of success are much greater than competing in the price-driven commodity business," Bruce said.

Market segmentation leads to product differentiation. "If you know your market well, you will be able to develop and promote differences between your product and those of your competitors," Bruce explained. The key is to develop a firm market position that is relatively insulated from price competition. Manufacturers of automobiles, hot dogs and soft drinks have accomplished this. "There is no reason we can't do this with fresh meat," Bruce said.

Markets may be segmented on a demographic, geographic or volume basis. However, according to Bruce it may be more productive to segment the market by product benefits. For example the hot dog market has been segmented on the basis of nutrition, value/price, party/fun and ethnic appeal. Benefit segmentation starts with knowing what's important to consumers.

There are many market segments for fresh American lamb. The foodservice trade may be segmented by clientele groups and price range. Retail lamb sales may be divided by customer needs. Stores with service meat cases in upscale neighborhoods have different needs than the high volume self serve meat departments.

Lamb also can be differentiated according to product origin, "cutability" and product convenience. Identify customer wants and needs and match those to product benefits. "Then we need to work together to aggressively promote and merchandise your fresh American lamb products," Bruce said.

ASPC is committed to working with packers and processors to develop specific joint merchandising programs according to Bruce. "Just as you need to differentiate your products we must be willing to differentiate our market development programs," Bruce concluded.

The American Sheep Producers Council is a producer funded market development organization headquartered in Denver, Colorado. The Council conducts advertising, promotional, educational and marketing programs on behalf of the nation's 114,000 sheep producers.

New Government Farm Program Increases Soil Savings

LITITZ (LANCASTER) — Soil erosion in Pennsylvania was reduced by more than 2.6 million tons in 1987, an increase over the 1.8 million tons of a year earlier. According to a report released by the USDA Soil Conservation Service, this marked increase was due to the planting of highly erodible cropland to grass, trees or wildlife shrubs under the Conservation Reserve Program.

About 47,000 acres of highly erodible Pennsylvania cropland have been taken out of production and put into a soil saving use in the first five signups. This change in land use has reduced soil erosion in the state by almost 850,000 tons annually.

SCS officials predict even larger gains in the next decade due to the conservation provisions of the 1985 Farm Bill. Present regulations require farmers to develop conservation plans for their highly erodible cropland by January 1, 1990. Plans must be installed on the land by January 1, 1995.

"Much of SCS's efforts are going into planning now," said Frederick Bubb, SCS spokesman. "When the planning demand is met and the effort moves to applying the planned practices on the highly eroded acres, soil savings should increase considerably."

The SCS report further notes that soil-conservation practices were completed on 215,000 acres in 1987, lowering soil loss by 1.8 million tons. Soil loss in Pennsylvania averages 115 million tons per year.

Among the practices applied by more than 13,000 landusers were 24,000 acres of contour strip cropping, 80 miles of diversions, 56 miles of terraces and 140 miles of sod waterways. Technical help to apply the soil saving practices was provided by the USDA Soil Conservation Service.

During 1987, 24,447 farmers and other landusers received assistance on soil and water management from SCS. Technical services of SCS are provided through county conservation districts.

Additional information on services available can be obtained by contacting the local office of the Soil Conservation Service or county conservation district.

National Sponsors Help 4-H'ers

YORK — Involvement in 4-H not only teaches youth about leadership and responsibility; it can also help them further their education. A Pennsylvania 4-H alumna, Susan Eisenhart, Thomasville, York County, received financial help for college from national 4-H sponsors in 1986. The American Cyanamid Company and Land O'Lakes, Inc., sponsor the 4-H Dairy Scholarship competition at the National 4-H Congress.

American Cyanamid and Land O'Lakes look for several qualities in the six scholarship winners they sponsor each year. These include an awareness of the scope and economic significance of the dairy industry, dairy production skills through the ownership and care of dairy animals, knowledge of the marketing, processing, distribution, consumption and use of dairy products, and an understanding of the nutritive value of dairy products and promote its use.

American Cyanamid is a research based biotechnology and chemical company. The company develops medical, agricultural, chemical and consumer products around the world. These products have helped improve human and animal health and increase world food production.

Lake O'Lakes, Inc. is owned by 350,000 Northcentral region farmers. Headquartered in Arden Hills, Minn., Land O'Lakes is known for its dairy products. The corporation also sells feed, seed, petroleum, agricultural chemicals and fertilizers.

Through their financial contributions, both sponsors keep 4-H'ers interested in the dairy industry. For more information about the 4-H Youth Program, contact Roxanne Price, Extension 4-H Agent, 112 Pleasant Acres Rd., York, PA 17402, Phone

U.S. Feed Grains Council Members Take Stance On GATT Talks

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Recognizing the uncertainty inherent in major reform of the world's trade rules, representatives of the U.S. feed grains sector passed a resolution this week supporting the move toward liberalization of world agricultural trade while asking U.S. negotiators at the current round of talks under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) to ensure fairness and equity in the distribution of costs and benefits of reform. The Board of Directors of the U.S. Feed Grains Council adopted the resolution in March.

One of the major tenets of the Council's position is that no reforms be unilateral and that negotiations be on a commodity-by-commodity basis. It specifies that the negotiations should address all agricultural commodities and their products as well. The Council's proposal specifically asks the U.S. government to analyze the economic impact on each agricultural commodity and the related agribusiness sectors. For producers, the resolution asks that any resulting GATT agreement specifically define decoupled income support eligibility criteria, payment levels and program duration so that U.S. producers can get a better grasp of the dollars-and-cents implications of a particular reform package.

While U.S. feed grains producers and related agribusiness companies are strong supporters of open, liberalized international trade, they are uncertain what the world will look like if major trade reform is carried out in the near future. The Council's members believe that any resultant GATT agreement should enhance the improve the economic vitality of all participating nations' agricultural sectors.

The Council is a private, non-profit organization that develops and expands export markets for U.S.-produced feed grains and co-products through a network of 13 international offices. The Council has staff in Latin America, Europe, the Middle East, Africa and Asia. Support for the Council comes from barley, corn and sorghum producers in Washington, Montana, North Dakota, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, North Carolina, Virginia, Texas, Illinois, Wisconsin, Missouri and Louisiana. The Council also gets substantial support from leading agribusiness firms across the U.S.

RICHARDTON

★ A GREAT CONCEPT ★ JUST GOT BETTER!

MODEL 700 MULTI-PURPOSE DUMP WAGON

Many area farmers are quickly realizing the potential danger and liability of transporting forage with conventional tractor-drawn wagons. Consider the RICHARDTON Dump Wagon/farm truck approach.

* Increased speed from field to barn
* Brakes, turning signals, lights provide increased traffic safety
* Equipment cost/amt. of forage handled is less than conventional systems

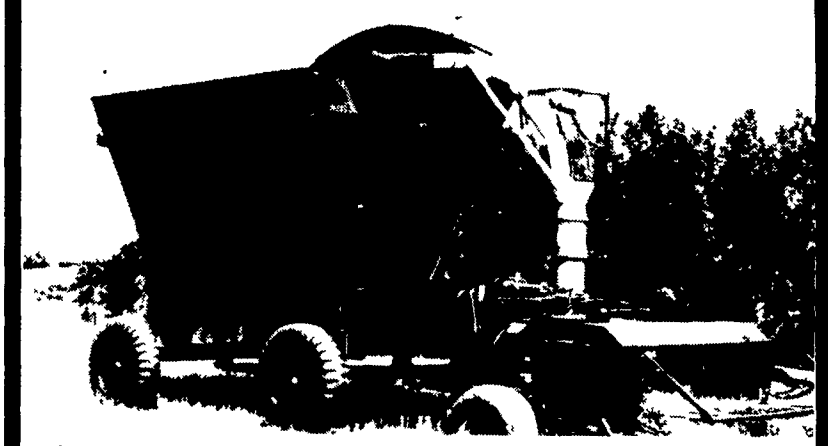
MULTI-PURPOSE DUMP WAGON

BIG, STRONG, ECONOMICAL - The Big Orange One

• Works For You • All Year Long • Wet Field Conditions • Variety of Crops



The Most Versatile High Dump Wagon

Thousands of farmers can't be wrong Many farmers still operate the Richardton High Dump Wagon they bought nearly 15 years ago They say they'll buy a new one if the old one wears out. Other farmers own two or three Richardton Wagons and use them crop after crop, season after season. Ask the man who owns one

You May Think They Are Higher Priced Than Forage Boxes — But You May Be Surprised!

STOP IN NOW - WE HAVE SOLD MANY! YOU TOO CAN BE A SATISFIED OWNER!

ADJA FOAM MARKER

A long lasting Foam Marking System that leaves highly visible strips or balls of foam. The ADJA Foam Marker is a new concept in foam generation which eliminates the need for compressors, pumps, or solution tanks, etc.

The simplicity and reliability of this state-of-the-art marker make it the most reasonably priced marking system presently available to the farming community.

Simple electronic controls allow in-cab control of on-off switch, left or right marking, foam mark size, and distance between marks. The ADJA Foam Marker is ideal for use on a variety of surfaces such as summerfallow, stubble, cultivated or disced stubble, green crops, green grass or brown grass. A totally new formula produces foam that will last for one full day or more.

IN STOCK!

Rated for 50 to 75 minimum tractor HP

for close cutting on uneven terrain — big farm acreages, orchards and highway embankments

BUSH HOG® 2615 SERIES ROTARY CUTTERS 15' CUTTING WIDTH

Check out these standard equipment features on the 2615 series You get increased strength and durability — at reduced cost

CONSTRUCTION
The rugged box section frame is designed for extra strength and a cleaner appearance Deck thickness is 10 gauge steel Massive wing hinges provide even more strength and durability Side skirts are ¼ x 8 inch steel with welded skids You get plenty of high capacity material discharge

SLIP CLUTCHES

HITCH
The swivel clevis hitch is equipped with jackstand and hoseholder and is self leveling

GEARBOXES.
The 2615 has four gearboxes A power divider gearbox rated at 125 HP features straddle mounted output shafts for greater strength All other gearboxes are rated at 75 HP Exclusive unitized gearbox stands provide extra muscle to withstand shocks of the most rugged cutting

DRIVESHAFTS
As with other Bush Hog flex wing cutters the input driveshaft is Category 5 constant velocity — for a tighter turning radius Wing shafts are Category 4, and all drivelines are shielded 540 or 1000 rpm

With the 2615 series you get even more rugged construction features and a selection of equipment for smoother, faster cutting behind your tractor

Height adjustment. Hydraulic height adjustment is available The single hydraulic cylinder controls cutting height from 1 14 inches Hydraulic wing lift is standard equipment

Independent wing lift A 3 spool hydraulic valve is available for tractors with one or more outlets With this selection you get independent wing lift and height adjustment

Blades and blade holders. ⅛ x 4-inch high strength steel uplift blades are standard equipment You can select round blade pans for maximum protection or straight blade holders

Wheels. Choice of laminated tires or 15 inch automotive wheels — dual or single wheels on the center unit

MODEL C-400 "CANNON"

Aerodynamic Design Of The "Cannon" Head Delivers

MORE AIR!

39" fan produces 280 MPH air speed. Allows you to cover 100-130 feet which means fewer trips thru the fields, fewer drive roads and more crop per acre. This design gives a well-defined, easily controlled mist, yet small cannon covers crop close to tractor.

MORE PENETRATION!

High air velocity produces a finer mist which penetrates short dense growth or tall crops such as sweet corn. Also allows smaller volumes of water with excellent coverage and fewer trips to the water tank.

Case IH Axial-Flow Combine

HERE'S THE INSIDE DIFFERENCE:

1. An impeller on the front of the rotor draws the crop and air into the rotor and threshing cage.
2. The single rotor threshes and separates the crop. Speed of rotation can be adjusted on the go.
3. Torque-sensing rotor drive automatically regulates belt tension in relation to load.
4. Three-section concaves can be removed and reinstalled by one man in less than 30 minutes. Small-wire and large-wire concaves are available to match different crops. Clearance is easily adjusted with a ratchet handle.
5. A variety of separating grates are available to best handle almost any crop you'll be harvesting.
6. Augers move the grain smoothly, positively to the cleaning sieves. Grain can't bunch up, even on steep hillsides.
7. Opposed-action adjustable sieves remove chaff from the grain.
8. Advanced-design cleaning fan with variable speed drive removes any chaff and foreign material that remains.
9. Positive discharge beater propels straw rearward to the straw spreaders. (Straw chopper is optional.)
10. Wide spread twin-rotor straw spreaders distribute discharge material uniformly and can be removed in seconds for windrowing material.

Why Axial-Flow is superior. On conventional combines, the grain passes between the cylinder and concave only once. Consequently, the threshing action is severe. But with Axial-Flow, grain is threshed several times — repeatedly, but gently — as it spirals around the single, large diameter rotor and passes through the threshing cage. Multiple threshing plus gentle threshing results in less cracked grain, less dockage at the elevator and top price for every bushel.

Centrifugal force replaces straw walkers. Axial-Flow eliminates the need for straw walkers — a substantial source of grain loss with conventional combines. Consequently, the more grain you grow, the more grain you'll save with the more efficient Axial-Flow system.

HESSTON THE PRIME LINE

Hesston Beeline Baler...
Model 4600 (14" x 18")

The Model 4600 Beeline Baler uses Hesston's exclusive Center-line design to move crop straight through from pickup to finished bale No cross augers or sweep arms. that means less maintenance and high capacity baling.

Hesston's exclusive preformed flake system means better hay distribution throughout the bale. Bales break open evenly when feeding time comes and, because of the positive bale-length control, mechanical bale stacking is precise and easy.

Field and road position are one in the same so you save time opening fields and transporting.

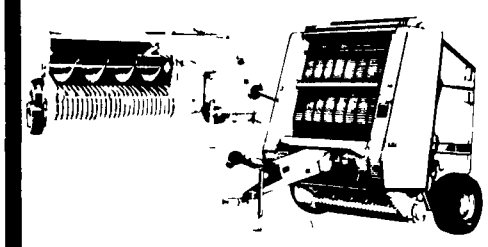
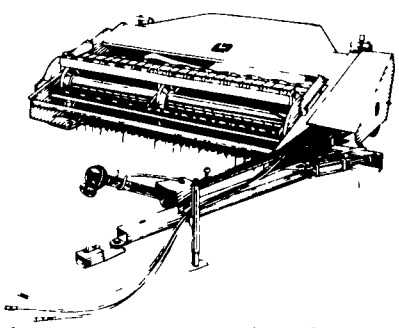
SQUARER SQUARES AND ROUNDER ROUNDS



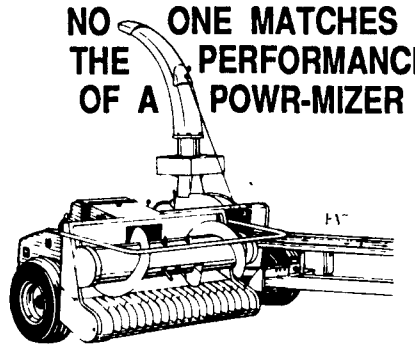
You get "square" bales because John Deere balers keep hay under firm control from pickup to kickout. And they fold hay into the bale chamber – rather than cram it in. It used to be pretty tricky to make good round bales. Now with John Deere round balers, even inexperienced operators can make perfect, firm, round bales. Just about anyone who can drive can do it – especially with the help of Bale-Trak® monitoring.

PUTS THE PRESSURE ON FOR FASTER DRYDOWN



John Deere mower/conditioners put on more pressure-per-square-inch over more crimping points. So you get better conditioning action for faster drydown.

NO ONE MATCHES THE PERFORMANCE OF A POWR-MIZER



Our pull-type forage harvesters give you more for your money... more standard features plus exclusives the competition can't give you at any price.
The exclusive Dura-Drum™ cutterhead - a standard no competitor has matched. Instead of ordinary full-width knives, our cutterhead uses rows of short, segmented knives mounted on a solid drum. This design helps cut power usage by moving cut material directly into the cross auger.

3 SILOS AND UNLOADERS

ONLY THE JAMESWAY REAL RING-DRIVE MEASURES UP.

A "make believe" ring drive is not a real ring drive if . . . it has "nuisance weights" to adjust in order to keep the machine level . . it relies on the lead auger to do part of the driving of the machine . . . it doesn't have wide wall-to-wall, three cable hexa-pod suspension . . . it has a small diameter ring.

Jamesway Volumaster Real Ring Drive Unloaders give you what you paid for—more power, smoother operation, longer life, less down time, faster unloading, less strain on the entire unloading mechanism and fewer trips up the silo.

So, have a talk with your Jamesway dealer soon and have him show you, in even more detail, how only a Real Ring Drive makes sense in today s sharp-pencil dairy business.

Youth Lamb, Feeder Pig Sale Nets $11,419

BY LISA RISSER

LEBANON — "Sold!" came auctioneer Harry H. Bachman's exultant cry 122 times as feeder pigs and lambs were sold to 54 buyers representing nine counties at the Youth To Youth Club Lamb and Pig Sale last week.

Bidding was generally brisk on the 17 lambs and 105 pigs. Three pigs in particular generated considerable interest bringing a sale high of $200 each. The pigs, sold by Daryl and Darren Grumbine of Myerstown, were sired by a $4,500 boar named Perry, who was a high finisher at the National Hampshire Show and sired the grand champion at the 1987 national barrow show. Buying the pigs were Greg Bankert of Hanover (York), Kelly Bachman of Annville (Lebanon), and Darren Grumbine.

The top bid for lambs was $130 and it went out to three animals. Making these purchases were the Kleinfelter Brothers of Myerstown (Lebanon), Michelle Bushong of Lebanon, and Greg Bankert.

The average price paid for lambs was $119.55 for a total of $2,025 while pigs sold at an average price of $89.46 for a total sales of $9,394. The night's volume buyer were Rita and Andy Germale of Elizabethtown (Lancaster) with eight pigs followed by Chad McAllister of Spring City (Chester) with six pigs.

This is the second year for the sale, which is the brainchild of Lebanon County livestock agent Ken Winebark and several county 4-H'ers. This year Winebark received a $500 National 4-H Commodity Marketing grant, one of six in the nation, which went toward promotion of the sale and inservice training for leaders and extension people for developing similar programs.

The program is designed to generate interest in breeding projects among the 4-H'ers and is a teaching tool for marketing, breeding, and sales skills.

Chad Decker from Centre County won the drawing for a free pig. The animal was purchased and then donated by Lebanon Valley National Bank, represented by Mike Fierstine, head of the agriculture department. Helping to bring the pig home to Chad was his friend Amy Alters.

The animals were supplied by eight 4-H'ers: Jennifer Arnold, Daryl and Darren Grumbine, Eric Harnish, Shelby Heagy, and Donald, Jay, and Michael Kleinfelter. Early in the day animals were brought in and eventually weighed and tagged. The breeders shared exhibitor duties.

Just prior to the sale all 4-H'ers and FFA'ers were invited to participate in a contest that rewarded buyers' certificates. The youths were asked to guess the joint weight of three pigs. Tyler Stump guessed the weight right on as 227 pounds. He received a $15 certificate good toward the purchase of an animal. The next closest guess was supplied by Doug Musser, who received a $10 certificate, followed by Greg Strickler, who received a $5 certificate.

The sale ended with a drawing open to 4-H and FFA members. Chad Decker from Centre County, who received a free pig, which donated by Lebanon Valley Bank, which originally purchased the animal.

Excess Poultry Manure Could Become New Energy, Feed Source

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre) — In Lancaster County, some 55 million chickens and 360,000 humans are peacefully co-existing, but the chickens are beginning to threaten that stability, according to a Penn State poultry scientist.

Along with the more than 55 million layers and broilers in the county comes the attendant poultry manure. In Lancaster County, the top poultry-producing county in the nation, there is just too much of it to go around.

"Poultry manure contains nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium and other nutrients, making it an ideal fertilizer for both agricultural and home gardening purposes. However, the amount of nutrients in the total animal waste from chickens and livestock far exceeds the amount the county can use on its land," said Forest Muir, associate professor of poultry science.

He has developed one solution to the problem — burning poultry litter to create energy. With funding from the Pennsylvania Chesapeake Bay Program, he demonstrated that poultry waste is a viable energy source. The broiler litter produces a lot of heat with little smoke or odor when it is burned on a constant basis at a high temperature.

"By burning poultry litter, the total amount of available animal manure in the county is reduced, thereby lessening the amount of nutrient runoff from the land into the Chesapeake Bay watershed, part of which is in Lancaster County," he said.

Currently Muir is researching uses for the ash residue from the burning of broiler litter, which is a mixture of sawdust or wood shavings and manure.

"Burning converts the nitrogen in the poultry litter to a gas, which can be removed in the furnace stack. The resulting ash contains phosphorus and potassium, components in poultry feed. Thus, the ash could be a potential feed ingredient," he said.

If the ash is found to be a safe food source, it would help justify the feasibility of burning poultry waste. Muir is continuing his tests of the ash.

"There may be heavy metals present in the ash, because burning tends to concentrate anything present in the product being burned. It is possible that the ash could contain levels of copper, lead and mercury, which are harmful to poultry," he noted.

Muir's research on using poultry manure as an energy/feed source is one important component of the multi-faceted approach to solving the Chesapeake Bay's problems. The College of Agriculture is involved in a series of projects in association with the Pennsylvania Chesapeake Bay Project.

Dr. Al Turgeon, professor and head of the Department of Agronomy, said, "The Chesapeake Bay is receiving substantial amounts of nutrients, such as nitrogen and phosphorus, causing rapid growth of algae, which shades other aquatic vegetation. This, in turn, affects the spawning of fish and other sealife.

"We are concerned about the net contribution of agricultural lands to the eutrophication (oxygen depletion) of the bay. If nitrates leach through the surface, they also affect groundwater quality. Penn State is attempting to understand and develop strategies to deal with this serious problem."

North American Limousin Foundation Has Compiled Dam Trait Leader List

DENVER, CO — The North American Limousin Foundation (NALF) has compiled a listing of approximately 200 of the top cows in each of the four traits evaluated by NALF with Expected Progeny Differences (EPD's). With the increased usage of EPD's by cattlemen across the country, a number of requests for this information has surfaced. The Limousin Dam Trait Leader List will be similar to the Limousin Sire Summary, which NALF produces every year. It will include EPD's and accuracies on birth weight, weaning weight, yearling weight and milking ability.

According to Dr. Wayne Vanderwert, director of research and education at NALF, "The qualifications and EPD ranges of the Limousin Dam Trait Leader List are equivalent to those lists found in the Sire Summary. One important difference should be noted, and that is cows do not accumulate progeny records as rapidly as bulls so a lower accuracy requirement is utilized for this listing.

"Grand progeny records also can contribute to a cow's record," said Dr. Vanderwert, "thus making it possible for cows used heavily in embryo transplant to make the trait leader list."

EPD's are available on all cattle registered by NALF including those cows with lower accuracies which do not meet the specifications to be listed in the Limousin Dam Trait Leader List. For more information on the Dam Trait Leader List contact the NALF office at 100 Livestock Exchange Building, Denver, Colorado, 80216 or call 303/296-8835.

American Hot Dogs May Get Leane

A unique experience in America is eating hot dogs — plump, greasy, bright red and put into buns to be consumed with mustard, relish, chili and gobs of onions. Visiting royalty, including Queen Elizabeth, loves them as do millions of Americans. Alas, the hot dog may get a leaner look. The government announced it is allowing hot dog and bologna processors to substitute water for fat so long as there is no loss of nutritional value, for it wants to encourage lower fat products.

Read The Label

Just recently, I had the opportunity to participate in a pesticide-applicators training workshop that was held in a community west of Dover. While I have assisted various farmers in the past regarding pesticides and their safe use, until then I had not taken the exam to become certified myself. This meeting was a way to brush up on pesticide safety and to get certified in one shot.

All of us involved with agriculture come in frequent contact with pesticides. We use them to protect our crops from insects, weeds and disease pests and to protect our livestock from diseases and parasites.

The most important questions to ask yourself are: "Am I taking the proper precautions when using pesticides?" And "Do I know the materials I'm using and how toxic they may be to me and my livestock?"

Essentially a pesticide works as a toxin, repellent, attractant or sterilant of pests. The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) currently has about 57,000 registrations for pesticide-containing products and registrations for more than 1,750 active ingredients in those products.

Pesticides come in a whole host of formulations. There are aerosols, baits, liquids, granules, emulsifiable concentrates, dusts, impregnated materials, sow release materials, oral materials and rub-on creams and lotions. Each of these materials has specific activities and comes in the form best designed to accomplish the task for which it was developed.

Pesticides work in several ways. There are short-lived contact killers that can be applied directly to pests, and residual materials that are applied so that they eventually come in contact with the target pest.

Pesticides are developed to kill or otherwise control pests, but because they have the potential hazard of killing or injuring us, too, we must be very careful in using them. The acute or quick toxicity of a pesticide is measured as the LD50. This is the amount of pesticide needed per unit of body weight to cause the death of 50 percent of the test animals exposed to it.

It is important to realize that almost any compound is toxic if consumed in a great quantity. Sugar or table salt, for example, if consumed as a rate of 4 grams (there are 454 grams in a pound) per kilogram (2.2 pounds) of body weight, will cause death in 50 percent of the test animals fed it. This is the same LD50 as malathion, a common insecticide used around livestock. The LD50 of caffeine is 225 milligrams (one milligram = 1/1000 of a gram) per kilogram of body weight, while nicotine is 1 milligram per kilogram of body weight. Lindane, another insecticide used around hogs, has an LD50 of 88 to 125 milligrams per kilogram of body weight.

Don't get me wrong. I am not advocating the consumption of pesticides, but just letting you know that some of the common everyday items we consume are toxic if taken in large-enough doses. In fact, some of these items are even more acutely toxic than certain pesticides. On the other hand, some restricted-use pesticides are extremely toxic, and misuse of any pesticides can be fatal.

In addition to their acute toxicity, some pesticide compounds also have long-lasting or chronic effects. These are the effects that you don't see immediately, such as the development of cancer, tumors and even genetic defects in unborn fetuses.

These potential problems are the reasons why all pesticides are closely scrutinized for their acute and chronic toxicity characteristics. As a matter of fact, many previously approved pesticides are now being re-reviewed by the EPA since they were originally approved at a time when the requirements for clearance were more relaxed than they currently are.

What can you do to avoid the harmful effects of pesticides?

First, read the label of any pesticide when you buy it and again when you use it. When you buy a pesticide that you have used for years, re-read the label. Many labels are being updated and contain new information.

Finally and most importantly, follow the practices described on the label. It does you no good at all to read and ignore that information. If the label tells you to wear a respirator, coveralls and gloves, by all means do so. The guidelines printed on the label were developed to protect you, the user of those pesticides. Don't take chances. The risks are too great.

Wool Show To Be First At NAILE

LOUISVILLE, KY — The 15th Annual North American International Livestock Exposition (NAILE) is scheduled at the Kentucky Fair & Exposition Center (KFEC) November 5-19, 1988. Harold Workman, NAILE Executive Director, announced the NAILE Executive Committee has approved a new event for the 1988 Expo. "For the first time, the NAILE will host a Wool Show," he said. "Fleeces from 14 breeds of purebred sheep will be judged for quality, evenness, condition, character, length and strength. Premiums totalling $1,550.00 will be awarded to the top ram and ewe fleeces in each breed, and Grand Champion and Reserve Grand Champion fleeces will be selected. "Wool competition will take place during the NAILE Sheep Show, November 12-18, 1988.

According to the Wool Show Superintendent Marilyn Fischer, of Simpsonville, KY, all fleeces entered must be from purebred sheep. She said, "Fleeces entered must have been removed from purebred sheep registered in their respective Registry Associations. All wool exhibited must be shown within the year it was shorn. In addition, all fleeces entered must have been grown on sheep owned by the exhibitor and shown in his or her name." The Wool Show entry fee is $5.00 per fleece. Sheep breeders must submit entries for the show by October 1, 1988, and all wool must be in place by 6:00 p.m., Friday, November 11, 1988. Entry forms may be obtained by contacting the NAILE offices, P.O. Box 36367, Louisville, KY, 40233, 502-588-3166.

Workman noted that fleeces may be sent prepaid, by mail or express, to: N.A.I.L.E. Wool Show, Kentucky Fair & Exposition Center, Phillips Lane at Freedom Way, Louisville, KY, 40213.

NAILE management will ensure that all fleeces are properly displayed. Each fleece sent to NAILE offices must be properly tagged, including breeder's name, sheep breed, sex, and class entered.

The NAILE is the largest all-breed, purebred livestock shown in the world. The giant, two-week expo annually attracts livestock exhibitors from across the United States and visitors from many foreign countries. Nearly 15,000 livestock enteries will compete for more than $300,000 in premiums and awards.

For further information contact: Harold Workman, Executive Director, North American International Livestock Exposition, P.O. Box 36367, Louisville, Kentucky 40233, 502-588-3166; or Brock-Kalvar Associates, Inc., 756 South First Street, Louisville, kentucky 40202, 502-584-8060.

IRS Compromises On "Heifer Tax"

As a compromise to the repeal of the "heifer tax," the IRS will allow a producer to use cost estimates provided by the Treasury.

Regulations, however, still require a producer to capitalize his expenses. The change doesn't lower or end the tax, rather it eliminates the task of tracking and figuring the costs.

The "heifer tax" requires a producer to wait until a heifer delivers her first calf before costs of raising her can be recognized for tax purposes.

National Cattle Association officials as well as other industry officals are still seeking a revenue-neutral ammendment that would provide for substitue revenue.

This large, round baler from Case IH features several automated functions that allow hay growers to make better bales more quickly while making baler operation easier. The Model 8460 is the largest of four new large round balers from Case IH.

Case IH Increases Baler Line

RACINE, WI — Case IH added four new large round balers to its extensive line of hay and forage equipment.

The 8400 Series of variable chamber design balers includes the Models 8420, 8440, 8450 and 8460. All offer advanced features to produce well-formed bales from a variety of crops and crop residues.

The advanced design provides Case IH variable chamber balers and hay producers with faster bale starts and dense bales. A direct feed, open-throat bale chamber and an effective starter roll combine to simplify starting a bale.

A low-profile pickup preserves hay quality by reducing leaf loss. The crop smoothly travels a short distance vertically before entering the bale chamber, minimizing windrow disturbance.

The smallest Case IH round baler, the Model 8420 can be operated by a 30-PTO-horsepower tractor with a single remote hydraulic outlet.

The Model 8420 builds compact 3-foot-wide bales (up to 4.5 feet in diameter and weighing up to 550 pounds) that can be easily loaded and transported even in tight quarters.

For mid-range baling needs, the Case IH 8400 Series include the Model 8440 for 5-foot-wide bales with a maximum diameter of 5 feet and 1,100 pounds maximum weight. The Model 8440 features automatic pickup stop to prevent overfilling, electrically actuated twine wrap and audio alert when a pre-selected bale size is reached.

Four-foot-wide bales facilitate side-by-side highway transport of large round bales. When 4-foot-wide bales are preferred, the Model 8450 makes bales of up to 6-foot diameter and weighing up to 1,666 pounds. The Model 8450 features audio bale-full alert, overfill protection, hydraulic twine wrap and slip-clutch protected drives.

The Model 8460 is the largest of the series. It offers several standard features that reduce workloads and decrease the time necessary to harvest quality hay. For example, functions such as twine wrapping, tailgate raising and lowering, bale ejecting and declutching are all automatic.

The Model 8460 builds 5-foot-wide bales of up to 6-foot diameter and 2,200 pounds in weight. It features a 73-inch-wide pickup, an eight-belt bale chamber, a windguard for light crops and windy conditions, a bale-full alarm, overfill protection and slip-clutch protected drives. All help provide fast production of labor-saving large round bales in a variety of crops and conditions.

Agway Introduces Line Of Forage-Preservation Products

SYRACUSE, NY — Agway Inc. has announced the introduction of a line of forage-preservative products. Dubbed "The Fresh Line," the new offering consists of four products: "Field Fresh" Hay Preservative, "Fresh Dry" Hay Conditioner, "Silage Fresh" Enzyme Additive, and "Silage Fresh" Bacterial Inoculant.

The goal of this new product line, according to farm specialties business manager, Keith Detrick, is to offer Agway customers a forage-preservative product superior to anything previously available.

Field Fresh allows safe baling at moisture levels as high as 30 percent, preventing overheating, mold, and spoilage. Fresh Dry penetrates the waxy cuticle layer on cut alfalfa stems and helps equalize the drying rate with that of the faster-drying leaves. With drying time cut in half, hay can be cut and baled at peak maturity for higher-protein content.

Silage Fresh Enzyme Additive reduces heat and pH levels in silage to promote efficient fermentation. By comparison with the enzyme additive formerly carried by Agway, Silage Fresh contains an increased amount of the sugar-producing enzyme group required to speed fermentation.

Silage Fresh Bacterial Inoculant represents the newest in forage-preservative technology. It's proven to provide a headstart in fermentation by lowering pH and nutrient-robbing heat faster.

These new products are the result of the combined research efforts of the Agway Research and Development staff and university researchers.

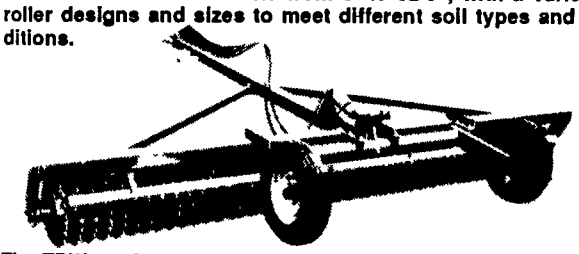
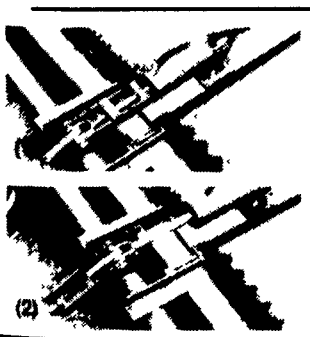
NEW TPW WIDTH-WISE TRANSPORT PULVERIZERS

As the leading manufacturer of pulverizers, Brillion builds a wide range of single and multiple gang, as well as folding models. Sizes are available from 6' to 32'8", with a variety of roller designs and sizes to meet different soil types and conditions.



The TPW model pulverizer may be transported width-wide and is designed to tow behind other implements, such as field cultivators and disc harrows. The machine is raised from field to transport position, hydraulically, without detaching from other implements.

This view shows the Model TPWH-16 (with 20" notched rollers) in transport position. Road clearance between ground and roller wheels is 10-11". Drawbar braces are 3" x 2"; the drawbar is 5" x 5" x 153" long for easy turns. Hose holder and drawbar jack are standard equipment. Clevis hitch has a flat spring holder for easy one-man hook-up.



TRANSPORT LOCK

(1) The transport lock forms a "cage" around the hydraulic cylinder to avoid accidental lowering of the pulverizer in transport. (2) In field operation, the lock is opened and the cylinder rod moves freely.

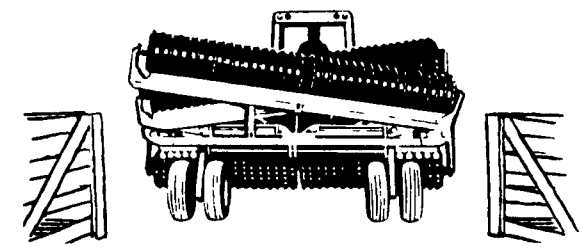
BRILLION PULVERIZERS

WIDE IN THE FIELD



COMPACT IN TRANSPORT

The X-Fold pulverizers are designed to meet the needs of today's larger acreage farmers...and Brillion offers them in two models and 11 sizes from 19' through 36'. A single tractor hydraulic system raises the machine and folds the wings With its X-Fold configuration, the transport height is reduced to less than eight feet, well below low hanging utility wires or tree branches. The low profile provides safe, stable road travel.

Transport widths are 10'1" or 13'4", depending on model. An automatic transport lock secures the pulverizer for travel, releases when in working position — all with tractor seat control. And Brillion provides a choice of four styles of roller wheels — 18" smooth (with or without sprockets), 20" crowfoot or 20" notched rollers.

With the X-Folds you not only cover more acreage, but you also break up hard clods, firm the soil — free of air pockets and push down small stones...and you get Brillion quality for years of durability and performance.

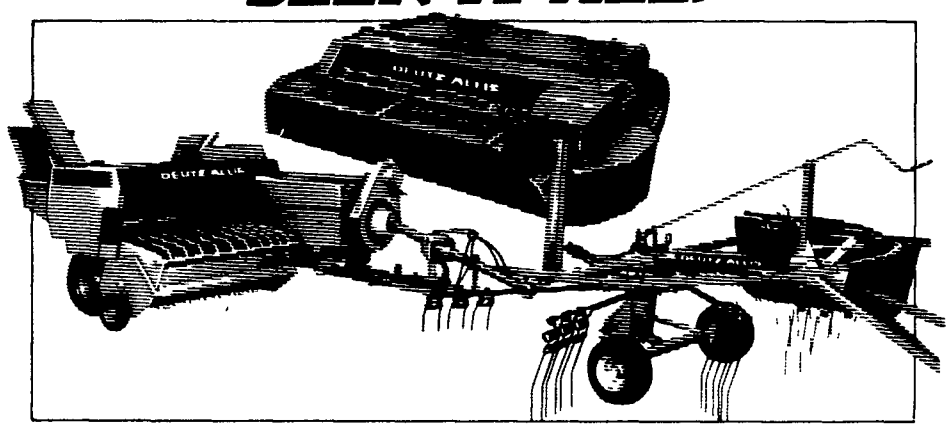
Deutz-Allis Hay Equipment.

IF YOU HAVEN'T SEEN IT, YOU HAVEN'T SEEN IT ALL.



You're looking at "world class" hay tools, with unique advantages.

See our HD square balers. A wide pickup feeds the rugged plunger that glides on ten sealed roller bearings at 100 strokes per minute. Makes dense, uniform 14 x 18-inch bales. Knotters are gear driven, eliminating chain noise and wear.

See our GP series round balers. Fixed chamber steel rollers compress material from the outside in... to lock in nutrients and resist moisture. The 67-inch wide hydraulic pickup gathers all the windrow so you get all the hay in the bale.

See our Deutz-Allis mowers. SM disc mowers have rotating discs with paired knives that overlap from disc to disc for uniform mowing even in wet, tangled and down crops. Also available with a conditioner in three sizes.

And check out our drum mowers, including a front-mounted model to let you cut an extra swath and cover acreage in half the time.

See our rotary rakes and tedders. Rotary rakes carry and fluff hay into the windrow instead of beating, bunching and rolling it. Rotary tedders gently spread-out or fluff the hay for faster drying. Our combination rotary tedder/rake easily changes from raking to tedding.

PFU Sponsors Leadership Training Session

HARRISBURG (Dauphin)— The Pennsylvania Farmers Union recently sponsored a Leadership Training Session for its members and held a Legislative Day here.

Approximately 40 of the PFU Leadership attended the Conference conducted by David Carter, secretary of the National Farmers Union. It proved to be very productive and informative, lending an opportunity to the leaders of the organization for gathering key insight into their roles and responsibilities. William Sturges, executive director of the PFU, commented, "The conference was well received by our leadership and should prove to be very beneficial to the organization." Representative Connie Maine (D-6) addressed the group at lunch on the importance of being seen and heard in Harrisburg.

In conjunction with the Leadership Training Conference, a Legislative Day was held also. The day began with an informal breakfast attended by both members of the Senate and House Agriculture Committees. Representative Sam Morris, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee and Senator Roger Madigan addressed the group with a question and answer period following. Allen Deiter, president of the PFU, stated, "Continued support for PFU's efforts in preserving the family farm was evident from the legislators present." "We need to work together with our elected officials to achieve this goal," Deiter continued.

Cheryl Cook, legislative assistant for the National Farmers Union, wrapped things up with some insight on lobbying techniques.

Following the breakfast, the PFU members visited the Capitol and lobbied on issues such as, local tax reform, farmland preservation, crop damage and agricultural vandalism.

Prepare Bins For Spring Grain Harvest

NEWARK, DE — Growers sometimes wait until the last minute to prepare storage bins for their new small grain crops. But it pays to start the job early enough to clean bins and make the repairs and alterations needed to maintain the quality of the grain until it can be sold.

Before tackling this chore, make sure you have the necessary safety equipment on hand. This is very important because the dust in the bins will become air-borne when you start cleaning. Wear good particle or dust respirators when going into any bin, and provide as much air as possible.

"This may seem like a lot of bother," says University of Delaware Extension agricultural agent Dean Belt, "but if you've ever known a farmer suffering from the lung problems associated with grain-bin dust and molds, you'll agree that these precautions are worth the trouble."

Bin preparation involves a number of procedures. Basically, though, your goal is to make bins rodent proof and leak free and to ensure that loading can take place with as little loss of grain and time as possible, the county agent says.

Clean dust, old grain and dirt from ceilings, ledges and walls. Also remove spilled grain and other debris from bin floors and the ground outside. This trash harbors weevils that can infest the new grain.

Methoxychlor 50% WP	1 lb/3 gal water	treats 500 sq ft
Methoxychlor 25% EC	1 qt/3 gal water	treats 500 sq ft
Malathion Premium Grade	1 pt/3 gal water	treats 500 sq ft
Pyrethrins 6% EC plus piperonyl butoxide 60%	1 pt/7 gal water	treats 700 sq ft

Don't forget to clean any equipment that might still have grain left on it from the last harvest. Neglecting this step is one quick way to infest a new crop, Belt says.

You can also add a grain protectant when filling bins. Apply this as the grain enters the auger. One product labeled for direct use on grain is premium-grade malathion 57 percent EC. Use this at the rate of 1 pint in 2 to 5 gallons of water per 1,000 bushels of grain. There are also products which can be applied dry such as Loreland 2% Grain Protector or Big 6 Dust.

"Such precautions can help prevent problems later on," Belt says. "Store only clean grain at the proper moisture level."

For more information on protecting stored grain, Delaware growers are encouraged to contact their county Extension office in Newark (451-8934), Dover (697-4000) or Georgetown (856-7303). Ask for a copy of the fact sheet "Insect Control in Farm-Stored Grain."

IT CONTINUES TO BE A TAXING SITUATION

JESSE G. COOPER
Farm Management Extension

If you or your tax preparer had a rough time preparing your federal income tax return this year, what better time than now to do some tax planning, and even make changes so things will go better next year.

Here are a few do's and don't's that occur to me as I reflect back on some of the most common farmer tax problems I had to deal with this past season.

If you are not doing so already, take the necessary time come next October to make a fairly reliable estimate of what your total farm income and expenses will be for the entire year. Add in any non-farm income, expenses, adjust your personal deductions and exemptions for 1988 rates and calculate your tax bill. Knowing what your year's taxes are likely to be in October is certainly preferable to being in the dark till February or March, when it's too late to make many adjustments in the previous years business - and your only recourse may be a quick call to your banker with the object of borrowing enough money to pay an unexpectedly large tax bill.

That leads directly to my next suggestion. I'm well aware that there are many, many farmers across the State who are fiercely independent, and unwilling to share much information about their farming operations with anyone (especially financial information). That has to change. Few farmers are complete masters of every aspect of their profession, and they could measurably improve their operations if they would on occasion seek advice or help from other qualified people in the community. This may be a neighboring farmer, your farm accountant, banker, extension agents, a fieldman for your cooperative or other family members. More and more farmers who in the past hired accountants to "do their taxes," are leaning on them not only for tax management counseling but assistance in evaluating other farm financial decisions as well. Remember that the final decisions are still yours to make, but it doesn't hurt to have someone help you think things through on occasion.

All too often, tax problems arise when farms are sold. Part of the problem arises because under the new tax law all of the capital gain on these sales is now taxed at a maximum rate of 28 percent. However, not every seller has adequate records to verify how much he originally paid for the property. Adequate information is often lacking also on depreciation of assets. Lacking these and other records, the seller ends up paying more to the IRS than would have been necessary had this information been available. Make sure that you have the tax information you would need should you sell your property. Again you might want to check this matter out with a tax accountant NOW - not after the farm has been sold.

Somewhat to my surprise, most families with young children have applied for or gotten Social Security numbers for their youngsters. Members of the Amish and other religious sects should also know that there is a special Form 4029 they can fill out to exempt their children from the need to acquire a Social Security number.

Any discussion of the new tax law as it causes problems for farmers cannot ignore the matter of preproductive expenses for livestock requiring over two years to bring into production. The question of whether or not a dairy farmer should continue to write off his calf raising expenses as a current deduction on his schedule, or accumulate and recover these costs as depreciation once the heifer comes into production, is a sticky one. This decision has to be made on an individual basis, since it depends on the situation. Deducting heifer raising costs currently as has been our practice is obviously the easy way out, and perhaps when everything is weighed, the best way for most farmers to go. You may be the exception. I can only wonder how many IRS auditors will have the courage to take on a farm audit and responsibly question the capitalization approach a particular farmer chooses to use.

By the way, it is possible to get an extension of time to submit a completed tax return. You must, however, have a good reason for your request, such as information needed to complete your return not being available yet; death or health problems in the family, or a major disruption in your business - a fire, for example. The request for an extension must be filed prior to April 15 and must be accompanied by payment of the total amount of tax you expect to owe when the completed tax return is finally submitted.

Belated discovery of additional expenses or income (or a 1099 you overlooked), even a mistake in addition, are all solid reasons why you should not hesitate to fill an amended tax return. It may be a smart move on your part to have a reliable tax preparer do it for you.

I have one final suggestion related to our Pennsylvania income tax system. Our State has a particular feature on its PA 40 known as an SP that permits a reduction in an individual's state taxes under certain conditions. Its primary purpose is to reduce the state tax that must be paid by folks with limited taxable income and little financial support from other sources such as relatives. Nontaxable pensions and Social Security payments also need to be known to calculate the SP credit. Perhaps you know someone that could use an SP to save some tax dollars. Check it out.

New Live Poultry Vaccine Ready

ASL/Schering is marketing the first federally licensed live F Strain MG vaccine.

New F VAX-MG(TM) is being offered by ASL for easy mass administration as an aid in prevention of clinical signs of Mycoplasma gallisepticum infection.

The vaccine contains a specially selected milk reacting vaccine strain for effective, low-cost vaccination programming, the company said.

Lyophilized for stability and convenience, the vaccine is grown with state-of-the-art fermentation technology for consistently high titers.

Scout Now For Small Grain Pests

NEWARK, DE — Now that corn planting is well underway, don't forget to scout small grains for early signs of pest activity. Small grains are rapidly growing and it's important to take time to scout these fields for early signs of pest activity. Losses from small grain pests can approach 10 to 20 percent if economic populations are not controlled, so scout early and develop effective control strategies.

During the past several weeks, Delaware plant pest survey technicians have been surveying grain fields throughout the state for insect and disease pests. The predominant pest species found have been aphids and powdery mildew. In general, population levels have not reached treatment levels, but economic levels could still develop so fields should be monitored on a weekly basis.

When scouting for aphids, be sure to check fields from jointing through the heading stage. Check five linear foot of row in at least 10 areas throughout a field for the presence of aphids. Before the grain heads, we recommend treatment if you find 200 aphids per linear foot of row and the grain is 11 inches or taller. When grain is heading, a treatment may be needed if you find an average of 20 aphids per head.

While scouting for aphids, be sure to check wheat on a weekly basis for powdery mildew and rust infections. Even though powderly mildew can generally be found in low to moderate levels at this time, it has the potential to spread if cool, humid conditions persist. Extension plant pathologist Bob Mulrooney recommends applying fungicides for powdery mildew when the following conditions exist:

* Powdery mildew covers 5 to 10 percent of the upper two leaves;
* The crop has a minimum yield potential of 60 to 70 bushels per acre;
* A susceptible variety is grown;
* Favorable weather conditions persist.

Optimum conditions for mildew development include temperatures between 54 to 68 degrees, high humidity, high nitrogen fertilization and dense plant growth. Temperatures over 85 degrees will check mildew growth, but development does not depend on rainfall.

When it comes to leaf rust, infections are most likely to occur in early planted wheat, highly susceptible varieties like Hart and Tyler, and when temperatures range in the 70s and 80s. Be sure that sprays are not applied too early since reinfection can occur and an additional application may be needed when the flag leaf emerges.

Growers and entomologists alike would agree that armyworms pose the greatest threat to small grain producers. During the month of April, blacklight trap catches have been extremely low due to the cool weather. Since armyworm outbreaks result from spring-laid eggs, larvae resulting from current egg laying will not be detected until mid May.

Small grain fields should be checked for small larvae on field edges and lodged areas. Check under debris and at the base of the plants in five linear foot of row between two rows in at least 10 sites within a field. In general, treatment is recommended if you find two armyworms per linear foot of row and most larvae are greater than half an inch long. However, if plants are yellowing and you see stem clipping, one worm per foot of row justifies control.

Along with armyworms, be sure to watch for the development of grass sawfly populations. Sawfly head and stem clipping generally peaks before armyworm activity begins — approximately May 10. Economic losses from sawflies generally occur by May 25, so treatments applied after this date don't pay.

Since sawflies feed during the day and are usually found on the plants (unlike armyworms), shake the plants along five foot of row toward the innerspace between two rows. Treat when you find an average of two or more larvae per five foot of row innerspace.

Delaware residents who want further information on in-season pest activity can call the Delaware Cooperative Extension System's Crop Pest Hotline at 1-800-345-7544. Out-of-state residents can call 1-302-451-8851.

Burley Tobacco Assessment

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture announced today that producers and purchasers will each be assessed one cent per pound, for a total of two cents, for the 1988 crop of burley tobacco.

The two-cent assessment covers a no-net-cost assessment of 1.6 cent per pound and a budget deficit assessment of .4 cents per pound.

USDA's Commodity Credit Corporation consulted with the two producer-owned associations that provide price support for burley tobacco before determining the no-net-cost assessment.

The budget deficit assessment, .2 cent per pound for producers and .2 cent per pound for purchasers, is imposed as required by amendments made to the Agricultural Act of 1949 by the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1987. These amendments provide for a 1.4 percent reduction in the level of price support or an assessment on producers and purchasers of tobacco to achieve an equal reduction in outlays by CCC.

The no-net-cost assessments ensure that the tobacco price support program will be operated at no-net-cost to taxpayers.

Producers who do not pay the no-net-cost assessment will not be eligible for price support loans on their 1988 crop burley tobacco. They also will be subject to a penalty equal to 75 percent of the 1987 average market price for burley tobacco for each pound of tobacco they market.

Heifer Donated To Benefit Scholarship Fund

ST. JOSEPH, MO — Goshen Angus Farm of Paris, Kentucky, has donated a registered Angus heifer to the American Angus Auxiliary to provide funds for the Auxiliary's scholarship fund, reports Scholarship Chairman Lois Foster, Niles, Michigan.

The heifer will be sold at an auction during the 1988 American Angus Breeders' Futurity during July 31 to August 2 in Louisville, Kentucky. She is GF Jestress 720 sired by Premier Valedictorian, who was grand champion bull at the Angus Futurity and reserve grand champion bull at the National Western Stock Show. Her dam is Fabulous Gal 163W, who won reserve grand champion heifer honors at the Fort Worth Stock Show.

The American Angus Auxiliary offered its first scholarships in 1956. The total fund that year was $300. Since then the organization has paid out $83,500 in scholarships, a good share of that is the result of 29 registered Angus heifers that have been donated by Angus breeders who have an interest in encouraging the education of deserving farm and ranch youngsters. The Scholarship Trust Fund annually receives many additional contributions and gifts from interested individuals.

In 1988 the Auxiliary will award a total of $7,200 to five girls and five boys, Lois Foster reports. Applicants must be high school seniors and active in Angus projects as well as school, community and church activities. This year's top five winners in the boys and girls category will receive $1,200 for first; $900, second; $700, third; $500, fourth and $300, fifth. The deadline for entries in the program is June 27. Applications for the scholarship program may be requested from the chairman, Lois Foster, 11893 M-140, Niles, Michigan 49120.

Soilmover Scraper Gets Facelift From Automatic

PENDER, NE — The popular Soilmover Model 50 Scraper has received a rare facelift for 1988 according to Ryder Supply Company. Main-frame side panels have been changed from channel and plate to tube construction for smoother profile with no loss in strength. The gooseneck on four-wheel model has been redesigned to match the new profile. In addition, the new model features improved hydraulics and added blade support in the bucket. In a marketing change, tires are included as standard equipment. The revisions help to make the Soilmover 50 an even better value for owners of medium-size farm tractors. The Scraper features a low-profile bucket, which operates almost parallel to the ground for uniform cut. The front gate swings up, and the bucket dumps almost 90 degrees to empty completely. The Scraper handles 5 cubic feet per trip and can be operated in tandem to haul twice as much with the same horsepower.

For further details contact the manufacturer, Automatic Equipment Mfg. Co., Department NR, Box P, Pender, Nebraska 68047, 402-385-3051, or the Distributor, Ryder Supply Company, 539 Falling Spring Road, Box 219, Chambersburg, PA 17201, phone (717) 263-9111.

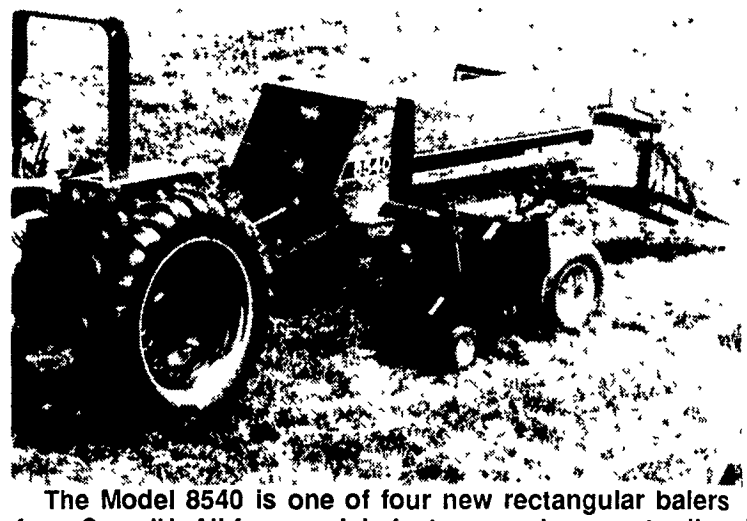
Center-Line Design Simplifies, Improves Balers

RACINE, WI — Tightly formed hay bales of consistent size, shape and weight are produced by the 8500 Series rectangular balers from Case IH. The new series includes the Models 8520, 8530, 8540 and 8550.

A unique center-line design, coupled with wide, low-profile pickups and high-speed plungers, make these rectangular balers more dependable and productive than traditional balers. Unlike the two 90-degree turns required by conventional balers, the crop travels a straight line. Simple, straight-through crop movement reduces disturbance of the windrow, preserving the nutritious leaves. Straight-through action provides bales that are inherently square and true with no left to right density changes that curve bales. Wide, low-profile pickups assure that crop is swept up cleanly from the windrow and that the crop moves only a short distance vertically before entering the pickup for less windrow disturbance and leaf loss. Unique design high-speed plungers (92 to 105 per minute depending on the model) help provide uniform bales, high capacity and reduce wear by as much as 30 percent. A prepacker chamber preforms flakes before the hay enters the bale chamber. Preforming produces bales with more uniform density that are easier to haul, stack and feed.

Center-line design also keeps the baler directly behind the tractor for less side draft on hillsides, makes it easier to use gates and eliminates the need to move bales away from the second windrow when opening a field. Transport is easy since no changing from field to roading position is required.

Durability is improved by an optional axle-mounted wagon hitch. Unlike bale-chamber-mounted hitches the axle mount protects the bale chamber from distortion that prevents a good cutting action between the stationary knives and the knives on the plunger. And 8500 Series balers are constructed with heavy duty bearings and gears, a rugged frame and heavy-gauge sheet metal to offer greater reliability.



The Model 8540 is one of four new rectangular balers from Case IH. All four models feature a unique center-line design that minimizes movement and turning of the hay to save more of thenutritious leaves.

Genetic "Road Signs" Guide Researchers To Higher-Yielding Corn

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A U.S. Department of Agriculture scientist is tagging corn genes with easily followed "road signs" that could take the guesswork out of breeding economically important traits into new corn varieties.

Charles W. Stuber of USDA's Agricultural Research Service said the road signs act as easily spotted markers for tracing genes that control a certain trait — and for determining whether those genes have passed from parent plants to offspring.

This research eventually may lead to cutting in half the time it takes to develop corn with traits such as better disease resistance, increased sturdiness and faster growth, he said.

"Being able to track when a gene, and therefore, a trait, has passed from donor to recipient or parent to offspring should reduce the time needed to create a new variety from an average of 10 years to four or five," said Stuber, a geneticist at the Agency's Plant Science Research Laboratory in Raleigh, N.C.

He already has had some success at marking the gene sequences on the corn chromosomes that directly affect yield. "By selecting strictly on genetic type based on the presence or absence of certain markers, we have been able to manipulate yield significantly in either direction," Stuber said.

Stuber sees yield as a major challenge because control of this trait involves so many genes.

Traditionally, plant breeders have depended on the time-consuming process of crossing parent stock, growing and evaluating the offspring and selecting top performers. Then they continue making crosses for a number of generations to fix the trait so it will always appear in the new variety.

"Sometimes the top plants may have performed well by chance — they may simply have been in a good spot in the field rather than having improved genes," the scientist said.

Using about 70 markers, which were developed by other researchers, to tag different parts of the corn's chromosomes, Stuber doesn't have to depend on such trial and error.

"If you think of the chromosomes as a highway across the U.S., these unique markers act as easy-to-see road signs we're erected to point out 70 big cities. We're looking for a particular intersection — gene group — somewhere in one big city," Stuber said. "As more markers are developed, we'll be able to post signs at smaller and smaller 'towns' on the chromosomes."

To see whether the genes and their attached markers are present, Stuber grinds up a small piece of a gene-marked corn plant into a plate of gel. An electrical charge pushes the marker-gene products through the gel at different speeds, forming dark bands that can be read like the bar codes used on consumer products.

"Once the controlling genes are identified and a marker attached, you will be able to weed out unsuccessful offspring — whether you are doing genetic engineering in the lab or breeding in the field — without having to grow the plants to maturity," he said.

Stuber is not sure exactly how he will be able to map controlling genes for all of corn's traits. But, he said, his work gives breeders more direction than they have now. "I should at least be able to tell them, 'if you want to improve such and such a characteristic, concentrate on this particular chromosome,' " he said.

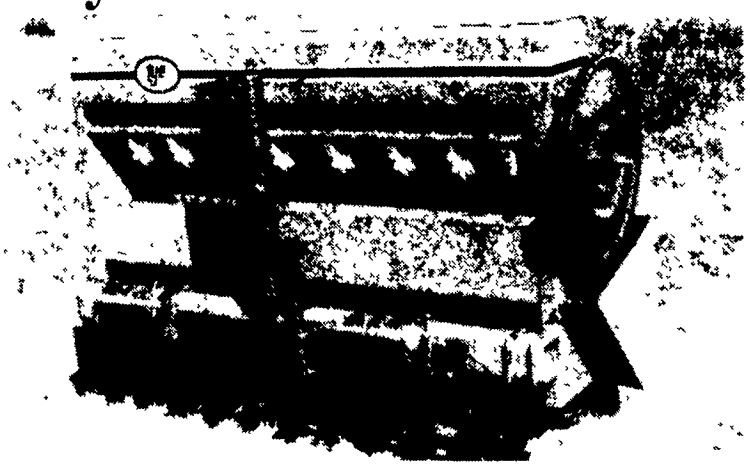
Tye Presents New Landscape Seeder



This seeder can meter small seed as well as larger seed such as wheat-grasses.

EPHRATA (Lancaster)— The Tye Company introduces their new landscape seeder. The Tye landscape seeder can accurately meter small seed such as Bermuda grass and Bluegrass, as well as larger seeds such as Wheatgrasses.

The Tye Landscape Seeder is equipped with a Star Roll that scores the soil surface to provide an improved seedbed. Also standard with the Tye Landscape Seeder is a packer/roller to firm and finish the seedbed.

The Tye Landscape Seeder is distributed by Hamilton Equipment, Inc. For more information or the name of your nearest dealer, contact Hamilton Equipment, Inc., P.O. Box 478, Ephrata, PA 17522; al tractor might not hack it. Payton explains the hydrostatic drive lets the operator match crop and forward speed to engine power. Coupled with superior traction, this makes the 100 PTO hp "276" compare favorably with larger conventional tractors.

A new look in spreader design.

More than 7 years ago, Hedlund/Martin introduced the Scavenger—a manure spreader based on an entirely new technology.

Gone were unreliable apron chains and "rooster comb" beaters. Gone were leaky endgates. Gone were the old-fashioned boxy shape. In their place—a unique patented square auger and side-discharge expeller reel. And with its welded Unibody construction, Scavenger looked like nothing before.

Unmatched performance.

While some of these look-alike units are perfectly adequate for certain manure-spreading application, none can match Scavenger's overall versatility. Scavenger spreads all kinds of manure—liquid, semi-solid, pen pack (even frozen)—all year 'round. In even spread patterns up to 50 feet. All in one machine.

So when you find it's time to purchase a new spreader, take a hard look at your choices. Don't be misled by spreaders that claim to do it all. Compare actual capabilities. We think you'll find your choice obvious. You'll choose the spreader with unmatched performance—Scavenger.

See for yourself.

For a firsthand look at Scavenger, see your local Hedlund/Martin dealer. Or write: Hedlund/Martin, Inc., A Gehl Company, 741 Kutztown Road, Myerstown, PA 17067. Telephone: 717-933-4151.

Ford New Holland Updates Bidirectional Tractor

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster)— Product performance gets a significant boost thanks to updates for the Versatile Bidirectional™ tractor from Ford New Holland. Drive-train design changes have boosted tractive effort 10 percent, according to Product Manager Jim Payton. He says the increase is the result of improvements in hydrostatics, splitter box, drop housing and spindles. In addition, axle-tube wall thickness has been increased. Other changes include a more-durable frame and improved hydraulics.

Payton says the Bidirectional Model 276 is winning friends coast to coast on both sides of the U.S./Canadian border. The ability to mount sprayers, planters, cultivators, tillage units, and other implements at either end of the "276" lets operators double up on field work in critical planting and harvest times. This also can save an extra tractor on the job, Payton notes.

Dairymen and beef producers like the all-hydrostatic four-wheel drive to spread and pack silage in trench and bunker silos. With the loader mounted on the cab end, the operator has exceptional visibility, making it a superior loader to feed out silage, move dirt or haul manure.

Time-pressed hay growers have already figured out how to team up a 14-foot swather head on the cab end of the unit with a 12-foot pivot-tongue model 499 Haybine mower-conditioner at the other end to cut 26 feet of alfalfa on every pass through the field.

The "276" Versatile Bidirectional tractor from Ford New Holland has hydrostatic four-wheel drive. Operator's seat and console rotate to face either direction for best visibility in either "push or pull" work modes. Live PTO and Category II three-point hookup are available for either or both ends. Planting, haying and harvesting work is simplified. In winter it feeds cattle and removes snow.

Dogs Need 1988 Licenses At Age Six Months

HARRISBURG (Dauphin)— Pennsylvanians who have failed to purchase 1988 licenses for their dogs 6 months of age or older are violating the law and could be fined up to $300 for each unlicensed dog, an official of the State Department of Agriculture warns.

William K. Kennedy, director of the Department's Bureau of Dog Law Enforcement, noted that the Pennsylvania State Dog Law requires owners to obtain dog licenses by Jan. 1 of each year. Licenses are available by contacting the local county treasurer's office.

Kennedy said state Dog Law wardens will canvass counties and municipalities throughout the state in coming months. Wardens and police officers will prosecute the owners of dogs that have not been licensed, he warned.

"Licensing provides valuable protection for the dog, its owner and the public," Kennedy said. "When a dog strays or becomes lost, the license is frequently the only way to trace the owner and return the animal.

"By purchasing a license, the owner shows he cares enough to get the dog back," he said. "A license provides your pet's best chance of finding a way home."

While conducting their license canvasses, wardens also will check to see that all dogs and house cats 3 months of age or older have been vaccinated against rabies. Violations of the state's rabies law can bring fines of up to $300 a day.

Shielded Liners Reduce The Spread of Mastitis

KANSAS CITY, MO. — Research reports indicate that dairymen can reduce the spread of mastitis in their herds by an average of 10 percent by using shielded liners, according to the National Institute for Research in Dairying (NIRD). Presently, the DeLaval 01S Shielded Liner, manufactured by Alfa-Laval Agri, Inc., is the only shielded inflation available in the United States.

According to NIRD, the only significant way that a properly functioning milking machine can contribute to bacterial penetration of the streak canal, and thus cause infection, is through milk particle impacts on the teat end.

The DeLaval 01S Liner contains a small, plastic shield which virtually eliminates these impacts. The shield prevents milk from spraying back into the liner, yet permits efficient milk flow during the normal milking phase.

In a series of field trials conducted by Alf-Laval in the United States, the 01S Shielded Liner proved to be effective in reducing new mastitis infections and somatic cell counts. These trials followed British trials conducted on 15 dairy herds in England and 16 herds in Australia.

In the British trials, shielded inflations were fitted into two teat cups in each milking machine cluster. New infection rates were then measured over a six-month period. Results from the combined tests indicated that the shields prevented about 10 percent of the quarters from becoming infected.

Among the herds in which cows were teat dipped after milking, the reduction in new infections attributed to the inflation shields was 15 percent. In cows not infected at the start of the trial, the reduction was 23 percent.

According to Richard Hunt, Technical Director at Alfa-Laval, when shielded liners are used in a conscientious program of teat sanitation, milking-machine maintenance and good milking practices, up to 70 percent of new mastitis infection can be prevented.

"Since impacts are the most significant way in which a correctly functioning milking machine can contribute to bacterial penetration of the streak canal," Hunt said, "the use of shielded liners should be considered a standard management tool in any mastitis-prevention program."

ASCS Recommends Pre-Measuring Acreage Before Planting

BERKS COUNTY — To avoid unnecessary worry over the loss of 1988 farm program benefits, Donald E. Lutz, chairman of the Berks County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, recommends that farmers request pre-measurement of their acreage before planting.

We offer pre-measurement service to assure farmers that they are in compliance with the acreage reduction regulations, and that their acreage reports are accurate, Lutz said.

For a reasonable fee, ASCS will guarantee field sizes for the program year and help producers plan which fields to plant to various crops. The service consists of measuring, staking and referencing fields. Farmers are required to plant within the stakes that are placed when the land is measured and to report their crop acreage to the ASCS office when planting is completed, Lutz said.

To be eligible for price support loans, deficiency payments and other 1988 farm program benefits, all program participants must report their planted crops, acreage conservation reserve (set-aside acres) and other acreage. The ASCS official said pre-measurement is important in helping farmers plan which fields to devote to ACR and which fields to plant.

ASCS is accepting pre-measurement service requests now. In order to service the requests on a timely basis, farmers are encouraged to apply early.

Let's consider what his neighbors are saying:

1 Joe thought he saw him test driving those new "Big Thinkers" from Massey-Ferguson the 115-hp* M-F 3630 and the 130-hp* M-F 3650 Datatronic ™/Autotronic™ tractors Did he buy one and not tell them?

2 Pete heard him say his tractor automatically controls wheelslip for greater productivity. Pete says you're cheating if you don't lift and lower implements yourself to prevent spinning out in tough spots

3 He told Ron he hasn't had ringing ears and backaches since he got the "Silent Revolution" cab with deluxe, swivel seat and filtered, climate-controlled air Ron says you have to breathe dust, brave icy winds and have hearing loss to be a real farmer

4 He told John he saves time, fuel, seed, fertilizer and chemicals by using radar to measure his exact ground speed Since getting his third speeding ticket, John says using any radar is cheating

5 Every night, Bill hand-calculates his fuel efficiency, area worked and other performance figures He says anyone who'd get an M-F Datatronic tractor to instantly display all these numbers is cheating

6 He told Jack his tractor has an "auto-pilot" to help operate the PTO, differential lock, implement depth and 4WD functions. Jack misunderstood him, and is now telling people that anyone who needs a "co-pilot" shouldn't be farming

7 He told Tom that he should buy a new M-F 3600 Series tractor for excellent dealer service and the opportunity to join the exclusive MF Club, which offers special discounts on everything from filters to vacations Tom thinks this is too good to be true

8 Peggy noticed he's wearing a new Massey-Ferguson digital wrist watch He claims he got it free She thinks he stole it

Is this man cheating, or just smart?

Could a new M-F 3600 Series Autotronic/Datatronic tractor really give you all these advantages?

USDA Lifts Weight Restriction On Horseshoes For Show Horses

WASHINGTON D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture today lifted a recently imposed 16-ounce weight restriction on horseshoes used on show horses, removed prohibitions on the use of certain weights and protective boots, and reinstated restrictions on the placement of weights.

"It has become obvious that some of the limitations contained in recent amendments to horse protection regulations were not appropriate for all breeds and all horses," said James W. Glosser, administrator of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service. "Therefore, we are reinstating certain parts of previous rules that limited shoes to 16 ounces for yearling horses, but placed no restrictions on shoe weight for older horses."

USDA also clarified the rule regarding the use of boots. "Boots with protrusions or rough sharp edges or an abrasive surface in contact with a horse's leg that might cause soring are still prohibited," Glosser said. "However, bell boots made of soft rubber or soft leather that are used as protective devices are permitted with no weight restriction. We are asking the public and the horse industry to provide us with additional information on the appropriate and necessary limitation on the use of weights, including horseshoes."

On April 22, APHIS announced new interim rules that phase in restrictions on the height of pads used on show horses to reach a pad height that could not reasonably be expected to cause soring. From April 25 through July 31, pads may be no more than three inches high; from Aug. 1 through Oct. 31, two inches; and, effective Nov. 1, no more than one-half inch covering the sole of the foot. At that time, however, an additional half-inch "rim" pad will be allowed between the full pad and the shoe. All pads must be made of leather or other similar soft pliable material.

The interim rules announced April 22 also prohibited chains or rollers that weigh more than six ounces, including the weight of the fastener.

APHIS will continue to monitor horse shows and work with the industry to prevent soring. "If we find sored horses, we will take action against the responsible parties," Glosser said, "regardless of the devices used."

The Horse Protection Act was passed in 1970 to eliminate the practice of "soring." Soring is the use of cruel methods, devices or chemical substances on a horse's legs or feet that can reasonably be expected to cause a horse to experience pain when walking. Soring is done primarily to alter a horse's gait in the show ring.

The new interim final rule will be published in the May 2 Federal Register. Written comments may be sent to APHIS, USDA, Room 1143-S, P.O. Box 96464, Washington, D.C. 20090-6464 and should be postmarked on or before June 27. Send an original and three copies and refer to Docket No. 88-079.

A new breed of dairy feed...

WEATHERPROOF
Purina Easy Care Block for dry cows and heifers
• Virtually No Waste
• Stands Up In Rain And Hot Weather
• Convenient Self Fed Block
• Quality Forage Supplement
• Highly Palatable - With Intake Limiters
• Contains Vitamins A And D, Selenium And Magnesium
NET WT 500 LBS

is a 22% protein block formulated specifically as a feeding supplement for dry cows and heifers. Available in 50 and 500 lb. blocks.

■ Weatherproof
Like its companion product, Easy Care Blocks stands up to all kinds of weather, so waste is minimal.

■ Highly Palatable — with Intake Limiters
Molasses-based for palatability but contains intake limiters to prevent over consumption when fed as recommended. Dry cows and heifers get what they need — no more, no less.

■ Balances Forages
Supplements forages to provide the balanced nutrition important to dry cows and heifers. Easy Care Block is formulated specifically to the nutrient requirements of dairy dry cows and heifers.

■ Self Fed
Saves both time and labor — especially on hard to reach temporary pastures.

■ Contains Vitamins-Minerals-Selenium and Magnesium
Meets Vitamin A and D Requirements when fed as recommended and supplies Selenium and Magnesium lacking in some forages.

■ How to Feed Easy Care Block
Control consumption at approximately two to three pounds per head per day by providing all the good quality roughage the animal can consume. Provide one 50-lb. block for each five animals or one 500-lb. block for each 25 animals. Locate blocks near where animals gather or near a water source. On large pastures, make blocks available at more than one location.

When blocks are first put out, or if animals have been out of blocks, make sure plenty of roughage is available to prevent over consumption. Always provide an unlimited supply of clean, fresh water.
